About This Book

If you are preparing for TOEFL, you are not alone. Over a million people all over the world take either the Internet- or Paper-based version of the test every year. A high score on this test is an essential step in being admitted to graduate or undergraduate programs at almost all colleges and universities in North America. A strong TOEFL score may also be needed to complete an English program at a language school or may be a requirement for graduation from a university. But preparing for this test can be a difficult, frustrating experience. Perhaps you haven't taken many standardized, multiple choice tests such as TOEFL. Perhaps you are not familiar with the format of TOEFL. Maybe you've taken TOEFL once but were not satisfied with your score, or maybe you've taken the test several times but can't seem to improve your score beyond a certain point. In any of these cases, you need a guide. That's why this book was written—to help students preparing for this important exam to maximize their scores.

This is the most complete and accurate TOEFL preparation book for the Paper-based test now available. It is based on many years of classroom experience teaching TOEFL preparation classes in the United States and abroad, and on several years of research on the test. The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test is simply written and clearly organized and is suitable for any intermediate or advanced student of English as a second or foreign language.

The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test offers a step-by-step program that teaches you critical test taking techniques, helps you polish the language skills specifically needed for the Paper-based test, and generally makes you a smarter test-taker. And the Guide is an efficient way to prepare for TOEFL; by concentrating only on the points that are actually tested on the TOEFL, it lets you make the most of your preparation period and never wastes your time.

Good luck on TOEFL!

About This Edition

In 2005, Educational Testing Service (ETS) began administering the Internet-based TOEFL (iBT). It was introduced at first in the United States and a few other countries. Over the next few years, ETS began to administer the iBT in more and more countries. However, the original Paper-based TOEFL (PBT) is still given in many locations around the world. Whether you take the iBT or the PBT depends on the location where you take the test. It may also depend on when you take the test, because some centers offer the PBT on certain dates and the iBT on others.

To find out if the iBT or the PBT is given in your area, you should check the TOEFL website. Go to www.ets.org, click on TOEFL and then click on Register for the Test.

In addition, the Institutional TOEFL (called the TOEFL Institutional Testing Program (ITP) by ETS) is a paper-based test which is administered by language centers, universities, and other institutions all over the world. Over 400,000 people take the Institutional test every year.

For students or classes that must prepare for the Internet-based test, The Complete Guide to the TOEFL: iBT Edition is also available from this publisher.

This edition of The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test meets the needs of people who want to take the TOEFL PBT rather than the iBT because the design of the two versions of the test is quite different.

I believe The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test is the most complete and accurate and up-to-date guide to preparing for the Paper-based TOEFL available. If you have comments about this edition of The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test or about any aspect of the TOEFL test, I welcome your ideas, questions, and suggestions. Please feel free to contact me at the e-mail address below.

And, as always, good luck on TOEFL!

Organization of this Book

Getting Started, the first section of the book, serves as an introduction to the Paper-based test. The opening portion of this section, Questions and Answers about TOEFL, provides you with information about the format of the test, guides you through the process of registering for the exam, and helps you understand your scores. The next portion of this section, Keys to High Scores, presents the “secrets” of being a good test-taker: arranging your preparation time, using the process of elimination, coping with test anxiety, pacing yourself during the test, and other important techniques.

The main body of the book is divided into three parts, reflecting the three main sections of the Paper-based test: Listening Comprehension, Structure and Expression, and Reading Comprehension.

Each of these sections consists of the following components:

- An introduction containing basic strategies for that section of the test.
- A full-length sample test to give you a feel for each part of the test and to provide a basis for understanding the lessons.
- An introduction to each subsection of the test, with specific tactics for approaching the items in each portion of the test.
- Lessons that break down the knowledge and skills needed for each part of the test into comprehensible “bites” of information. Each of the forty-eight lessons in the book contains sample items that illustrate exactly how the point brought up in that lesson is tested in TOEFL. Furthermore, each lesson contains one or more exercises for practicing the relevant points. Some of these items follow TOEFL format, others follow formats appropriate for the particular point being taught, but all of them have the same “feel” as actual TOEFL items. There are around 125 of these exercises in the Guide—totaling over 2,500 practice items!
- Mini-tests that review the points brought up in the previous lessons. These tests put together the points practiced in isolation in the lessons and allow you to chart your progress. All the items on the mini-tests are identical in form to items on actual tests.
- Mini-lessons covering important testing points which require more time to master than points brought up in the lessons. You should begin studying and working the exercises in the mini-lessons as soon as you begin each section of the guide.
- Section 1: Listening Comprehension This section is subdivided into three parts, each one designed to familiarize you with the problems commonly encountered on the three parts of the revised Section 1: Dialogues, Extended Conversations, and Mini-Talks. The exercises and tests in this part of the book are intended to be used with the audios that accompany the Guide. The mini-lessons for this section teach common idioms and figurative expressions that are often tested in Part A.
- Section 2: Structure and Written Expression The first part of this section categorizes common grammatical points tested in Structure problems and suggests ways to solve these problems. The second part lists the usual errors that must be identified in Written Expression problems and offers ways to identify these mistakes. The mini-lessons for this section cover preposition usage, one of the most difficult of grammar skills.
- Section 3: Reading Comprehension This section of the book prepares you for the third section of TOEFL. The Reading Comprehension portion of the book suggests reading attack skills, lists the various types of questions asked about the passages, and offers suggestions for answering each type of question. There are in-depth reading exercises to practice these techniques. The mini-lessons for this section systematically build your vocabulary, especially concentrating on the type of words that are asked about in the vocabulary items in the Reading section.
- The Test of Written English This part of the book introduces the TWE and presents the best methods for planning, writing, and checking the essay you must write if you take this portion of the exam. There are two models of strong TWE essays and there are two practice TWE exams.

- Three Complete Practice Tests Practice tests provide one of the best ways to get ready for TOEFL because they draw together all the points you have studied. These tests duplicate the format, content, and level of difficulty of the actual exam. You may want to take one of these tests as a diagnostic when you begin your studies. To get the most out of these exams, follow the recommendations in the section titled About Taking the Practice Tests. Scoring information is also included here.

Suggestions for Using This Book

The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test: PBT Edition is designed to be used either as a textbook for TOEFL preparation classes or as a tool for individuals preparing for the exam by themselves. If you are working alone, you will need the audio program to accompany the textbook as well as the answer keys and audio scripts (available online).

Whether working alone or in a group, you should begin your preparation for TOEFL by reading the introductory chapters titled Getting Started. You can then work through the book in the order in which it is written or begin with the section in which you are weakest (or in which the majority of the students in a class are weakest.) Generally, you can make the fastest progress by working in your weakest area. You can determine which area is your weakest by looking at the scores from a previous test or by using one of the practice tests as a diagnostic test.

The amounts of time required to cover each segment of the Guide are given below. Keep in mind that these times are very approximate and do not include review sessions.

Getting Started	1–3 hours
Guide to Listening Comprehension	15–20 hours
Guide to Structure and Written Expression	20–30 hours
Guide to Vocabulary and Reading Comprehension	15–25 hours
Guide to the Test of Written English	4–8 hours
Three Complete Practice Tests	8–10 hours

Acknowledgements

I would like to thank all who worked on the original second edition of the book and to Tom Jefferies and Daisy Sosa for their help in preparing this updated printing.

Questions and Answers about TOEFL

Q: What is TOEFL?

A: TOEFL stands for Test of English as a Foreign Language. It is a test designed to measure the English-language ability of people who do not speak English as their first language and who plan to study at colleges and universities in North America either as undergraduate or graduate students.

Educational Testing Service (ETS) of Princeton, New Jersey prepares and administers TOEFL. This organization produces many other standardized tests, such as the Test of English for International Communication (TOEIC), the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), and the Graduate Record Exam (GRE).

Although there are other standardized tests of English, TOEFL is by far the most important in North America. ETS has offered this exam since 1965. Each year, over a million people take the TOEFL test at testing centers all over the world. Around 7,000 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada accept TOEFL scores from students from non-English speaking countries as part of their application process.

Q: What format does the Paper-based TOEFL (PBT) follow? How long does it take to complete?

A: All the questions on the PBT (except for the TWE Prompt) are multiple choice questions with four answer choices. The test is divided into three sections, each with its own time limit. These sections are always given in the same order.

Paper-based TOEFL Format
Listening Comprehension	50 items 30 minutes (approximately)
Structure and Written Expression	40 items 25 minutes
Reading Comprehension	50 items 55 minutes
Totals	140 items 1 hour 50 minutes

Because of the time it takes to check identification, show people to their seats, give directions, and pass out and collect exams, you will actually be in the testing room for about two and a half hours.

Q: How is the Internet-Based TOEFL (iBT) different from the PBT?

A: The two versions of the test are quite different. Some of the most important differences are as follows:

- All the items on the PBT are multiple choice but there are some special computer-unique item types on the iBT.
- There is no Structure section on the iBT
- There is no Speaking section on the PBT but there are six speaking tasks on the iBT
- There is one Writing task on the PBT but two on the iBT
- There are several “integrated” tasks on the iBT which test several skills at once, such as Listening Reading, and Speaking, but the PBT tests all the skills independently.
- Note taking is allowed on the iBT but not on the PBT

Q: What is the Institutional TOEFL?

A: Institutional TOEFL (called the TOEFL Institutional Testing Program (ITP) by ETS) tests are given by English-language centers, universities, and other institutions. Sometimes Institutional TOEFL scores are used for placement in a school's English program or for testing a student's progress. Sometimes scores or a certain level are required for graduation. Institutional tests are made up of items that previously appeared on Paper-based tests administered by ETS. The answer sheets are sent to ETS or a TOEFL representative for scoring. Because ETS does not supervise these tests, most universities won't accept the results for admission purposes.

The questions types, number of items, and time limits for the Institutional TOEFL are the same as the Paper-based TOEFL.

Q: What is the Test of Written English (TWE)?

A: The TWE tests your ability to communicate written English by requiring you to write a short essay on a specified topic. You have twenty-five minutes to complete your essay. There is no additional fee for taking TWE.

There is no TWE on the Institutional TOEFL.

Q: How do I register for TOEFL?

A: You can register for the Paper-based test administered by ETS on their website. For the Institutional TOEFL, each institution has its own system for registering for the test.

Q: What should I bring with me to the exam site?

A: You should bring the following:

- Your passport or other appropriate identification document
- Your admission ticket
- A watch
- Several HB or No. 2 pencils
- Your photo file record, with a recent photograph attached

Don't bring any reference books, such as dictionaries. You are not permitted to smoke, eat, or drink in the test center.

Remember, you should arrive 30 minutes before the test begins.

Q: When will I receive the results of the test?

A: ETS sends scores for Paper-based tests about five weeks after you have taken the test. ETS will not send your scores early or give out scores over the telephone.

Results for the Institutional TOEFL tests are usually available sooner, often in about four weeks.

Q: How does ETS calculate my TOEFL PBT score?

A: There is a total score and three sub-scores, one for each section of the test. Each section counts equally toward the total score. To obtain these scores, ETS's computers count the number of correct answers in each section. The results are called raw scores. The raw scores are then converted into scaled scores.

The scaled scores from each section are added together, multiplied by 10, and divided by 3 to arrive at a total score, as shown:

Scaled	Part 1		Part 2		Part 3 scores	49	+	58	+	55	=	162
	Total Score
	(162 × 10)	=	1620	÷	3	=	540

Total scores range from a high of 677 to a low of 310, although scores of below 420 are rare. You must answer at least 25% of the questions in all three sections to receive a test score.

Q: How is the PBT scoring system different from the iBT scoring system?

A: The scores for the PBT range from 677 (the highest) to 310 (the lowest). This is also the scoring system used on the Institutional TOEFL test. The scores on the iBT range from 120 (the highest) to 0 (the lowest).

Use the chart below to compare scores on the iBT and the PBT.

TOEFL PBT	TOEFL iBT
677	120
650	115

377	25
350	20
327	15
317	10

Q: What is a passing score on the Paper-based TOEFL?

A: There isn't any. Each university has its own standards for admission, so you should check the catalogues of universities you are interested in, or contact their admissions offices. Most undergraduate programs require scores between 500 and 550, and most graduate programs ask for scores between 525 and 600. In recent years, there has been a tendency for universities to raise their minimum TOEFL requirements. Of course, the higher your score, the better your chance of admission.

On the Institutional TOEFL, acceptable scores are set by each institution.

Q: How are universities informed of my scores?

A: ETS reports your score to three institutions for free. For a charge, ETS will send your scores to additional institutions. Some universities will also accept photocopies of the test results that were mailed directly to you. Institutes that administer the institutional test are not allowed to send scores to universities.

Q: How can I get more information about the Paper-based TOEFL?

A: There is a lot more information about the Paper-based test on the ETS website at www.ets.org.

Twelve Keys to High Scores on TOEFL

Key #1: Increase your general knowledge of English.

There are two types of knowledge that will lead to high TOEFL scores:

- A knowledge of the tactics used by good test takers and of the “tricks” of the test (which you will learn by using this Guide)
- A general command of English (which must be built up over a long period)

Following a step-by-step TOEFL preparation program, such as that presented in The Complete Guide to the TOEFL Test, will familiarize you with the tactics you need to raise your scores. The practice tests in this book will help you polish these techniques.

The best way to increase your general knowledge of English is simply to use English as much as possible. Classes in English will be useful, and so will opportunities to speak, read, write, or listen to English.

Some people who are preparing for TOEFL think that conversation classes and practice are a waste of time because speaking skills are not tested on the exam. In fact, one of the best ways to get ready for the exam is to converse in English whenever you can. Not only will you improve your ability to listen to everyday English, but you'll also learn to think in English. If you are living in an English-speaking country, don't spend all your time with people from your own country. If you are living in your home country, try to arrange opportunities for conversations in English.

You can improve your listening comprehension skills by going to English-language lectures and movies. Listening to news and informational broadcasts on the radio is especially useful. Reading books, magazines, and newspapers in English can help you prepare for the Reading Comprehension part of the test.

One of your most important jobs is to systematically improve your vocabulary. Vocabulary building will help you, not just in the Reading test, but throughout the exam. You may want to keep a personal vocabulary list. When you come across an unfamiliar word, look it up in a dictionary and write the word and its definition in your personal vocabulary list. Keep this list with you and study it when riding buses, eating lunch, taking coffee breaks, or whenever else you have a free moment.

Key #2: Make the most of your preparation time.

You need to train for TOEFL just as you would train for any important competitive event. Obviously, the sooner you can start training, the better, but no matter when you begin, you need to get the most out of your preparation time.

Make a time-management chart. Draw up an hour-by-hour schedule of your week's activities. Block out those hours when you are busy with classes, work, social activities, and other responsibilities. Then pencil in times for TOEFL preparation. You will remember more of what you study if you schedule a few hours every day or several times weekly instead of scheduling all your study time in large blocks on weekends. After following this schedule for a week, make whatever adjustments are necessary. After that, try to keep to this schedule until the week before the testing date. During that last week, reduce your study time and begin to relax.

If possible, reserve a special place where you do nothing but work on TOEFL preparation, separate from where you do your regular homework or other work. This place should be as free of distractions as possible.

A good method of studying for TOEFL is the “30-5-5” method:

- Study for thirty minutes.
- Take a five-minute break—leave your desk and do something completely different.

- When you return, take five minutes to review what you studied before the break and preview what you are going to study next.

Incidentally, it's an excellent idea to meet regularly with a small group of people who are also preparing for TOEFL. Research has shown that this study-group approach to test preparation is very effective.

Key #3: Be in good physical condition when you take the exam.

When you make out your time-management schedule, don't forget to leave time for physical activities-sports, aerobics, jogging, bicycling, or whatever else you prefer.

The most important physical concern is that you not become exhausted during your preparation time. If you aren't getting enough sleep, you'll need to reduce your study time or another activity. This is especially important in the last few days before the exam.

Key #4: Choose your test date carefully.

If you require PBT scores for admission to a university, you need to plan ahead. Most students at North American universities enter their programs in the fall term, with late classes beginning in August or September. The deadline for applying for the fall term is usually December of the previous year or January of that year. Therefore, you should take the test sometime in the spring or summer of the previous year. If your score on the test is not satisfactory, you will then have time to take the test again.

Of course, if you are taking a TOEFL preparation program, you should wait until you have completed or almost completed that course before you take the test so that the tactics and skills you have learned will be fresh in your mind.

Key #5: Be familiar with the format and directions.

You should have a clear map of the TOEFL test in your mind. Then, as you're taking the exam, you'll know exactly where you are and what's coming next. You can familiarize yourself with the basic TOEFL format by looking over the chart on page xvi.

The directions for each part of the TOEFL test are always the same; even the same examples are used. If you are familiar with the directions, you won't have to waste time reading them during the test. You can become familiar with these directions by studying the directions for the practice tests in this book.

Key #6: Organize your pre-exam time.

You shouldn't try to "cram" (study intensively) during the last few days before the exam. Last-minute studying can leave you exhausted, and you need to be alert for the test. The night before the exam, don't study at all. Get together the materials you'll need in the morning, then go to a movie, take a long walk, or do something else to take your mind off the test. Go to bed when you usually do.

If the exam is in the morning, have breakfast before you leave. Wear comfortable clothes because you'll be sitting in the same position for a long time. Give yourself plenty of time to get to the test site, keeping in mind traffic, weather, and parking problems. If you have to rush, that will only add to your stress.

Key #7: Use time wisely during the test.

TOEFL would be a far easier test if you could spend an unlimited amount of time working on it. However, there are strict time limits. Doing well on TOEFL means that you must find a balance between speed and accuracy. You don't want to rush through any section, but you do want to finish each section before time is called. The ideal is to finish Sections 2 and 3 with a few minutes remaining so that you can go back to questions that you found difficult. (The timing on Section 1 is controlled by the audio and you can't go back and check your answers after completing this section.)

The questions on TOEFL are not equally difficult. Items can be classified as easy, medium, and difficult. The approximate distribution of items on a typical TOEFL are as follows: easy-30%; medium-40%; difficult-30%.

Easy items are usually found at the beginning of each part of the test, medium items are usually found in the middle of each part, and difficult items are usually found at the end of each part. You may be tempted to rush through the easy items to save time for the difficult ones at the end of each part. This is not a good strategy. Your goal is to get as many right answers as possible. Therefore, you want to concentrate on the items that give you the best chance of a correct answer—in other words, the easiest ones.

Hint: Remember, you don't get any extra points for answering difficult questions.

Work steadily. Never spend too much time on any one problem. If you are unable to decide on an answer, guess and go on. Answer each question as you come to it, even if you are not sure of the answer. You can mark difficult items on your answer sheet with check marks (as shown in Key #8). Then, if you have time at the end of the section, you can return to these problems. Sometimes when you come back to an item, you will find it easier. (Be sure to erase all of these check marks before you hand in your answer sheet.)

The most important tool for timing yourself is a watch, preferably one with a "count down" feature that you can set at the beginning of Sections 2 and 3. (Watches with alarms are not permitted.)

Key #8: Know how to mark your answer sheet.

One of the worst surprises you can have during a test is to suddenly discover that the number of the item that you are working on doesn't correspond to the number of the answer you are marking for that item. You have to go back to find where you first got off track, then change all the answers after that number. You can avoid this problem by using the test book itself as a marker. Cover all the unanswered items in each column on your answer sheet. Then uncover one item at a time as you advance. Every five items or so, quickly glance at the number of the question that you are working on and the number of the answer to make sure they are the same.

Mark answers by filling in the oval so that the letter cannot be seen. Don't mark answers any other way.

Bring several #2 black lead pencils. Make sure each has a functioning eraser. Do not use a pen, liquid lead pencil, or any other kind of marker.

By the way, you may see either of two types of answer sheet. On one the answer choices are displayed horizontally, while on the other they are displayed vertically.

Always be sure you have filled in a circle completely and have filled in only one answer per item. If you have to erase an answer, erase it completely.

Notice the check marks by numbers 4 and 6. The test taker found these items difficult. He or she guessed at the answers, and then used the marks as a reminder to come back to these items if the time allowed. These marks should be erased before the end of the test.

Incidentally, if you mark the same answer four times in a row, you'll know one of those four answers is wrong. The same correct answer will occur at most three times in a row on TOEFL.

Hint: Don't sharpen your pencils too much before the exam. You can fill in circles more quickly if your pencil is not too sharp.

Key #9: Improve your concentration.

The ability to focus your attention on each item is an important factor in scoring high. Two and a half hours or more after all is a long time to spend in deep concentration. However, if your concentration is broken, it could cost you points. When an outside concern comes into your mind, just say to yourself, "I'll think about this after the test."

Like any skill, the ability to concentrate can be improved with practice. Work on it while you are taking the practice tests in this book.

Key #10: Use the process of elimination to make the best guess.

Unlike some standardized exams, TOEFL has no penalty for guessing. In other words, incorrect answers aren't subtracted from your total score. Even if you are not sure which answer is correct, you should always, always, always guess. But you want to make an educated guess, not a blind guess. To do so, use the process of elimination,

To understand the process of elimination, it may be helpful to look at the basic structure of a multiple-choice item. On TOEFL, multiple choice items consist of a stem and four answer choices, (The stem in the Listening section is spoken; in the other two sections, it is written.) One answer choice, called the key, is correct. The three incorrect choices are called distractors because their function is to distract (take away) your attention from the right answer.

STEM

- (A) distractor
- (B) distractor
- (C) key
- (D) distractor

The three distractors, however, are usually not equally attractive. One is usually "almost correct." This choice is called the main distractor. Most people who answer an item incorrectly will choose this answer.

STEM

- (A) distractor
- (B) key
- (C) distractor
- (D) main distractor

To see how this works in practice, look at this simple Structure item:

Winter wheat _____ planted in the fall.

- (A) because
- (B) is
- (C) which
- (D) has

If you are sure of the answer, you should mark your choice immediately and go on. If not, you should use the process of elimination. In this item, choices (A) and (C) are fairly easy to eliminate. Because this sentence consists of a single clause, connecting words such as because and which are not needed. It may be a little more difficult to choose between choices (B) and (D) because both form correct verb phrases. Even if you are unable to decide between these two choices, you have a 50% chance of guessing correctly. That's twice as good as the 25% chance you would have if you had guessed blindly. (Choice (B) is the key, of course; a passive verb, not a present perfect verb, is required to complete the sentence correctly.) Choice (D) is the main distractor.

What if you eliminate one or two answers but can't decide which of the remaining choices is correct? If you have a "hunch" (an intuitive feeling) that one choice is better than the others, choose it. If not, just pick any remaining answer and go on.

If you have no idea which of the four answers is correct, it's better to use a standard "guess letter," such as (C), than to guess at random.

You should NEVER leave any items unanswered. Even if you don't have time to read an item, you have a 25% chance of guessing the key. If you are unable to finish a section, fill in all the unanswered ovals on your answer sheet with your guess letter in the last few seconds before time is called.

Remember: Use the same guess letter all the time so that you can fill in the ovals quickly.

Key #11: Learn to control test anxiety.

A little nervousness before an important test is normal. After all, these tests can have an important effect on your plans for your education and career. If you were going to participate in a big athletic contest or give an important business presentation, you would feel the same way. There is an expression in English that describes this feeling quite well: “butterflies in the stomach.” These “butterflies” will mostly disappear once the test starts. And a little nervousness can actually help by making you more alert and focused. However, too much nervousness can slow you down and cause you to make mistakes.

You may become anxious during the test because it seems very hard and it seems that you are making many mistakes. Try not to panic. The test seems hard because it is hard. You can miss quite a few items and still get a high score.

One way to avoid stress on the day of the test is to give yourself plenty of time to get to the test center. If you have to rush, you’ll be even more nervous during the exam. If you begin to feel extremely anxious during the test, try taking a short break—a “ten-second vacation.” Close your eyes and put down your pencil. Take a few deep breaths, shake out your hands, roll your head on your neck, relax—then go back to work.

Of course, you can’t take a break during the Listening Comprehension section when the items are being read. However, if you’re familiar with the directions, you can relax during the times when directions are being read.

A positive, confident attitude toward the exam can help you overcome anxiety. Think of TOEFL not as a test of your knowledge or of you as a person but as an intellectual challenge, a series of puzzles to be solved.

Key #12: Learn from taking practice test and official TOEFL exams.

One of the most important steps in preparing for TOEFL is taking realistic, complete practice tests. There are now three tests in this book.

In addition, you may take the official TOEFL test several times. Each time you take a test, either a practice test or a real one, you should learn from it. Immediately after the exam, write down your reactions: Which section seemed difficult? Did you have problems finishing any sections? When you look at your results, is the score for one section significantly lower or higher than the scores for the other two sections? You can use this information to focus your studies for the next time you take the test.

Hint: Whenever you take a practice test, pretend that you are taking an actual TOEFL exam. Whenever you take an actual exam, pretend you are taking a practice test.

Guide to Listening Comprehension

About Listening Comprehension

The Listening Comprehension section of TOEFL is always given first. The purpose of this section is to test your understanding of spoken English.

The directions for this section are given on the audio as well as printed in your test book. There are four speakers, two men and two women. The speakers read the items at a normal speed. All four have standard North American accents. The tone of the items is conversational, much less formal than the items in the two other test sections.

Section 1 is divided into three parts:

Listening Comprehension Format

Part A: Dialogs	30 items
Part B: Extended Conversations	2 conversations 7–8 items
Part C: Mini-Talks	3 talks 12–13 items
Totals:	50 items +30 minutes

Listening Comprehension actually tests both your listening ability and your reading skills since you must understand both the material on the audio and the answer choices written in your test book.

Many test takers find the Listening Comprehension section the most difficult. Because it is given first, you may be more nervous during this part of the test. Furthermore, it is difficult to understand voices on audio (just as it is on the telephone or radio) because you can't see the speakers' gestures, facial expressions, or lip movements as you can during "live" listening. Finally, the test writers at ETS employ a number of "tricks" that make choosing the correct answer more difficult.

The exercises and tests in the Listening Comprehension section of this text are designed to help you overcome these difficulties. You will become more comfortable listening to audio materials in general and to TOEFL items in particular. You'll also become alert to many of the test writers' tricks.

Strategies for Section 1

- Familiarize yourself with the directions for each part before the exam. But remember, you are not permitted to turn the page to look over answer choices while the directions are being read. (No answer choices appear on the same page as the directions for Section 1.)
 - If you have any difficulties hearing the audio, inform one of the proctors during the introductory section. Once the test has begun, the proctors cannot stop the audio.
 - Never skip any items. If you're not sure of an answer, guess.
 - Answer each item as quickly as you can; then preview the answer choices for the next item. Try to guess what the next item will be by the form of the answer choices.
 - Concentration is very important in this part of the test. Once you choose an answer, don't think about the last item—start thinking about the next one. Don't daydream. Focus your attention on the audio and on the choices in your test book.

Begin your preparation for Section 1 by taking the Sample Listening Comprehension Test on the following pages. This will familiarize you with the first section of the exam.

Sample Listening Comprehension Test

This section tests your ability to comprehend spoken English. It is divided into three parts, each with its own directions. You are not permitted to turn the page during the reading of the directions or to take notes at any time.

Part A

Directions: Each item in this part consists of a brief conversation involving two speakers. Following each conversation, a third voice will ask a question. You will hear the conversations and questions only once, and they will not be written out.

When you have heard each conversation and question, read the four answer choices and select the one—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that best answers the question based on what is directly stated or on what can be inferred. Then fill in the space on your answer sheet that matches the letter of the answer that you have selected.

Here is an example.

You will hear:

Sample Answer

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

You will read: (A) Open the window.
(B) Move the chair.
(C) Leave the room.
(D) Take a seat.

From the conversation you find out that the woman thinks the man should put the chair over by the window. The best answer to the question “What does the woman think the man should do?” is (B), “Move the chair.” You should fill in (B) on your answer sheet.

Directions: This part of the test consists of several talks, each given by a single speaker. After each of these talks, there are a number of questions. You will hear each talk and question only once, and the questions are not written out.

When you have heard each question, read the four answer choices and select the one—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that best answers the question based on what is directly stated or on what can be inferred. Then fill in the space on your answer sheet that matches the letter of the answer that you have selected.

Here is an example.

Now here is a sample question.

You will hear:

Sample Answer

You will read: (A) Philosophy.
(B) Meteorology.

The lecture concerns a lunar eclipse, a topic that would typically be discussed in an astronomy class. The choice that best answers the question “In what course is this lecture probably being given?” is (C), “Astronomy.” You should fill in (C) on your answer sheet.

The choice that best answers the question “According to the speaker, which of the following occurs during a lunar eclipse?” is (A), “The Earth’s shadow moves across the Moon.”

Don’t forget: during actual exams, taking notes or writing in your test book is not permitted.

Dialogs

About Dialogs

The first part of the Listening Comprehension section consists of spoken dialogs (conversations) between two speakers. A third speaker asks a question about what was said or implied in the conversation. You must decide which of the four answer choices printed in your test book is the best answer for the question you hear and then mark that choice on your answer sheet. Between each of the dialogs is a twelve-second pause. There are thirty dialogs.

Sample Item

You will hear:

- M1: Do you think I should leave this chair against the wall or put it somewhere else?
F1: Over by the window, I'd say.
M2: What does the woman think the man should do?

You will read:

- (A) Open the window.
(B) Move the chair.
(C) Leave the room.
(D) Take a seat.

The woman indicates that she thinks the man should put the chair over by the window rather than leave it where it is. In other words, he should move it. The best answer is therefore (B).

Note: M1 = first male voice
 M2 = second male voice
 F1 = first female voice
 F2 = second male voice

The Dialogs

Most of the dialogs in Part A involve a man and a woman. A few involve two men or two women. Each speaker usually speaks one or two sentences. Many dialogs (about 25%) are about facets of life at American universities: attending classes, talking to professors, writing research papers, taking tests. Other dialogs are about more general activities: shopping in grocery stores, looking for housing, taking vacations, going to meetings and parties. The tone of the dialogs is informal. Idioms, first names, contractions (I'm, doesn't, can't) are often heard. Some of the items test your ability to understand various language functions. For example, you must be able to determine if a speaker is agreeing or disagreeing with the other speaker, or if one speaker is accepting or rejecting the other speaker's offer.

The Questions

Most of the questions about the dialogs focus on what the second speaker says. However, it is usually necessary to understand the entire dialog in order to choose the correct answer. For example, in the Sample Item, it is not clear what the woman means when she says "Over by the window" unless you understand what the man says first. One or two questions in each test may focus instead on what the first speaker says.

Common Part A Question Types	Examples
1. Meaning questions These are the most common questions (about 50%). They ask for a restatement of what the second speaker or both speakers say. They may be general questions or ask what the speakers say about some specific topic. They often follow dialogs that contain idioms.	"What does the man/woman mean?" "What do the speakers say about — — —?"
2. Inference questions These are the second most common Part A questions (about 20%). The answers for these questions are not directly stated in the dialog, but they can be inferred (concluded) from what the speakers say.	"What does the man/woman imply?" "What can be inferred from the conversation about — — —?" "What can be concluded from the conversation about — — —?"
3. Questions about suggestions Generally, the first speaker talks about a problem or asks for advice. The second speaker makes a suggestion for solving the problem.	"What does the woman suggest the man do?" "What does the man suggest they do?" "What does the woman suggest?" "What does the woman think the man should do?"
4. Questions about future actions These ask what one or both of the speakers will do next or in the near future, or what one or both are planning to do.	"What will the man do?" "What will they probably do next?" "What are the speakers planning to do?"

Common Part A Question Types	Examples
5. Topic questions These ask about the subject of the dialog.	“What are they talking about?” “What are they discussing?”
6. Questions about opinions These ask how one or both of the speakers feel about some topic.	“How does the man/woman feel about ———?” “What is their opinion of ———?”
7. Questions about assumptions These ask what the second speaker thought (assumed) before he or she spoke to the first speaker.	“What had the man assumed about ———?” “What had the woman previously assumed?”
8. Questions about questions The first speaker makes a statement; the second speaker asks a question to get more information.	“What does the man want to know?”
9. Questions about time These ask when a conversation is taking place or when an event the speakers mention in the conversation will take place.	“When is this conversation taking place?” “When will the ——— take place?”
10. Questions about reasons These ask why one or both of the speakers did something.	“Why did the man/woman ———?”
11. Questions about problems These ask about some trouble one or both of the speakers are having.	“What problem is the man having?” “What is the problem?”
12. Questions about activities These ask what one or both of the speakers are doing.	“What are the speakers probably doing?”

Note: Two types of questions that were commonly asked about dialogs in the past are seldom or never asked about in the new-format test. These are location questions (“Where does this conversation probably take place?”) and occupation questions (“What is the man’s occupation?” or “Who is the man?”).

The Answer Choices

All four of the answer choices are logical answers for the question, but only one—the key—is correct according to the dialog. However, as in all parts of the TOEFL, not all of the answer choices are equally attractive. You can often eliminate one or two choices easily even if you are not sure which answer is correct and so make a better guess.

Correct answers are seldom stated word for word by either of the speakers. Correct answers often contain synonyms (words with the same meaning) for words in the dialogs and use different sentence structures.

Grammatically, there are three types of answer choices:

1. Complete sentences (about 75%)
2. Incomplete sentences, usually beginning with verb forms—most often the simple form of the verb (about 20%)
3. Short noun or prepositional phrases

The form of the answer choice can sometimes help you guess what the question will be, and you can therefore focus your listening.

Questions about activities: “What are they probably doing?”	Incomplete sentences beginning with -ing verbs: (A) Buying groceries. (B) Cooking breakfast.

The test writers sometimes make it more difficult to pick the correct answer by using sound-alike words, homonyms, words with multiple meaning, and other techniques. You’ll practice avoiding these traps in this part of the Guide.

Tactics for Dialogs

- Be familiar with the directions for Part A.
- Remember that the answer for the question is generally contained in what the second speaker says.
- If you are not sure of the answer, eliminate as many answer choices as you can.
- After you have chosen an answer, use the remaining time to preview the choices for the next item. If the answer choices are long, just skim over them quickly. Try to anticipate what the question will be by the form of the answer choices.
- If you don’t understand all or part of a conversation, guess and go on.

LESSON 1

ANTICIPATING QUESTIONS ABOUT DIALOGS

Between each dialog in Part A, there is a twelve-second pause. During the pause, here's what you should do:

- Answer the question you have just heard as quickly as you can.
- Preview the choices for the next item.

A look at the answer choices may tell you the topic of the upcoming dialog and what question will be asked about it. Consider the answer choices below:

- (A) Before she leaves her dormitory.
- (B) During chemistry class.
- (C) After the lab period.
- (D) While she's eating lunch.

Even a quick glance will tell you that the dialog must be about a student's schedule and that the question will begin, "When. . . ."

If you have an idea of the topic of the dialog and if you know what the question about the dialog will be, you will know what to listen for, and your listening task will be easier.

Exercise 1

Focus: Guessing which type of question will be asked about dialogs by looking at the four answer choices.

Directions: Quickly look over the five Part A items in each set. Try to guess the topic of the dialog and the type of question that would be asked about it. Then look at the list of questions following each set of items. Put the letter of the appropriate question in the blank provided. One question in each set will not be used. The first one is done as an example.

DIALOGS WITH SOUND CONFUSION

Some of the items in Part A involve a confusion between words that have similar sounds. Here's how they work: one of the speakers uses a word or phrase that sounds like a word or phrase in one or more of the answer choices. If you don't hear the word clearly, you might incorrectly choose an option with a sound-alike word or phrase.

Sample Item

You will hear:

M1: I've never had this type of fruit before. I don't even know what to do with it.

F1: You just have to peel it and eat it.

M2: What does the woman mean?

You will read:

- (A) She doesn't feel like eating fruit.
- (B) The man should take the pill before eating.
- (C) The fruit shouldn't be eaten until it's been peeled.
- (D) She isn't familiar with this type of fruit either.

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

The word feel in choice (A) sounds like the word peel in the dialog. In a different way, the word pill in choice (B) also sounds like the word peel. Notice that choice (C)—the correct answer—and choice (D) do not contain sound-alike words.

Many sound-alike expressions in Part A are minimal pairs. Minimal pairs are two words that are pronounced alike except for one vowel sound (peel and pill, lack and lake, point and paint) or one consonant sound (peel and feel, vine and wine, mop and mob).

Another sound problem involves two words that sound like one word, such as mark it and market, sent her and center, in tents and intense.

A third type of sound problem involves one word that sounds like part of a longer word, such as nation and imagination, mind and remind, give and forgive.

Hint: If an answer choice contains a word that sounds like a word in the spoken sentence, that choice is probably wrong. For example, if you hear the word spell and you read the word spill in an answer choice, you can eliminate that choice.

When you're taking Part A during an actual exam, you can use the context of the dialogs to help you solve problems with sound confusion. If you hear and understand all of the dialog, you won't have much trouble eliminating choices involving sound-alike words. However, if you only understand part of a dialog or if you "mis-hear" one or two words, you may easily choose an incorrect answer.

Exercise 2.1

Focus: Discriminating between sound-alike words in dialogs and answer choices.

Directions: Listen to the dialogs. Decide which of the two choices, (A) or (B), best answers the question, and mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

Now start the audio.

Focus: Identifying sound-alike expressions in answer choices and choosing correct answers.

Directions: Listen to the dialogs. Each dialog contains a word or phrase that sounds like a word or phrase in two of the answer choices. Underline these words. Underline only those words with similar sounds, not words that are exactly the same. Then mark the answer choice that has the same meaning as the spoken sentence. (The correct answer will not contain any sound-alike words.) The first one is done as an example.

Now start the audio. If necessary, repeat this exercise to make sure that you have underlined all the sound-alike words.

LESSON 3

DIALOGS WITH HOMONYMS AND WORDS WITH MULTIPLE MEANINGS

Two words are homonyms if they have the same pronunciation but are spelled differently and have different meanings. The words flour and flower, bare and bear are homonyms. In some items in Part A, one or more incorrect answer choices refer to a homonym of a word that is used on the audio, as in the example below.

Sample Item

You will hear:

- M1: Eugene missed a lot of classes last week.
 F1: That's because he was sick. I think he had the flu.
 M2: What is learned about Eugene?

You will read:

- (A) He has been feeling weak for a long time.
 (B) Because of sickness, Eugene was absent.
 (C) Eugene's eyesight isn't very strong, so he needs glasses.
 (D) Eugene flew to another city this week.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The dialog contains the word week, meaning a seven-day period. Choices (A) and (C) refer to a homonym of that word, weak, which means "not strong." The dialog also contains the word flu, an illness similar to a bad cold. Choice (D) refers to a homonym of that word, flew (took a trip by plane).

The dialogs may also contain words with multiple meanings. In these items, one or two of the answer choices refer to another definition of a word as it is used in the dialog.

Sample Item

You will hear:

- F1: Are you sure this is how Lois spells her last name?
 M1: It doesn't look right, does it? In fact, I'm not even sure it starts with that letter.
 M2: What does the man mean?

- You will read: (A) The letter to Lois was incorrectly addressed.
 (B) Lois's last name may be incorrectly spelled.
 (C) Lois's name appeared on the right side of the page.
 (D) Lois hasn't begun writing the letter yet.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The dialog contains the words right, meaning "correct," and the word letter, meaning a character in the alphabet. Choices (A) and (D) also contain the word letter, but in those choices the word has another definition—a message sent through the mail. Choice (C) also contains the word right, but in that choice, it refers to a direction—the opposite of left.

You won't be confused by these items if you understand the entire dialog. Again, the context of the dialog can help you choose the correct answer. But if you focus only on single words, like week and flu or letter and right in the two samples, you can easily make mistakes.

Exercise 3.1

Focus: Using the context of dialogs to identify homonyms.

Directions: Listen to the dialogs. Decide which of the pair of homonyms appears in the dialogs and mark the appropriate answer, (A) or (B). The first one is done as an example.

Exercise 3.3

Focus: Using the context of dialogs to answer questions involving both homonyms and words with multiple definitions.

Directions: Listen to the statements. Decide which of the two choices best answers the question and mark the appropriate answer, (A) or (B). The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 4

DIALOGS WITH IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS

On many TOEFL exams, up to half the dialogs in Part A contain idiomatic expressions. Many of the idiomatic expressions are two- or three-word verbs, such as call off and look out for.

Sample Item

You will hear:

F1: I wonder where Mike is.

M1: He'll show up as soon as the work is done, I bet.

M2: What does the man say about Mike?

You will read:

(A) He probably won't arrive until the work is finished.

(B) He went to a show instead of going to work.

(C) He can show them how to do the work.

(D) He'll probably work late today.

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The idiom show up means "arrive." Choices (B) and (C) contain the word show, but it is not used in the idiomatic sense.

In most dialogs, the second speaker uses the idiomatic expression. Most questions about this type of dialog are questions about meaning ("What does the man mean?" for example), but some are inference questions or other types of questions. The correct answer often contains a synonym for the idiom (arrive for show up in choice (A) of the Sample Item). Incorrect choices often contain references to the literal meaning of idioms, as in choices (B) and (C).

The Mini-Lessons for Section 1, at the end of the Listening Comprehension section (pages 81–100), are intended to familiarize you with a large number of idioms. You should work on these lessons and study these expressions as often as possible.

However, memorizing these phrases does not guarantee that you will recognize all the idiomatic expressions that you will hear in the Listening Comprehension section. There are, after all, thousands of these expressions in English. You must develop "a good ear" for guessing the meaning of idioms. The context of the sentence will help you understand the expression, even if you're unfamiliar with it.

Exercise 4.1

Focus: Recognizing synonyms for idiomatic expressions.

Directions: Listen to the spoken statements. Each contains an idiomatic or figurative expression which is written out. First decide which of the two choices best answers the question and mark the appropriate answer, (A) or (B). Then underline the phrase in the correct answer that has the same meaning as the idiom. If necessary, rewind the audio and listen to the exercise again. The first one has been done as an example.

Now start the audio.

Exercise 4.2

Directions: Look over the idiomatic expressions listed before each set of items. If you are unfamiliar with any of the idioms, you may want to look them up in the Mini-Lessons for Section 1 that follow the Listening Comprehension section of this book (pages 81–100). The dialogs each contain one of the listed expressions. Listen to the dialogs and mark the one answer choice, (A) or (B), that best answers the question. The first one has been done as an example.

LESSON 5

ANSWERING INFERENCE QUESTIONS ABOUT DIALOGS

Sometimes the answer to a question about a dialog is not directly stated in the dialog. How can you answer this type of question? You must be able to make an inference about the dialog. In other words, information in the dialog will indirectly provide you with the answer to the question.

This type of question can be phrased in two ways:

- What does the man/woman imply?
- What can be inferred from the conversation?

Some inference questions involve overstatement, or exaggeration.

F: Are you interested in selling your car?

M: Sure—if someone has a million dollars!

Because of the exaggeration, we can infer that the man doesn't want to sell his car at all.

Sample Item

You will hear:

M1: Can I take this bus to the art museum?

F1: No, this bus goes north to Bank Street. You want a bus that goes the opposite way.

M2: What can be inferred from this conversation?

You will read:

- (A) The man needs to take a southbound bus.
- (B) There is no bus to the museum.
- (C) It takes a long time to get to the museum by bus.
- (D) The art museum is on Bank Street.

☒ (A) ☐ (B) ☐ (C) ☐ (D)

From the information in the dialog it can be inferred that (A) is correct because the first bus is going north, but the man must take a bus going in the opposite direction to get to the art museum. Choice (B) is incorrect; it is possible to get to the museum by bus. There is no information about (C). Choice (D) can't be true because Bank Street is where the first bus is going.

Exercise 5

LESSON 6

DIALOGS INVOLVING AGREEMENT AND DISAGREEMENT

To answer questions about some of the dialogs in Part A, it is necessary to understand if the second speaker agrees or disagrees with the first speaker's ideas or proposals.

There are many ways to express agreement and disagreement:

Agreement

So do I.	I'll say!
Me too.	You can say that again.
Neither do I.*	Is/Has/Was it ever!
I don't either.*	You bet!
Who wouldn't?	I couldn't agree with you more.
Isn't he/she/it though! (Didn't he/wasn't she/hasn't it though!)	I feel the same way you do about it.
I'll second that.

*These two expressions show agreement with a negative statement:

I don't really like my schedule this term.

I don't either. OR Neither do I.

Disagreement

I don't think so.	I'm afraid I don't agree.
That's not what I think.	Probably not.
That's not the way I see it.	Not necessarily.
Not really.	I'm afraid not.
I can't say I agree.	I'm not so sure.
I couldn't agree with you less.

There are, of course, other expressions that show agreement and disagreement. Some are practiced in the exercises.

Sample Items

You will hear:

M1: Howard certainly is a talented journalist.

F1: Isn't he though!

M2: What does the woman mean?

You will read:

(A) She doesn't know if Howard is a journalist.

(B) She agrees that Howard is talented.

(C) She read Howard's journal.

(D) She doesn't think Howard is talented.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Although the woman's reply seems negative in form, it actually signals agreement. Therefore, the best answer is (B).

You will hear:

- F1: I thought Cheryl's photographs were the best at the exhibit.
 M1: I didn't really see it that way.
 M2: What does the man mean?

You will hear:

- (A) He thought Cheryl's photos were the best.
 (B) He didn't look at Cheryl's photos.
 (C) He thought other photos were better than Cheryl's.
 (D) He didn't go to the exhibit.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The man's response, "I didn't really see it that way," means that he disagreed with the woman's opinion that Cheryl's photographs were the best. The best answer is therefore (C).

Exercise 6.1

Focus: Determining if one speaker agrees or disagrees with the other speaker.

Directions: Listen to the following dialogues. Decide if the second speaker agrees or disagrees with the first speaker, and mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

12. _____ (A) She thinks Pamela is right.
_____ (B) She thinks the regulations are fair.
_____ (C) She disagrees with the man's opinion.

Although the woman's reply seems negative in form, it actually signals agreement. Therefore, the best answer is (B).

You will hear:

- F1: I thought Cheryl's photographs were the best at the exhibit.
 M1: I didn't really see it that way.
 M2: What does the man mean?

You will hear:

- (A) He thought Cheryl's photos were the best.
 (B) He didn't look at Cheryl's photos.
 (C) He thought other photos were better than Cheryl's.
 (D) He didn't go to the exhibit.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The man's response, "I didn't really see it that way," means that he disagreed with the woman's opinion that Cheryl's photographs were the best. The best answer is therefore (C).

Exercise 6.1

LESSON 7

DIALOGS INVOLVING SUGGESTIONS, INVITATIONS, OFFERS, AND REQUESTS

A number of dialogs in Part A involve a speaker making and/or responding to suggestions, invitations, offers, and requests. There are many ways to express these language functions. Some are listed in the charts in this lesson, while others are practiced in the exercises.

A) Suggestions

These are pieces of advice that one speaker gives another. In most dialogs, the first speaker poses a problem and the second speaker suggests a possible solution to that problem. In some dialogs, the first speaker makes a suggestion, and the second speaker responds to that suggestion positively or negatively.

Making Suggestions

Why don't you/we . . .	If I were you . . .
Why not . . .	If I were in your shoes . . .
Have you ever thought of . . .	You/We should . . .
You/We might want to . . .	Shouldn't you/we . . .
You/We could always . . .	What about . . .
Maybe you/we could . . .	What if you/we . . .
Try . . .	How about . . .

Positive Responses

Why not!
 Good idea!
 That's an idea.
 Sounds good to me.
 By all means!
 Why didn't I think of that?
 That's worth a try.
 Thanks, I'll give that a try.

Negative Responses

I don't think so.
 I don't believe so.
 I already thought of that.
 I don't think that will work.
 Don't look at me!
 Can I take a rain check?*

*This means, "Could we do this some other time?"

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- M1: I'm doing so poorly in math class, I think I'm going to have to drop it.
 F1: You know, Frank, you should talk to Professor de Marco before you do anything. He's given special help to lots of students who were having trouble.
 M2: What does the woman suggest Frank do?

You will read:

- (A) Study with a group of students.
 (B) Drop his mathematics course.
 (C) Discuss the problem with the professor.
 (D) Take no action at this time.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The woman suggests that the man talk to Professor de Marco because the professor has helped many students in the past. ▲

B) Invitations

These are requests for someone to come somewhere or to take part in some activity. The first speaker may invite the second speaker to do something and the second speaker responds, or the second speaker may invite the first speaker to do something.

Making Invitations

Shall we . . .	Let's . . .
Would you like to . . .	Do you want to . . .
Would you care to . . .	Could you . . .
Would you be able to . . .	Can you . . .
Want to . . .

Positive Responses

Yes, let's.
 Sure, thanks.
 Sounds good.
 All right, I'd love to.
 I'd like that.
 What a great idea!
 Sure. Thanks for inviting me.
 If you want me to.
 Don't mind if I do.

Negative Responses

I'm sorry, but . . .
 I'd like to, but . . .
 I'd love to, but . . .
 Thanks a lot, but . . .
 That sounds nice, but . . .
 I'll pass.
 Thanks for the invitation, but . . .
 I don't think I'll be able to make it this time.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- M1: Would you like to join us on Sunday?
We're going to go on a picnic at the lake.
F1: I'd love to, but I have a test Monday, and I have to get ready for it.
M2: What will the woman probably do on Sunday?

You will read:

- (A) Study for a test.
(B) Go on a picnic.
(C) Take an exam.
(D) Join a club.

☐ ☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

The man invites the woman to come to a picnic. The woman says that she'd love to go, but that she must study for a test she is taking Monday. (If the woman had accepted the man's invitation, Choice (B) would have been correct.) ▲

C) Offers

These are proposals to help someone or allow someone to do something. Either speaker in the dialog may make an offer.

Making Offers

- | | |
|----------------------------|----------------|
| Let me . . . | Can I . . . |
| Shall I . . . | May I . . . |
| Would you like me to . . . | Should I . . . |
| Do you want me to . . . | I could . . . |

Positive Responses

- That would be nice.
Yes, please.
Please do.
Sure, thanks.

Negative Responses

- I don't think so.
I'm afraid not.
That won't be necessary.
Thanks anyway.
Please don't.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

F1: Should I make reservations for dinner Friday night?

M1: Thanks anyway, but I've already made them.

M2: What does the man mean?

You will read:

(A) He can't go to dinner Friday night.

(B) Reservations won't be required.

(C) He made reservations earlier.

(D) He'd like the woman to make reservations.

☐ A ☐ B ☒ C ☐ D

The woman offers to make reservations, but the man replies that he's already made them. ▲

D) Requests

To make a request is to ask someone to do something, or to ask for help or information.

Making Requests

Would you . . .

Will you . . .

Could you/I . . .

May I . . .

Do you mind if . . .

Can you/I . . .

Would you mind if . . .

Positive ResponsesNegative Responses

I'd be glad to.

Sorry, but . . .

I'd be delighted.

I'm afraid not.

Sure thing.

I'd like to, but . . .

Certainly.

I wish I could, but . . .

Why not?

*Actually, I do/would.

If you want to.

*I'm afraid I do/would.

If you'd like.

*As a matter of fact, I do/would.

You bet.

*Not at all.

*Of course not.

*Responses for "Do you mind if . . ." or "Would you mind if . . .")

▼ Sample Item

You will hear: M1: I have to make one more phone call before I go.

F2: Take your time. Would you just lock the office door when you finish?

M2: What does the woman want the man to do?

You will read:

- (A) Lock the office.
- (B) Finish his phone call quickly.
- (C) Tell her what time it is.
- (D) Look up a phone number.

 B C D

The woman requests that the man lock up the office. ▲

LESSON 8

DIALOGS INVOLVING CONTRADICTIONS, ASSUMPTIONS, AND QUESTIONS

A) Contradictions

These involve the second speaker correcting what the first speaker says, as in the samples below:

▼ Sample Items

You will hear:

F1: Amy didn't work overtime last week.

M1: As a matter of fact, she did.

M2: What does the man say about Amy?

You will read:

(A) She is always late for work.

(B) She never works overtime.

(C) She worked extra hours last week.

(D) She hasn't had her job very long.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The man's emphatic use of the auxiliary verb did shows that he is contradicting what the woman said.

You will hear:

M1: Martin always talks about how he loves to dance.

F1: Yes, but you don't see him out on the dance floor very often, do you?

M2: What does the woman say about Martin?

You will read:

(A) He is an excellent dancer.

(B) He doesn't like dancing very much.

(C) He doesn't talk about dancing very often.

(D) He goes dancing four times a week.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The woman's use of the word but and the tag question ("... do you?") suggests that she doesn't believe that Martin really loves to dance.

You will hear:

F1: All of the students voted for the proposal to expand the Student Council.

M1: Well, most of them did, anyway.

M2: What does the man mean?

You will read:

(A) All of the students voted.

(B) Some of the students opposed the proposal.

(C) The proposal was defeated.

(D) The Student Council voted.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The man says that most of the students voted for the proposal, contradicting the idea that all of them did. Therefore, some of the students must have opposed the proposal.

In some dialogs, such as the third Sample Item, the second speaker does not completely contradict what the first speaker says but rather limits the first speaker's idea. ▲

B) Assumptions

These are the beliefs that one speaker has until he or she receives information from a second speaker. You will generally hear dialogs involving assumptions near the end of Part A. These questions are considered difficult, but once you understand how they work and practice answering them, you should find them no more difficult than any other type of question. In this type of dialog, the first speaker makes a statement. The second speaker is surprised because the first statement contradicts what he or she believes to be true. The second speaker's response often begins with the word "Oh" and ends with the phrase "... after all." The answer to assumption questions is the reverse of what the second speaker thinks, and so what is "true" according to the first speaker is not the correct choice.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- F1: No, Judy's not here right now. She's at her economics class.
 M1: Oh, so she decided to take that course after all.
 M2: What had the man assumed about Judy?

You will read:

- (A) She wouldn't take the course.
 (B) She had already completed that course.
 (C) She was busy studying economics.
 (D) She wouldn't find economics difficult.

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The man is surprised that Judy is in economics class because he thought that she had decided not to take the course. Therefore, he had obviously assumed that Judy was not going to take the course before he spoke to the woman. ▲

C) Questions

The second speaker in a dialog sometimes asks about what the first speaker says. The third speaker then asks what the second speaker wants to know.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- F1: Professor Petrakis said that Mark Twain was his favorite writer.
 M1: When did he say that?
 M2: What does the man want to know?

You will read:

- (A) When Mark Twain lived.
- (B) What the professor said about Mark Twain.
- (C) When the professor made his remark.
- (D) What books Mark Twain wrote.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The man asks when Professor Petrakis called Mark Twain his favorite author. ▲

Two question phrases that may give you trouble are What . . . for? and How come . . . ? Both mean Why . . . ?

LESSON 9

ANSWERING QUESTIONS ABOUT ACTIVITIES, PLANS, TOPICS, AND PROBLEMSA) Questions About Activities

These questions follow dialogs that involve people talking about what they are doing. They are a kind of inference question because the activity itself is not mentioned in the dialog. Instead, you must determine the activity from the special vocabulary used by the speakers.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

F1: Is there room for that box up there?

M1: I can fit it in the trunk. And this suitcase should fit in the back seat.

M2: What are the speakers probably doing?

You will read:

(A) Boarding an airplane.

(B) Unpacking a box.

(C) Loading a car.

(D) Buying a suitcase.

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

The words box, trunk, suitcase, and back seat all indicate that the speakers are putting things into a car. ▲

B) Questions About Plans

These questions follow dialogs in which two speakers discuss what one or both of them are going to do in the future.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

F1: Are you going to go to Boston with Michael this summer?

M1: Wish I could, but if I want to graduate next year, I've got to stay here and take a couple classes.

(C) Visit Michael.

(D) Go to Boston.

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

The man indicates that he must stay where he is and take classes in order to graduate next year. ▲

C) Questions About Topics

The third speaker asks what the other two speakers are talking about. The topic is not usually mentioned directly in the dialog; it must be inferred from a general understanding of the dialog. The topic can be a person, a thing, or an activity.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- F1: Have you seen this letter from the bursar's office?
 F2: Oh, no, not another increase! If you ask me, we're already spending too much to go to school here.
 M2: What are these speakers talking about?

You will read:

- (A) Higher tuition costs.
 (B) A poor grade.
 (C) Higher postage rates.
 (D) A letter from a relative.

☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

From the fact that the letter comes from the bursar's office (the financial office of a university) and that the second woman is upset about an increase and feels they are spending too much to go to school, it is clear that they are talking about an increase in tuition. ▲

D) Questions About Problems

These questions follow dialogs in which the speakers are discussing some trouble one or both of them are having. The third speaker asks what the problem is.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- M2: Gordon, what happened to your window?
 M1: When I was painting the house last week, I hit it with the ladder.
 M2: What problem does Gordon probably have?

LESSON 10

DIALOGS WITH SPECIAL VERBS

A) Causative Verbs

These verbs indicate that someone causes someone else to do something. When a dialog contains a causative verb, you must understand who performs the action. The verbs have, get, make, and let are the most common causative verbs. They are used in the following patterns:

Have

have someone do something have something done

Dave had the mechanic fix his car.
Dave had his car fixed.

The causative verb have indicates that one person asks or pays another to do something. The subject of this sentence, Dave, does not perform the action. In the first sentence, the mechanic does. In the second sentence, an unnamed person does.

Get

get someone to do something get something done

Jerry got his cousin to cut his hair.
Jerry got his hair cut.

The causative verb get usually means to persuade someone to do something. Again note that the subject, Jerry, does not perform the action. In the first sentence, Jerry's cousin does. In the second sentence, an unnamed person does.

Make

make someone do something

Cathy made her son do his homework.

The causative verb make means to force someone or compel someone to do something. Cathy's son is compelled to do his homework.

Let

let someone do something

The boss let us go home.

The verb let means permit or allow. The boss gives permission; we go home.

▼ Sample Item

- M1: Did you speak to the head of the department?
F1: No, she had her assistant meet with me.
M2: What does the woman mean?

You will read:

- (A) She spoke to the head of the department.
(B) The head of the department had a meeting with her assistant.
(C) She met with the assistant to the head of the department.
(D) The assistant will soon become head of the department.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

According to the dialog, the head of the department directed her assistant to meet with the woman. ▲

B) Used to

The expression used to has two forms, each with different meanings:

used to + simple form

I used to live in New York.

means

I once lived in New York (but now I don't).

be/get + used to $\begin{cases} + \text{gerund (-ing verb)} \\ + \text{noun phrase} \end{cases}$

I'm not used to driving on the left side of road.

I'm not accustomed to driving on the left side.

I've finally gotten used to my new job.

means

I've finally become accustomed to my new job.

The dialogs in Part A sometimes take advantage of these two functions of used to.

▼ Sample Items

M1: He's a salesman now, but he used to be a truck driver.

About Extended Conversations

About Extended Conversations

The second part of the Listening Comprehension section consists of longer conversations between a man and a woman or (sometimes) between two men or two women. Each conversation lasts from thirty to ninety seconds. It is preceded by brief introductory comments. After each of the conversations, there are from three to five questions. The questions are separated by a twelve-second pause. You must decide which one of the four answer choices in your test book is the best answer for the question, then mark that answer on your answer sheet. You're not permitted to take notes. There are two longer conversations.

The Introductory Comments

These comments tell you which questions the conversation refers to and provide some brief information about the conversation:

- "Questions 31 to 34: Listen to two students talk about their psychology class."
- "Questions 31 to 35: Listen to a conversation about plans for a class trip."
- "Questions 35 to 38: Listen to two friends discussing a performance that they attended."
- "Questions 36 to 39: Listen to a conversation in a student housing office."
- "Questions 35 to 39: Listen to a conversation between two teaching assistants."

Not only do these introductory comments tell you to get ready to listen; they also tell you how many questions in your test book to preview at one time. Moreover, they give you a general idea of what to expect as you listen.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

M2: Listen to a conversation between two students.

F1: Bill, you're a physics major, aren't you?

M1: That's right.

F1: I need some advice. I want to take an introductory physics class, and I have to choose between two teachers, Professor Hunter and Professor McVey. Do you know much about them?

M1: I've taken classes from both of them. To tell you the truth, I don't really like Hunter's style of teaching. He doesn't seem to care if his students understand or not, and his lectures are pretty dry.

F1: Well, then, what about McVey? I've heard his course is difficult.

M1: It's not easy, but you'll learn a lot, and he always encourages his students to ask questions and join in discussions.

You will then hear:

M2: What does the woman ask Bill to do?

You will read:

(A) Give her information about two teachers.

(B) Help her with a physics assignment.

(C) Speak to a professor for her.

(D) Lead a discussion.

☒ (A) ☐ (B) ☐ (C) ☐ (D)

The woman asks Bill for some advice about the two professors who are teaching basic physics courses. Therefore, the best answer is (A).

You will then hear:

M2: What does Bill imply that the woman should do?

You will read:

(A) Change her major to physics.

(B) Discuss her problem with Professor Hunter.

(C) Sign up for an easy class.

(D) Take Professor McVey's class.

☐ (A) ☐ (B) ☐ (C) ☒ (D)

Bill speaks critically of Professor Hunter's teaching methods, but favorably of Professor McVey's, so he would probably advise her to take McVey's course. The best answer is (D). ▲

The Conversations

The extended conversations are similar to the Part A dialogs in style, but are longer. They frequently take place in a campus setting between two students or between a professor and a student.

The Questions

The questions may be overview questions or detail questions. The first question after the conversation is often an overview question. Overview questions require a broad understanding of the entire conversation. To answer them correctly, you must understand what both speakers say. There are several types of overview questions:

Type of Overview Question	Sample Question
Topic question	"What are the speakers discussing?"
Questions about setting (time and location)	"Where did this conversation take place?" "When did this conversation take place?"
Questions about the speakers	"Who are the speakers?" "What is the probable relationship between the speakers?"

It's important to listen carefully to the first few lines of an extended conversation to answer overview questions because this part of the talk often sets the scene. It often establishes the time and location of the conversation, the identity of the speakers, and the main idea of the rest of the conversation.

Detail questions ask about specific points in the conversation. The answer will usually be contained in what one speaker says. Detail questions follow the order of information in the conversation. In other words, the first of these questions refers to a point made early in the conversation, and the last asks about a point made near the end of the conversation. Most detail questions are factual questions; the answers are directly stated in the conversation. Many factual questions begin with these phrases:

According to the conversation, . . .
According to the man, . . .
According to the woman, . . .

A few of the detail questions are inference questions. In other words, the information is not directly given by the speakers; it can be concluded from the information that is stated, however.

What can be inferred from the man's comment about . . . ?
What does the man imply about . . . ?
What will the speakers probably try to do?

The Answer Choices

The four choices are all plausible answers for the question. Usually the answer choices are mentioned in some way in the conversation, but only one, the key, answers that particular question correctly.

Some people prefer to close their eyes or look away while listening to the extended conversations in order to concentrate on the voices on the audio. However, it is better if you read over the answer choices in the test book while listening. This technique is difficult, but it has several advantages:

- It allows you to get an overall sense of what the topic of the conversation will be.
- It enables you to anticipate what the questions will be, then concentrate on listening for those points.
- It permits you to confirm some of the details that you hear by comparing them with the answer choices in the test book.

In the next section of this Guide, you will practice previewing answer choices, listening to Part B conversations, and answering both overview and detail questions about the conversations.

TACTICS FOR EXTENDED CONVERSATIONS

- Be familiar with the directions, but remember that you cannot turn the page to look over answer choices while the directions are being read.
- Pay attention to the introductory comment for each conversation. These comments will tell you which items each conversation refers to and may give you an idea of what the conversation will be about.
- Preview the answer choices during the conversations and the pauses between questions. Try to guess what the questions will be.
- Listen for overall concepts:
 - Who is taking part in the conversation?
 - Where and when does the conversation take place?
 - What is the main topic of the conversation?

The answers to these questions are often suggested in the first few lines of the conversations.

- You are not permitted to take written notes, but try to take “mental notes” on specific details: facts, figures, dates, places, and so on. You can sometimes check the information you think you hear against information you read in the answer choices while you are previewing.
 - Answer items right away.
 - Never leave any blanks on your answer sheet. Always guess.

LESSON 11

ANTICIPATING QUESTIONS ABOUT THE EXTENDED CONVERSATIONS

When you are previewing the items in Part C, you should try to anticipate what the questions will be by the form of the answer choices. You usually won't be able to guess exactly what the question will be, but you can guess what type of question will be asked. For example, if the four answer choices are the names of places, a "Where . . ." question will be asked; if the answer choices are times of day or dates, you will hear a "When . . ." question. If you have some idea of what the question will be, you can focus your listening during the talks.

You can also get a good idea of the situation in which the conversation is taking place by previewing the items.

Remember: The introductory comments at the beginning of the conversation tell you which items to preview.

Exercise 11

Focus: Guessing the questions that will be asked about an extended conversation and the situation in which the conversation takes place by previewing answer choices.

Directions: Look over the answer choices below. First try to guess the general type of question that will be asked about each item. Then look at the list of questions after each group of items and match the letter of the appropriate question with the item. Then answer the question about the overall topic of the conversation. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 12

ANSWERING OVERVIEW QUESTIONS ABOUT EXTENDED CONVERSATIONS

After each extended conversation in Part B, there are four to five questions. Usually the first and sometimes the last question are overview questions. To answer these questions, you need an understanding of the whole conversation rather than of any specific point.

Overview Questions for the Extended Conversations

- What is the main topic of this conversation?
- What are these people primarily discussing?
- Where does this conversation take place?
- When does this conversation take place?
- What is the relationship between the speakers?
- What is the man's/woman's occupation?
- What is one speaker's attitude toward the other speaker?

Main topic questions must correctly summarize the conversation. Incorrect answers for these questions are too general, too specific, or incorrect according to the conversation.

Although these questions require an overall understanding of the conversations, the first few sentences often “set the scene.” In other words, the opening lines of the talk establish the time, place, and main topic. Read the opening lines of the extended conversation given below:

M1: (Answering phone) Hello?

F1: Hi, Rod, this is Rita—I'm in your nine o'clock class. I missed class because of a cold, and I was wondering if I could borrow your notes.

M1: I don't know if you could read my notes—I have terrible handwriting. But I can tell you what happened. Professor Phillips went over the material in Chapter 4, about different types of stars in our galaxy. And she talked about what the mid-term exam is going to be like.

F1: Uh-oh, you better tell me all about the mid-term—I really need to do well on it.

From this portion of a conversation, we learn that

- ... both of the speakers are students
- ... they are probably taking a course in astronomy
- ... the class is about halfway over (because they are taking mid-term exams)
- ... the rest of the talk will probably deal with the material that will be on the examination

Not all conversations begin with so much detail. However, it is important to concentrate on the opening lines to learn this kind of information.

Exercise 12

Focus: Listening to the opening lines of extended conversations, and answering overview questions about the topics, settings, and speakers.

Directions: Listen to the conversations and the questions about them. Then mark the answer choice—(A), (B), or (C)—that correctly completes the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

 Now start the audio.

LESSON 13

ANSWERING DETAIL QUESTIONS ABOUT EXTENDED CONVERSATIONS

Most of the questions in Part B are detail questions that require an understanding of specific points in the conversation. A majority of these questions are factual questions, asking what, where, when, why, and how much. To answer the question, you need to listen carefully.

Other questions are inference questions. As previously explained, the answers to inference questions are not directly stated, but are suggested by information in the lecture. Many of these questions begin, "What do the speakers imply about . . ." or "What can be inferred from the conversation about . . ."

Remember that the order of detail questions follows the order of the conversation. In other words, the first detail question will be about something mentioned early in the conversation while the last one is about something mentioned near the end of the conversation.

If anything in the conversation is emphasized, it will probably be asked about. In other words, if something one speaker says is repeated by the second speaker, or if one speaker talks about something in an emphatic tone of voice, there will probably be a question about that information, as in this section of a conversation:

M1: My project for my film-making class took me six weeks to finish.

F1: Six weeks! I can hardly believe it. Doesn't the teacher realize you have other classes too?

You can be fairly sure that there will be a question such as this: "How long did the man's project take to complete?"

Exercise 13.1

Focus: Answering detail and inference questions based on specific points in short portions of extended conversations.

Directions: You will hear three extended conversations, each one divided into several short portions. After each portion, there will be a number of questions based on that part of the talk. Mark the best answer choice—(A), (B), or (C)—for each question. The first one is done as an example.

Mini-Talks

About Mini-Talks

The third part of Section 1 consists of Mini-Talks. These are monologues (talks involving only one speaker). Each Mini-Talk lasts from thirty to ninety seconds. Like the Extended Conversations, they are preceded by introductory comments. After each talk, there are from three to five questions. The questions are separated by a twelve-second pause. You have to decide which of the four answer choices in the test book best answers the question, then mark that answer on your answer sheet. You are not allowed to take notes. There are three Mini-Talks.

The Introductory Comments

These comments tell you which questions the Mini-Talks refer to and provide some brief information about the conversation:

“Questions 35 to 40: Listen to a lecture given at a botanical garden.”

“Questions 35 to 38: Listen to a lecture given in a history class.”

The introductory comments tell you how many questions in your test book to preview at one time and give you a general idea of the topic of the talk.

▼ Sample Item

You will hear:

- M2: Listen to this lecture given in a university classroom.
 M1: Students, this evening we'll have a chance to observe a phenomenon that we've discussed several times in class. Tonight there will be a lunar eclipse. As we've said, when an eclipse of the Moon occurs, the Earth passes between the Sun and the Moon. Therefore, the shadow of the Earth moves across the surface of the Moon and obscures it. Because you won't be looking at the Sun, it is not necessary to use the special lenses and filters that you need when observing a solar eclipse. You can observe a lunar eclipse with your unaided eye or with a telescope, and photograph it with an ordinary camera. So if the weather's not cloudy tonight, go out and take a look at this eclipse of the Moon. I'm sure you'll find it interesting.

You will hear:

- M2: In what course is this lecture probably being given?

You will read:

- (A) Philosophy.
 (B) Meteorology.
 (C) Astronomy.
 (D) Photography.

☐ A ☐ B ☒ C ☐ D

The lecture concerns a lunar eclipse, a topic that would typically be discussed in an astronomy class.

You will hear:

- M2: According to the speaker, which of the following occurs during a lunar eclipse?

You will read:

- (A) The Earth's shadow moves across the Moon.
 (B) Clouds block the view of the Moon.
 (C) The Moon moves between the Earth and the Sun.
 (D) The Sun is too bright to be observed without special equipment.

☒ A ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The speaker says "the shadow of the Earth moves across the Moon and obscures it." The best answer is therefore (A). ▲

The Talks

The Mini-Talks are usually somewhat more formal in style than the Extended Conversations. Some of the talks resemble lectures given as part of a university course in history, literature, or biology, for example. Other Mini-Talks resemble talks you would hear at a university, but not in a classroom. For example, you might hear talks about campus organizations, registration procedures, or the services at a campus medical center. Still others have nothing to do with university life; you may hear a tour guide speaking to a group of tourists or a curator speaking to visitors at a museum.

The Questions

As with the Extended Conversations, the questions about Mini-Talks may be overview questions or detail questions. The first question after the talk is usually an overview question. Overview questions require an understanding of the entire conversation. There are several types of overview questions:

Type of Overview Question	Sample Question
Topic/main idea/ purpose questions	"What is the lecture mainly about?" "What is the speaker mainly talking about?" "What is the main idea of this lecture?" "Why is the speaker giving this talk?" "What is the main point of this lecture?"
Questions about setting (course, time, and location)	"In what course was this lecture probably given?" "Where was this talk probably given?" "When was this talk probably given?"
Questions about the speaker	"Who is the speaker?" "What is the speaker's occupation?"

You should listen carefully to the first few lines of the mini-talk to answer overview questions because this part of the talk often sets the scene. It often establishes the time and location of the conversation, the identity of the speaker, and the main idea of the rest of the conversation.

Detail questions ask about specific points in the talk. Detail questions follow the order of information in the lecture. In other words, the first of these questions refers to a point made early in the lecture; the last asks about a point made near the end of the lecture. Most detail questions are factual questions; the answers are directly stated in the talk. Some factual questions begin with these phrases:

According to the speaker, . . .
 According to the lecture, . . .

A few are inference questions. The answers to these are not directly stated in the talk; they are only suggested. These questions usually contain some form of the words infer or imply or the word probably.

What can be inferred about . . . ?
 What does the speaker imply about . . . ?
 What is probably true about . . . ?

The Answer Choices

The four choices are all plausible answers for the question. Usually the answer choices are mentioned in some way in the talk. As with the conversations, it is better to read over the answer choices in the test book while listening so that you can preview the answer choices than to look away or close your eyes.

In the next section of this Guide, you will practice previewing answer choices, listening to Part C Mini-Talks, and answering both overview and detail questions about the talks.

Tactics for Mini-Talks

- Be familiar with the directions, but remember that you cannot turn the page to look over answer choices while the directions are being read.
- Pay attention to the introductory comment for each talk. These comments will tell you which items each talk refers to and may give you an idea of what the talk will be about.
- Preview the answer choices while the talks are being read and during the pauses between questions. Try to guess what the questions and the topic will be.
- Listen for overall concepts:
 - Who is giving the talk?
 - Where and when is the talk being given?
 - What is the main topic or purpose of the talk?

The answers to these questions are often suggested in the first few lines of the talks.

- You are not permitted to take written notes, but try to take “mental notes” on specific details: facts, figures, dates, places, and so on. You can sometimes check the information you think you hear against information you read in the answer choices while you are previewing.
 - Answer items right away.
 - Never leave any blanks on your answer sheet. Always guess.

LESSON 14

ANTICIPATING QUESTIONS ABOUT MINI-TALKS

As in the other two parts of the Listening Comprehension section, you should preview the items in Part C and try to anticipate what the questions will be by the form of the answer choices. You may not be able to guess exactly what the questions will be, but you can guess what type of question will be asked. For example, if the four answer choices are the names of places, a "Where . . ." question will be asked; if the answer choices are times of day or dates, you will hear a "When . . ." question.

If you have some idea of what the question will be, you can focus your listening during the talks.

Exercise 14

Focus: Guessing what Part C questions will be asked by looking at the answer choices.

Directions: Look over the answer choices below. First try to guess the general type of question that will be asked about each item. Then look at the list of questions after each group of items and match the letter of the appropriate question with the item. One question in each set will not be used. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 15

ANSWERING OVERVIEW QUESTIONS ABOUT MINI-TALKS

After each talk in Part C, there are three or four questions. Usually the first question is an overview question. To answer this type of question, you need an understanding of the whole talk rather than of any specific point.

Overview Questions for the Mini-Talks

- What is the main idea/main point/main topic of the lecture?
- What is the purpose of this talk?
- Where was this lecture given?
- When was this talk given?
- In what course was this lecture given?
- What is the speaker's occupation?
- Who is the audience for this talk?

Main idea, main topic, and main point questions must correctly summarize the talk. Incorrect answers for these questions are usually too general, too specific, or incorrect according to the lecture.

Although these questions require an overall understanding of the talks, the first few sentences often “set the scene.” In other words, the opening lines of the talk frequently establish the time, place, and main topic. Read the opening lines of the Mini-Talk given below:

Good morning, everyone. As you probably know, this class is a continuation of a course that began last term. Last term we focused on American writers of the nineteenth century. Today we'll begin our study of twentieth-century novelists with a look at Ernest Hemingway.

From this introduction, we know that

- ... the speaker is a teacher
- ... the audience is a group of students
- ... the course is in American literature
- ... the talk will concern Ernest Hemingway

Not all talks will begin with so much detail. However, it is important to concentrate on the opening lines to learn this kind of information.

Exercise 15

Directions: Listen to the introductions and the questions about them. Then mark the answer choice—(A), (B), or (C)—that correctly completes the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 16

ANSWERING DETAIL QUESTIONS ABOUT MINI-TALKS

Most of the questions about Part C talks are detail questions that ask about specific points in the talk. The majority of these questions are factual questions, asking about facts, reasons, places, or dates mentioned by the speaker. This type of question often begins, "According to the speaker, . . ." Incorrect answers are often mentioned at some point in the talk but are not appropriate answers to the questions as asked.

You are not permitted to take written notes while listening to the lecture.

A few questions about the Part C talks are inference questions. Many of these questions begin, "What does the speaker imply about . . ." or "What can be inferred from the lecture about . . ."

As in Part B, if a speaker emphasizes a point in the lecture by going back to it or repeating it, there will probably be a question about it.

M: . . . Now, in the days of the California Gold Rush, the journey by ship from the East Coast to San Francisco took about six months. Can you imagine that—gold-seekers spent six months at sea just getting to California!

Guide to Structure and Written Expression

About Structure and Written Expression

The second section of TOEFL tests your understanding of English grammar and usage. This section is divided into two parts: Structure and Written Expression.

Structure (Sentence Completion)	15 items
Written Expression (Error Identification)	25 items
Totals	40 items
Time	25 minutes

Section 2 is important! Your best chance for improving your score on TOEFL in a short time is to improve your score on this section, and therefore pull up your total score. Although a wide range of grammar points are tested, there are certain points that appear again and again, and you can master these points with the information and practice this Guide provides. Also, there are fewer items in this part than in the other two, so each item that you answer correctly adds more to your total score.

Section 2 may seem less stressful for you than Section 1 because you don't have to divide your attention between the audio and the test book. It may seem less stressful than Section 3 because it is easier to finish all the items before time is called.

Section 2 sentences are generally about academic subjects: the physical sciences (such as astronomy or geology), the social sciences (such as psychology or economics), or the humanities (such as music or literature). You will not see sentences that deal with "controversial" subjects such as abortion, illegal drugs, or sensitive political issues.

Any cultural references in the sentences are to the culture of the United States or Canada. Many of the sentences contain references to people, places, and institutions that you will not be familiar with. (In fact, many North Americans are not familiar with these either!) It's not necessary to know these references; you should simply concentrate on the structure of the sentences. It's also not necessary to understand all the vocabulary in a sentence; you can often answer a question correctly without a complete understanding of that sentence.

There are two possible approaches to Section 2 problems: an analytical approach and an intuitive approach. A test-taker who uses the analytical approach quickly analyzes the grammar of a sentence to see what element is missing (in Structure) or which element is incorrect (in Written Expression). Someone who uses the second approach simply chooses the answer that "sounds right" (in Structure) or the one that "sounds wrong" (in Written Expression). Although this Guide emphasizes the first approach, the second can be useful too, especially for people who learned English primarily by speaking it and listening to it rather than by studying grammar and writing. If you aren't sure which approach works best for you, take Section 2 of one of the Practice Tests using the first method, and Section 2 of another test using the second approach. Did one approach give you a significantly better score? You can also combine the two approaches: if you get "stuck" (unable to choose an answer) using one method, you can switch to another.

Hint: An excellent way to prepare for Section 2 is to write your own Structure and Written Expression items. Write several items for each of the lessons in this part of the Guide. There's no better way to start thinking like a test-writer.

- Be familiar with the directions for both parts. Don't waste time reading the directions or examples. Begin immediately with question 1.
 - You can spend an average of about thirty seconds on each item. If an item seems difficult, make a guess and lightly mark the item on your answer sheet so that you can come back to it later. Erase all such marks before time is up. Don't spend too much time working on difficult items; it's better to work on items that you will probably get correct.
 - Never answer any item too quickly, even if it seems easy. Always consider all four answer choices. On both parts of this section, it's easy to make mistakes because of carelessness.
 - Never leave any answers blank. Always guess even if you have no idea what the answer is.
 - If you finish before time is called, go back and work on items that you found difficult. You are not permitted to go ahead to Section 3.

Now begin your preparation for Section 2 by taking the Sample Structure and Written Expression Test. Be sure to observe the twenty-five-minute time limit.

About Structure

Introduction

This part of the test consists of fifteen incomplete sentences. Some portion of each sentence has been replaced by a blank. Under each sentence, four words or phrases are listed. One of these completes the sentence grammatically and logically.

▼ Sample Item

Pepsin _____ an enzyme used in digestion.

- (A) that
- (B) is
- (C) of
- (D) being

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The sentence consists of a single clause (Pepsin is an enzyme) and a reduced (shortened) adjective clause (used in digestion). Each clause must contain a subject and a verb. There is a subject but no main verb. (The verbal form used is NOT the main verb in this sentence; it is a past participle.) Therefore, a main verb is needed. Only choices (B) and (D) are verb forms. However, an -ing verb can never be used alone as a main verb. The only possible choice is (B), the main verb is. ▲

What Is Tested in This Section?

In general, there are five main points tested. The chart below shows how these are presented in the next section of the Guide.

Main Testing Points	Lesson
Sentence Structure	Lesson 17: Incomplete Independent Clauses
	Lesson 18: Incomplete Adjective Clauses
	Lesson 19: Incomplete/Missing Participial Phrases
	Lesson 20: Incomplete/Missing Appositives
	Lesson 21: Incomplete Adverb Clauses
	Lesson 22: Incomplete Noun Clauses
	Lesson 23: Incomplete/Missing Prepositional Phrases
Word Order	Lesson 24: Word Order Items
Verbs and Verbals	Lesson 25: Items Involving Verb Problems
	Lesson 26: Incomplete/Missing Infinitive and Gerund Phrases
Proper Style	Lesson 27: Items Involving Parallel Structures
	Lesson 28: Items Involving Misplaced Modifiers
Word Choice	Lesson 29: Incomplete/Missing Comparisons
	Lesson 30: Missing Conjunctions
	Lesson 31: Missing Negative Words

The points practiced in the first group of lessons (Lessons 17 to 23) are tested on almost every TOEFL exam. The points in the second group (Lessons 24 to 31) are tested on many TOEFL exams.

What Is the Best Way to Answer Structure Items?

If the answer choices are fairly short, you should begin by taking a quick look at the answer choices to get an idea of what to look for when you read the sentence. A look at the answer choices can often tell you that you are looking at a problem involving verb forms, word order, parallel structure, misplaced modifiers, or others.

If the answer choices are long or complicated, begin by reading the stem. Don't analyze it word for word, but as you are reading, try to form a picture of the sentence's overall structure. How many clauses will there be in the complete sentence? Does each clause have a complete subject and verb? Is there a connecting word to join clauses? Are any other elements obviously missing?

Then look at the answer choices. If you're not sure of the answer, try to eliminate as many distractors as possible. Distractors in Structure are generally incorrect for one of the following reasons:

- A necessary word or phrase is missing, so the sentence is still incomplete.
- An unnecessary word or phrase is included.
- Part of the answer choice is ungrammatical when put into the stem.

Never choose an answer until you've read the sentence completely; sometimes an option seems to fit in the sentence unless you read every word.

After you have eliminated as many answer choices as possible, read the sentence quickly to yourself with the remaining choice or choices in place of the blank. If an answer doesn't "sound right," it probably isn't. If you still can't decide, guess and go on. If you have time, come back to these more difficult items later.

Punctuation clues can sometimes help you solve Structure problems. For example, if there are a series of items in a sentence separated by commas (A, B, and C), you will probably see a problem involving parallel structures.

Tactics for Structure

- If the answer choices are short, look them over before you read the sentence. Try to get an idea of what type of problem you are working with.
 - Read the sentence, trying to determine which elements are missing. Never choose an answer until you have read the entire sentence; sometimes an answer will seem to fit until you have read the last few words of the sentence.
 - Mark your choice immediately if the answer is obvious. If you're not sure, try to eliminate incorrect answers.
 - Read the sentence with the remaining answer choices in place of the blank. Choose the option that sounds best.
 - If you are still unable to decide on an answer, guess and go on. Lightly mark these items on your answer sheet and come back to them if time permits.
 - Go on to the second part of this section (Written Expression) as soon as you've finished Structure. Don't spend so much time working on Structure that you don't have enough time to finish Written Expression.

LESSON 17

INCOMPLETE INDEPENDENT CLAUSES

The structures practiced in this lesson are the ones that are most often tested in the Structure section. About 20% of all problems in the section (usually three or four per test) involve incomplete independent clauses.

A) Clauses

All sentences consist of one or more clauses. A simple sentence consists of one clause.

People need vitamins.
The man took a vitamin pill.
Judy lives in northern California.
In the summer, Tom walks to his office.

A compound sentence consists of two independent clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction (such as and and but).

The man took a vitamin pill, and he drank a glass of orange juice.
Judy lives in northern California now, but she was raised in Ohio.

A complex sentence consists of an independent clause (called the main clause) and a dependent (subordinate) clause. Subordinate clauses may be adverb clauses, noun clauses, or adjective clauses. In the sentences below, the independent clauses are italicized.

The man took a vitamin pill because he had a cold.
(independent clause + adverb clause)
I didn't realize that Nancy was here.
(independent clause + noun clause)
Tom walks to his office, which is located on Broadway, every day during the summer.
(independent clause + adjective clause)

All three types of subordinate clauses are commonly seen in the Structure part of the test, and each is considered in separate lessons (Lessons 18, 21, and 22). The emphasis in this chapter, however, is on the basic components of independent clauses.

B) Missing Subjects, Verbs, Objects, and Complements

All clauses have a subject and a verb. Clauses with an action verb often take a direct object as well.

Subject	Verb	Object
People	need	vitamins.

The verb missing from an independent clause may be a single-word verb (need, was, took, had, walked) or a verb phrase consisting of one or more auxiliary verbs and a main verb (will need, has been, should take, would have had, had walked). The verbs may be active (need, take) or passive (was needed, is taken).

The missing subject and direct object may be a noun (people, vitamins, Tom) a noun phrase (some famous people, a vitamin pill, my friend Tom) or a pronoun. (He, she, it, and they are subject pronouns; him, her, it and them are object pronouns.)

After the verb to be and certain other non-action verbs, a subject complement is used rather than a direct object. (Subject complements are also known as predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives.)

Subject	Verb	Complement
She	is	an architect.
The teacher	seemed	upset.

In the Structure section of TOEFL, it is common for any of these elements or a combination of two or more of these elements to be missing from the stem. The most common problem in Structure involves a missing verb. A missing subject and a missing subject-verb combination are common as well. The missing element may also be part of rather than all of the verb or noun phrase.

▼ Sample Items

The art of storytelling _____ almost as old as humanity.

- (A) that is
- (B) is
- (C) it is
- (D) being

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct answer supplies the missing verb. Choice (A) is incorrect because the word that is used to connect a relative clause to a main clause; in this sentence, there is only one verb, so there can only be one clause. Choice (C) is incorrect because there is an unnecessary repetition of the subject (The art of storytelling it . . .). Choice (D) is not correct because an -ing form (being) cannot be the main verb of a clause.

_____ a few of the sounds produced by insects can be heard by humans.

- (A) Only
- (B) There are only
- (C) That only
- (D) With only

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct answer completes the noun phrase that is the subject of the sentence. The expletive There in choice (B) is incorrectly used. In (C), the word That creates a noun clause, but each clause must have its own verb. (Produced is used as a participle, not a main verb, in this sentence.) Choice (D) is incorrect because a preposition may not be used directly before the subject.

_____ when lava cools very rapidly.

- (A) Because pumice is formed
- (B) To form pumice
- (C) Pumice is formed
- (D) Forming pumice

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The best answer supplies an independent clause to join to the adverb clause when lava cools very rapidly. Choice (A) consists of an adverb clause; two adverb clauses cannot be joined to form a complete sentence. Choices (B) and (D) are incorrect because they do not contain main verbs, and an independent clause must contain a main verb. (To form and forming are not main verbs.) Only choice (C) could serve as an independent clause because it contains a subject (Pumice) and a full verb, the passive verb is formed.

Duke Ellington wrote _____ during his career.

- (A) that over a thousand songs
- (B) over a thousand songs
- (C) over a thousand songs were
- (D) there were over a thousand songs

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

The direct object is missing from this sentence. In choice (A), the connecting word that is used unnecessarily. In (C), the verb were is used unnecessarily because there is only one clause and it has a verb (wrote). In choice (D) the phrase there were is not needed between a verb and its direct object. Choice (B) correctly supplies a noun phrase that serves as the direct object.

Before the invention of the printing press, books _____.

- (A) that were very rare
- (B) were very rarely
- (C) were very rare
- (D) as very rare

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

Choice (A) incorrectly forms an adjective clause; an adjective must be joined to a main clause. Choice (B) contains an adverb; after the verb to be, an adjective is required. Choice (D) lacks a verb. Choice (C) correctly supplies a verb (were). ▲

C) Clauses with There and It

Some clauses begin with the introductory words there or it rather than with the subject of the sentence. These introductory words are sometimes called expletives.

The expletive there shows that someone or something exists, usually at a particular time or place. These sentences generally follow the pattern there + verb to be + subject:

There are many skyscrapers in New York City.
There was a good movie on television last night.

The expletive it is used in a number of different situations and patterns:

It is important to be punctual for appointments.
(with the verb to be + adjective + infinitive)
It was in 1959 that Alaska became a state.
(with the verb to be + adverbial + noun clause)
It takes a long time to learn a language.
(with the verb to take + time phrase + infinitive)
It was David who did most of the work.
(with the verb to be + noun + relative clause)

It and there, along with the verb and other sentence elements, may be missing from the stem.

▼ Sample Items

In Michigan, _____ over six hundred feet deep.

- (A) salt deposits
- (B) where salt deposits are
- (C) having salt deposits
- (D) there are salt deposits

(A) (B) (C) ☒

Choice (D) correctly supplies an introductory word (there), a verb, and a subject. Choice (A) lacks a verb. Choice (B) contains a subordinator, used to introduce a clause; there is only one verb, however, so there can only be one clause. Choice (C) also lacks a main verb.

_____ a tomato plant from 75 to 85 days to develop into a mature plant with ripe fruit.

- (A) It takes
- (B) To take
- (C) That takes
- (D) By taking

☒ (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) correctly completes the sentence with the introductory word It and a verb. Choice (B) and (D) do not supply main verbs. Choice (C) incorrectly creates a noun clause. ▲

Exercise 17

Focus: Completing structure problems involving incomplete independent clauses. (Note: Three or four items in this exercise do not focus on missing subjects, verbs, complements, or introductory words; these items are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentences, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 18

INCOMPLETE ADJECTIVE CLAUSES

As mentioned in the previous lesson, there are three types of dependent clauses, all of which are tested in Structure. Adjective clauses—also called relative clauses—are the most commonly tested of the three. You will see one or two items involving adjective clauses on most tests.

Adjective clauses are a way of joining two sentences. In the joined sentence, the adjective clause modifies (describes) a noun (called the head noun) in another clause of the sentence. It begins with an adjective clause marker.

I wanted the book. The book had already been checked out.

The book which I wanted had already been checked out.

The adjective clause in this example begins with the marker which and modifies the head noun book.

Adjective clause markers are relative pronouns such as who, that, or which or the relative adverbs when or where.

Adjective Clause Marker	Use	Example
who	Subject (people)	A neurologist is a doctor who specializes in the nervous system.
whom	Object (people)	This is the patient whom the doctor treated.
whose	Possessive (people)	Mr. Collins is the man whose house I rented.
which	Subject/Object (things)	That is a topic which interests me. (which as subject) That is the topic on which I will write. (which as object of preposition) that	Subject/Object (people/things)	Art that is in public places can be enjoyed by everyone. (that as subject) The painting that Ms. Wallace bought was very expensive. (that as object)
where	Adverb (place)	Here is the site where the bank plans to build its new headquarters.
when	Adverb (time)	This is the hour when the children usually go to bed.

Like all clauses, adjective clauses must have a subject and a verb. In some cases the adjective-clause marker itself is the subject; in some cases, there is another subject.

The painting was very expensive. Ms. Wallace bought it.

The painting which Ms. Wallace bought was very expensive.

The adjective-clause marker in the joined sentence replaces it, the object of the verb bought. In the joined sentence, the adjective clause keeps the subject—Ms. Wallace—that it had in the original sentence.

This is a topic. It interests me.

This is a topic that interests me.

The adjective-clause marker in the joined sentence replaces it, the subject of the second original sentence. In the joined sentence, the marker itself is the subject of the adjective clause. Notice that the inclusion of the pronoun it in the joined sentences above would be an error.

Incorrect: *The painting which Ms. Wallace bought it was very expensive.

*This is a topic which it interests me.

This type of mistake is sometimes seen in distractors.

When the markers which, that, and whom are used as objects in relative clauses, they can correctly be omitted.

The painting Ms. Wallace bought is very expensive. (which omitted)

The adjective-clause markers which and whom can also be used as objects of prepositions:

That is the topic. I will write on it.

That is the topic on which I will write.

You may also see sentences with adjective clauses used in this pattern:

quantity word + of + relative clause

He met with two advisors. He had known both of them for years.

He met with two advisors, both of whom he had known for years.

I read a number of articles. Most of them were very useful.

I read a number of articles, most of which were very useful.

Any part of a relative clause can be missing from the stem of Structure items, but most often, the marker and the subject (if there is one) and the verb are missing. Any word or phrase from another clause—usually the head noun—may also be missing from the stem.

▼ Sample Items

Cable cars are moved by cables _____ underground and are powered by a stationary engine.

- (A) they run
- (B) that they run
- (C) run
- (D) that run

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect because the pronoun they cannot be used to join two clauses. Choice (B) is not appropriate because the subject they is not needed in the adjective clause; the marker that serves as the subject of the clause. Choice (C) is incorrect because there is no marker to join the adjective clause to the main clause.

The melting point is the temperature _____ a solid changes to a liquid.

- (A) which
- (B) at which
- (C) which at
- (D) at

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect because a preposition is needed before the adjective clause.
 Choice (C) is incorrect because the relative pronoun comes before the preposition.
 Choice (D) is incorrect because the relative pronoun has been omitted.

There are six types of flamingos, all _____ have long legs, long necks, and beaks that curve sharply downward.

- (A) of them
- (B) that
- (C) of which
- (D) they

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choices (A) and (D) do not contain connecting words needed to join clauses. Choice (B) does not follow the correct pattern of relative clauses after a quantity word (all). The correct pattern needed to complete this sentence is quantity word + of + marker. Only (C) follows this pattern. ▲

Exercise 18

Focus: Answering structure problems involving incomplete adjective clauses. (Note: One or two items in this exercise do not focus on adjective clauses; these items are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

LESSON 19

INCOMPLETE OR MISSING PARTICIPIAL PHRASES

Participial phrases generally occur after nouns. They are actually reduced (shortened) relative clauses. Present participles (which always end in -ing) are used to reduce adjective clauses that contain active verbs.

Minnesota, which joined the Union in 1858, became the thirty-second state.
(adjective clause with active verb)

Minnesota, joining the Union in 1858, became the thirty-second state.
(participial phrase with a present participle)

Most past participles end in -ed, but there are also many irregular forms. Past participles are used to reduce adjective clauses with passive verbs.

William and Mary College, which was founded in 1693, is the second oldest university in the United States.
(adjective clause with a passive verb)

William and Mary College, founded in 1693, is the second oldest university in the United States.
(participial phrase with a past participle)

Participial phrases can also come before the subject of a sentence.

Joining the Union in 1858, Minnesota became the thirty-second state.

Founded in 1693, William and Mary College is the second oldest university in the United States.

Usually, the participle itself is missing from this type of Structure item, but any part of a participial phrase as well as parts of a main clause may be missing.

▼ Sample Item

Natural resources provide the raw materials _____ to produce finished goods.

- (A) needed
- (B) are needed
- (C) which need
- (D) needing

☒ (A) ☐ (B) ☐ (C) ☐ (D)

Option (B) is a passive verb; the sentence cannot contain two main verbs (are needed and provide) in the same clause. Choice (C) creates an adjective clause, but the verb in the clause is active and a passive verb is required. (However, a relative clause with a passive verb (which are needed) would be a correct answer.) Choice (D) is a present participle and has an active meaning; a past participle is needed. ▲

Exercise 19

Focus: Completing structure problems involving incomplete or missing participial phrases. (Note: One or two items in this exercises do not focus on participial phrases; these items are marked on the answer key with asterisks.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentence, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 20

INCOMPLETE OR MISSING APPOSITIVES

An appositive is a noun phrase that explains or rephrases another noun phrase. It usually comes after the noun which it rephrases. It may also come before the subject of a sentence.

Buffalo Bill, a famous frontiersman, operated his own Wild West Show.
(appositive following a noun)

A famous frontiersman, Buffalo Bill operated his own Wild West Show.
(appositive before the subject)

Appositives are actually reduced adjective clauses. However, unlike adjective clauses, they do not contain a marker or a verb.

Oak, which is one of the most durable hardwoods, is often used to make furniture.
(adjective clause)

Oak, one of the most durable hardwoods, is often used to make furniture.
(appositive)

Appositives are usually separated from the rest of the sentence by commas, but some short appositives (usually names) are not.

Economist Paul Samuelson won a Nobel Prize in 1970.

In Structure items, all or part of an appositive phrase may be missing. In addition, the noun that the appositive refers to or other parts of the main clause may be missing.

▼ Sample Item

The National Road, _____ of the first highways in North America, connected the East Coast to the Ohio Valley.

- (A) which one
- (B) it was one
- (C) one
- (D) was one

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect; there is no verb in the relative clause. Choice (B) has no connecting word to join the clause to the rest of the sentence. Choice (D) is incorrect because a verb cannot be used in an appositive phrase. Note: which was one would also be a correct answer. ▲

Exercise 20

Focus: Completing structure problems involving appositives. (Note: The focus for one or two items in this exercises is not appositives; these sentences are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentences, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 21

INCOMPLETE ADVERB CLAUSES

A) Full Adverb Clauses

An adverb clause consists of a connecting word, called an adverb clause marker (or subordinate conjunction), and at least a subject and a verb.

The demand for economical cars increases when gasoline becomes more expensive.

In this example, the adverb clause marker when joins the adverb clause to the main clause. The adverb clause contains a subject (gasoline) and a verb (becomes).

An adverb clause can precede the main clause or follow it. When the adverb clause comes first, it is separated from the main clause by a comma.

When gasoline becomes more expensive, the demand for economical cars increases.

The following markers are commonly seen in the Structure section:

Adverb Clause Marker	Use	Example
because	cause	Because the speaker was sick, the program was canceled.
since	cause	Since credit cards are so convenient, many people use them.
although	opposition (contrary cause)	Although he earns a good salary, he never saves any money.
even though	opposition (contrary cause)	Even though she was tired, she she stayed up late.
while	contrast	Some people arrived in taxis while others took the subway.
if	condition	If the automobile had not been invented, what would people use for basic transportation?
unless	condition	I won't go unless you do.
when	time	Your heart rate increases when you exercise
while	time	Some people like to listen to music while they are studying.
as	time	One train was arriving as another was departing.
since	time	We haven't seen Professor Hill since she returned from her trip.
until	time	Don't put off going to the dentist until you have a problem.
once	time	Once the dean arrives, the meeting can begin.
before	time	Before he left the country, he bought some traveler's checks.
after	time	She will give a short speech after she is presented with the award.

In Structure items, any part of a full adverb clause—the marker, the subject, the verb, and so on—can be missing from the stem.

B) Clause Markers with -ever

Words that end with -ever are sometimes used as adverb clause markers. (In some sentences, these words are actually noun-clause markers, but they are seldom used that way in Structure items.)

The three -ever words that you are likely to see in the Structure Section are given in the chart below:

Adverb Clause Marker with -ever	Meaning	Example
wherever	any place that . . .	Put that box wherever you can find room for it.
whenever	any time that . . .	They stay at that hotel whenever they're in Boston.
however	any way that . . .	However you solve the problem, you'll get the same answer.

C) Reduced Adverb Clauses

When the subject of the main clause and the subject of the adverb clause are the same person or thing, the adverb clause can be reduced (shortened). Reduced adverb clauses do not contain a main verb or a subject. They consist of a marker and a participle (either a present or a past participle) or a marker and an adjective.

When astronauts are orbiting the earth, they don't feel the force of gravity.
(full adverb clause)

When orbiting the earth, astronauts don't feel the force of gravity.
(reduced clause with present participle)

Although it had been damaged, the machine was still operational.
(full adverb clause)

Although damaged, the machine was still operational.
(reduced clause with a past participle)

Although he was nervous, he gave a wonderful speech.
(full adverb clause)

Although nervous, he gave a wonderful speech.
(reduced clause with an adjective)

You will most often see reduced adverb clauses with the markers although, while, if, when, before, after, and until. Reduced adverb clauses are NEVER used after because.

In Structure items, any part of a full adverb clause—the marker, the subject, the verb, and so on—can be missing from the stem.

B) Clause Markers with -ever

Words that end with -ever are sometimes used as adverb clause markers. (In some sentences, these words are actually noun-clause markers, but they are seldom used that way in Structure items.)

The three -ever words that you are likely to see in the Structure Section are given in the chart below:

Adverb Clause Marker with -ever	Meaning	Example
wherever	any place that . . .	Put that box wherever you can find room for it.
whenever	any time that . . .	They stay at that hotel whenever they're in Boston.
however	any way that . . .	However you solve the problem, you'll get the same answer.

C) Reduced Adverb Clauses

When the subject of the main clause and the subject of the adverb clause are the same person or thing, the adverb clause can be reduced (shortened). Reduced adverb clauses do not contain a main verb or a subject. They consist of a marker and a participle (either a present or a past participle) or a marker and an adjective.

When astronauts are orbiting the earth, they don't feel the force of gravity.
(full adverb clause)

When orbiting the earth, astronauts don't feel the force of gravity.
(reduced clause with present participle)

Although it had been damaged, the machine was still operational.
(full adverb clause)

Although damaged, the machine was still operational.
(reduced clause with a past participle)

Although he was nervous, he gave a wonderful speech.
(full adverb clause)

Although nervous, he gave a wonderful speech.
(reduced clause with an adjective)

You will most often see reduced adverb clauses with the markers although, while, if, when, before, after, and until. Reduced adverb clauses are NEVER used after because.

D) Prepositional Phrases with the Same Meaning as Adverb Clauses

There are also certain prepositions that have essentially the same meaning as adverb-clause markers but are used before noun phrases or pronouns, not with clauses.

Preposition	Related Marker	Example
because of	because/since	He chose that university because of its fine reputation.
due to	because/since	The accident was due to mechanical failure.
on account of	because/since	Visibility is poor today on account of air pollution.
in spite of	although/even though	He enjoys motorcycle riding in spite of the danger.
despite	although/even though	Despite its loss, the team is still in first place.
during	when/while	Her father lived in England during the war.

In structure items where the correct answer is an adverb-clause marker, one of these words often appears as a distractor.

▼ Sample Items

No one knows what color dinosaurs were _____ no sample of their skin has survived.

- (A) because of
- (B) because that
- (C) it is because
- (D) because

(A) (B) (C) ☒

Choice (A) is incorrect; because of can only be used before nouns or pronouns. In choice (B), that is unnecessary. In (C), the phrase it is is used unnecessarily.

_____ rises to the surface of the earth, a volcano is formed.

- (A) Liquid magma
- (B) Whenever liquid magma
- (C) Liquid magma, which
- (D) That liquid magma

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

Choice (A) creates two clauses, but there is no connecting word to join them. (C) creates a sentence with a main clause and an adjective clause, but the main clause has two subjects (liquid magma and a volcano). (D) creates a noun clause. In a correct sentence, when a noun clause begins a sentence, the clause itself is the subject of the verb in the main clause, but this sentence already has a subject (volcano).

_____ invisible to the unaided eye, ultraviolet light can be detected in a number of ways.

- (A) Although is
- (B) Despite
- (C) Even though it
- (D) Although

(A) (B) (C) ☒

The best answer completes a reduced adverb clause. In choice (A), the adverb clause lacks a subject and is not a correct reduction because it contains a verb. In choice (B), despite cannot be used with an adjective (only with a noun phrase or pronoun). (C) does not supply a verb for the adverb clause and is not a correct reduction because it contains a subject.

Because _____, alabaster can be easily carved.

- (A) is soft
- (B) softness
- (C) of its softness
- (D) of soft

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

Choice (A) lacks a subject in the adverb clause. Choice (B), a noun, could only be used with because of. In (D), because of is followed by an adjective; to be correct, it must be followed by a noun phrase or pronoun. ▲

Exercise 21

Focus: Completing structure problems involving adverb clauses, reduced adverb clauses, and related prepositional expressions. (Note: Two or three items do not focus on one of these structures. These items are marked in the answer key with an asterisk.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentences, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 22

INCOMPLETE NOUN CLAUSES

Noun clauses are the third type of subordinate clause. They begin with noun-clause markers.

Noun clauses that are formed from statements begin with the noun-clause marker that. Noun clauses formed from yes/no questions begin with the noun-clause markers whether or if. Those formed from information questions begin with wh- words: what, where, when, and so on.

Dr. Hopkins' office is in this building.

(statement) I'm sure that Dr. Hopkins' office is in this building.

Is Dr. Hopkins' office on this floor?

(yes/no question) I don't know if (whether) Dr. Hopkins' office is on this floor.

Where is Dr. Hopkins' office?

(information question) Please tell me where Dr. Hopkins' office is.

Notice that the word order in direct questions is not the same as it is in noun clauses. The noun clause follows statement word order (subject + verb), not question word order (auxiliary + subject + main verb). Often one of the distractors for noun-clause items will incorrectly follow question word order.

*I don't know what is her name.

(Incorrect use of question word order)

I don't know what her name is.

(Correct word order)

*She called him to ask what time did his party start.

(Incorrect use of question word order)

She called him to ask what time his party started.

(Correct word order)

Noun clauses function exactly as nouns do: as subjects, as direct objects, or as complements after the verb to be.

When the meeting will be held has not been decided.

(noun clause as subject)

The weather announcer said that there will be thunderstorms.

(noun clause as direct object)

This is what you need.

(noun clause after to be)

Notice that when the noun clause is the subject of a sentence, the verb in the main clause does not have a noun or pronoun subject.

In Structure items, the noun-clause marker, along with any other part of the noun clause—subject, verb, and so on—may be missing from the stem, or the whole noun clause may be missing.

▼ Sample Items

_____ was caused by breathing impure air was once a common belief.

- (A) Malaria
- (B) That malaria
- (C) Why malaria
- (D) Because malaria

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect because there are two verbs (was caused and was) but only one subject. Choice (C) is incorrect because Why is not the appropriate noun-clause marker in this sentence; the noun clause is based on a statement, not on an information question. Choice (D) is incorrect because it forms an adverb clause, but the main clause lacks a subject. In the correct answer the noun clause itself (That malaria was caused by breathing impure air) is the subject of the verb was in the main clause.

One basic question psychologists have tried to answer is _____.

- (A) people learn
- (B) how do people learn
- (C) people learn how
- (D) how people learn

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect; there is no connector between the first clause and the second. Choice (B) incorrectly follows question word order. (C) is incorrect because how is in the wrong position. ▲

LESSON 23

MISSING OR INCOMPLETE PREPOSITIONAL PHRASES

A prepositional phrase consists of a preposition (in, at, with, for, until, and so on) followed by a noun phrase or pronoun, which is called the prepositional object. Prepositional phrases often describe relationships of time and location, among others.

In the autumn, maple leaves turn red.

With luck, there won't be any more problems.

This house was built by John's grandfather.

Often, prepositional phrases come at the beginning of sentences, but they may appear in other parts of the sentence as well.

The correct answer for this type of item may be a preposition, its object, or both, as well as other parts of the sentence.

You may see prepositions in distractors, especially before the subject of a sentence. Remember, the object of a preposition cannot correctly be the subject of a sentence, as in these examples:

In the autumn* is my favorite season.

Without a pencil* is no way to come to a test.

▼ Sample Items

_____ the unaided eye can see about 6,000 stars.

- (A) A clear night
- (B) It's a clear night
- (C) On a clear night
- (D) When a clear night

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is incorrect because there is no connector to join the noun phrase a clear night to the rest of the sentence. Choice (B) consists of an independent clause, but there is no connector to join it to the other clause. (D) seems to form a subordinate clause, but the clause lacks a verb.

_____ all the field crops grown in the United States are harvested with machines called combines.

- (A) Of nearly
- (B) Nearly
- (C) That nearly
- (D) Nearly of

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choices (A) and (D) are incorrect because the subject of a sentence (all the field crops) cannot be the object of a preposition (of). Choice (C) creates a noun clause, but the noun clause lacks a verb. ▲

Exercise 23

Focus: Completing structure problems involving prepositional phrases. (Note: One or two items in this exercises do not focus on prepositional phrases. These items are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

WORD ORDER ITEMS

All of the answer choices for a Structure item involving word order contain more or less the same words, but they are arranged in four different orders. The word order is “scrambled” in three choices; one is correct. Most items consist of three or four words.

- (A) X Y Z
- (B) Y X Z
- (C) Z Y X
- (D) X Z Y

Word order problems are easy to identify because the answer choices are exactly—or almost exactly—the same length, so the answer choices form a rectangle.

- (A) so far away from
- (B) away so far from
- (C) from so far away
- (D) away from so far

Many different types of structures are used in word order problems. One of the most common is a phrase with a superlative adjective or adverb.

Word order items are the only Structure items in which the distractors can be ungrammatical. In other Structure problems, distractors are always correct in some context. However, at least two of the choices may be grammatical. The correct choice depends on the context of the sentence.

It sometimes is easy to eliminate distractors in word order items by making sure they “fit” the rest of the sentence. If you are not sure which remaining answer is correct, use your “ear.” Say the sentence to yourself (silently) to see which sounds best. Sometimes in word order problems, the answer that looks best doesn’t always sound best. Don’t, however, go just by the sound of the answer choices; you must consider them as part of the whole sentence.

A special type of word order problem involves inversions. This type of sentence uses question word order even though the sentence is not a question. When are inversions used?

- When the negative words listed below are placed at the beginning of a clause for emphasis not only	never not until	seldom

not once	rarely
at no time	scarcely
by no means	no sooner nowhere

Not once was he on time.

Seldom have I heard such beautiful music.

Not only did the company lose profits, but it also had to lay off workers.

- When the following expressions beginning with only occur at the beginning of a sentence (with these expressions, the subject and verb in that clause are inverted)

only in (on, at, by, etc.)	only recently only once

Only in an emergency should you use this exit.

Only recently did she return from abroad.

Only by asking questions can you learn.

- When the following expressions beginning with only occur at the beginning of a sentence (with these expressions the subject and verb of the second clause are inverted) only if	only when only because	only after only until

Only if you have a serious problem should you call Mr. Franklin at home.

Only when you are satisfied is the sale considered final.

- When clauses beginning with the word so + an adjective or participle occur at the beginning of a sentence

So rare is this coin that it belongs in a museum.

So confusing was the map that we had to ask a police officer for directions.

- When clauses beginning with expressions of place or order occur at the start of a sentence (in these cases, the subject and main verb are inverted since auxiliary verbs are not used as they would be in most questions)

In front of the museum is a statue.

Off the coast of California lie the Channel Islands.

First came a police car; then came an ambulance.

Andromeda is a galaxy containing millions of individual stars, but it is _____ Earth that it looks like a blurry patch of light.

- (A) so far away from
- (B) away so far from
- (C) from so far away
- (D) away from so far

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

Only choice (A) involves the correct word order for this sentence. Choices (B) and (D) are incorrect word orders in any sentence. Choice (C) could be correct in certain sentences, but is not correct in the context of this sentence.

Not only _____ shade and beauty, but they also reduce carbon dioxide.

- (A) do trees provide
- (B) trees provide
- (C) provide trees
- (D) trees do provide

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

Only choice (A) correctly uses question word order after not only. Choices (B) and (C) do not use an auxiliary verb, which is required after not only. Choice (D) does not follow the correct word order: auxiliary + adjective + main verb. ▲

20. Nashville has _____ the capital of country music.
_____ (A) as long been known
_____ (B) been known long as _____ (C) long been known as _____ (D) long as been known

LESSON 25ITEMS INVOLVING VERB PROBLEMS

The answer choices for this type of problem are all or almost all different forms of the same verb. From the context of the sentence stem, you'll have to decide which form works best in the sentence. Distractors are generally incorrect for one of these reasons:

■ The “verb” is not really a verb.

Used alone, an infinitive, gerund, or participle cannot be a main verb.

■ The verb is active but should be passive, or it is passive but should be active.

If the subject of the sentence performs the action, the verb must be in the active voice. If the subject of the sentence receives the action, the verb must be in the passive.

The architect designed the building.

(active verb)

The building was designed by the architect.

(passive verb)

■ The verb does not agree with its subject.

Singular subjects require singular verbs; plural subjects require plural verbs.

■ The verb is not in the right tense.

According to the time words or ideas in the sentence, the appropriate tense must be used.

■ An unnecessary element comes before the verb.

Personal pronouns (he, she, it), relative pronouns (who, which, that, and so on), or conjunctions (and, but, and so on) may be used unnecessarily before verbs in some sentences.

▼ Sample Item

Before the late eighteenth century, most textiles _____ at home.

- (A) produced
- (B) was produced
- (C) producing
- (D) were produced

(A) (B) (C) ☒

Choice (D) is the best answer. (A) can be considered either an active verb in the past tense or a past participle; both are incorrect. An active verb is incorrect because a passive verb is needed; a past participle is incorrect because a past participle cannot serve as a main verb. (B) is incorrect because the plural subject textiles requires a plural verb, were. (C) is incorrect because, by itself, an -ing form can never be a main verb. ▲

Exercise 25

Focus: Completing structure problems involving verb forms. (Note: One or two items in this exercises do not focus on finite verb forms. These items are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentence, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 26

INCOMPLETE OR MISSING INFINITIVE AND GERUND PHRASES

An infinitive is a verbal form that consists of the word to and the simple form of the verb: to be, to go, to give, to build. Infinitives are often followed by an object: to give directions, to build a house. Together, an infinitive and its object form an infinitive phrase.

Infinitives can be used in a variety of ways. They may be the subjects or objects of verbs or used after to be + adjective.

To read the directions is important. (infinitive as subject of a verb)

He forgot to read the directions. (infinitive as object of a verb)

It's important to read the directions. (infinitive after to be + adjective)

Infinitives can be used as adjective phrases after noun phrases. You will often see this in Structure problems after noun phrases containing the word first.

John Glenn was the first American to orbit the Earth.

Infinitives can also be used to show purpose. In other words, they explain why an action takes place. (The phrase in order + infinitive also shows purpose.) These infinitive phrases often come at the beginning of a sentence, and are set off by commas.

To learn how to dance, he took lessons.

In order to learn how to dance, he took lessons.

You may see Structure items that focus on passive infinitives. A passive infinitive consists of the word to + be + past participle.

Roberta was the first person to be asked to speak at the meeting.

A gerund is a verbal form that ends in -ing: being, going, giving, building. Like infinitives, gerunds are often followed by objects: giving directions, building a house. Together, a gerund and its object form a gerund phrase.

Gerunds are verbal nouns, and are used as other nouns are used. You will generally see gerunds as subjects or objects of verbs or as objects of prepositions. (Note: Infinitives can also be subjects and objects but never objects of prepositions.)

Playing cards is enjoyable. (gerund as subject of a verb)

He enjoys playing cards. (gerund as object of a verb)

He passes the time by playing cards. (gerund as object of a preposition)

▼ Sample Items

_____ the eggs of most birds must be kept warm.

- (A) Proper development
- (B) By properly developing,
- (C) They develop properly
- (D) To develop properly,

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The only one of these four phrases listed here that can show purpose is choice (D), an infinitive. This expression means in order to develop properly.

In 1959 the political philosopher Hannah Arendt became the first woman _____ a full professor at Princeton University.

- (A) to appoint
- (B) was appointed
- (C) to be appointed
- (D) an appointment as

(A) (B) ☒ (C) (D)

After a noun phrase such as the first woman an infinitive is used as an adjective phrase. Because a passive form is needed (Hannah Arendt receives the action; she doesn't perform the action), choice (A) is not the correct infinitive form. Choice (C), a passive infinitive, is best.

The ear is the organ of hearing, but it also plays a role in _____ balance.

- (A) maintaining
- (B) it maintains
- (C) to maintain
- (D) maintained

☒ (A) (B) (C) (D)

A gerund is used correctly after a preposition. Choices (B), (C), and (D) would not be appropriate after a preposition. ▲

Exercise 26

LESSON 27

ITEMS INVOLVING PARALLEL STRUCTURES

In certain Structure items, the correct use of parallel structures is tested. Parallel structures have the same grammatical form and function. Look at the following sentences:

She spends her leisure time biking, camping, and fishing.

He changed the oil, checked the tire pressure, and filled the tank with gas.

Nancy plans to either study medicine or major in biology.

Nancy plans to study either medicine or biology.

All of the structures in italics are parallel. In the first, three gerunds are parallel; in the second, three main verbs; in the third, two simple forms; in the fourth, two nouns. Many other structures must be parallel in certain sentences: adjectives, adverbs, infinitives, prepositional phrases, noun clauses, and others.

The most common situation in which parallel structures are required is in a sequence (A, B, and C) as in the first two sentences above. Parallel structures are also required with correlative conjunctions such as either . . . or or not only . . . but also. (Correlative conjunctions are presented in Lesson 30.)

▼ Sample Item

San Francisco has a pleasant climate, _____ and many fascinating neighborhoods.

- (A) exciting scenery,
- (B) has exciting scenery
- (C) that the scenery is exciting
- (D) the scenery is exciting,

☒ (A) ☐ (B) ☐ (C) ☐ (D)

This sentence contains a series of three objects after the verb has: the first and third are noun phrases (a pleasant climate and many fascinating neighborhoods). To be parallel, the second object must also be a noun phrase. Therefore, choice (A) is the correct answer; (B), (C), and (D) are not parallel. ▲

Exercise 27

Focus: Completing structure problems involving parallelism. (Note: One or two items in the exercise do not focus on items involving parallel structures. These items are marked in the answer key with asterisks.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentence, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 28

ITEMS INVOLVING MISPLACED MODIFIERS

A misplaced modifier is a participial phrase or other modifier that comes before the subject, but does not refer to the subject.

Look at this sentence:

*Driving down the road, a herd of sheep suddenly crossed the road in front of Liza's car.
(INCORRECT)

This sentence is incorrect because it seems to say that a herd of sheep—rather than Liza—was driving down the road. The participial phrase is misplaced. The sentence could be corrected as shown:

As Liza was driving down the road, a herd of sheep suddenly crossed the road in front of her. (CORRECT)

This sentence now correctly has Liza in the driver's seat instead of the sheep.

The following sentence structures are often misplaced:

Misplaced Structure	Example	Correction
present participle	Walking along the beach, the ship was spotted by the men.	Walking along the beach, the men spotted the ship.
past participle	Based on this study, the scientist could make several conclusions.	Based on this study, several conclusions could be made by the scientist.
appositive	A resort city in Arkansas, the population of Hot Springs is about 35,000.	A resort city in Arkansas, Hot Springs has a population of about 35,000.
reduced adjective clause	While peeling onions, his eyes began to water.	While he was peeling onions, his eyes began to water.
adjective phrases	Warm and mild, everyone enjoys the climate of the Virgin Islands.	Everyone enjoys the warm, mild climate of the Virgin Islands.
expressions with like or unlike	Like most cities, parking is a problem in San Francisco.	Like most cities, San Francisco has a parking problem.

Structure items with misplaced modifiers are usually easy to spot. They generally consist of a modifying element at the beginning of the sentence followed by a comma, with the rest or most of the rest of the sentence missing. The answer choices tend to be long. To find the answer, you must decide what subject the modifier correctly refers to.

▼ Sample Item

Using a device called a cloud chamber, _____.

- (A) experimental proof for the atomic theory was found by Robert Millikin
- (B) Robert Millikin's experimental proof for the atomic theory was found
- (C) Robert Millikin found experimental proof for the atomic theory
- (D) there was experimental proof found for the atomic theory by Robert Millikin

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) and (B) are incorrect because the modifier (Using a device called a cloud chamber . . .) could not logically refer to the subjects (experimental proof and Robert Millikin's experimental proof). (D) is incorrect because a modifier can never properly refer to the introductory word there or it. ▲

Exercise 28

Focus: Completing structure problems involving misplaced modifiers. (Note: all the items in this exercise focus on misplaced modifiers.)

Directions: Choose the one option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentences, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 29

INCOMPLETE OR MISSING COMPARISONS

You may see sentences in the Structure section that contain comparisons. Many of these involve the comparative forms of adjectives.

On the average, the Pacific Ocean is deeper than the Atlantic.

Rhonda is a more experienced performer than Theresa.

This show is less interesting than the one we watched last night.

Be sure that the sentence compares similar things or concepts.

The ears of African elephants are bigger than Indian elephants.* (INCORRECT)

The ears of African elephants are bigger than those of Indian elephants. (CORRECT)

The first sentence above is incorrect because it compares two dissimilar things: an African elephant's ears and an Indian elephant. In the second, the word those refers to ears, so the comparison is between similar things.

Another type of comparison involves the phrase as . . . as.

The lab lasted as long as the class did.

There weren't as many people at the meeting as I had thought there would be.

The words like/alike and unlike/not alike can also be used to express comparison:

Like A, B . . .

A, like B, . . .

A is like B.

A and B are alike.

Unlike X, Y . . .

X, unlike Y, . . .

X is unlike Y.

X and Y are not alike.

In these sentences, similar-looking words such as likely, likewise, dislike, and unlikely may appear as distractors.

Other phrases can be used in making comparisons:

A is the same as B

A and B are the same

A is similar to B

X is different from Y

X and Y are different

X differs from Y

A special kind of comparison is called a proportional statement. A proportional statement follows this pattern: The more A . . . the more B.

The higher the humidity, the more uncomfortable people feel.

▼ Sample Items

Subtropical zones _____ temperate zones, but they still have distinct summer and winter seasons.

- (A) that are warmer
- (B) warmer
- (C) are warmer as
- (D) are warmer than

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) creates a relative clause, which is not appropriate in this sentence; also, the choice lacks the word than. Choice (B) lacks both a verb and the word than. (C) incorrectly uses as in place of than.

_____ other mammals, whales do not have a sense of smell.

- (A) Not alike
- (B) Unlike
- (C) Unlikely
- (D) Dislike

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Choice (A) is used only in the pattern “A and B are not alike.” (C) and (D) are not used in comparisons; unlikely is an adjective meaning “not probable”; dislike is a verb meaning “not enjoy, not admire.”

_____ the diameter of a circle, the larger its circumference is.

- (A) Greater than
- (B) The greater
- (C) Great as
- (D) As great as

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct pattern for a proportional statement is the more A . . . the more B. Only choice (B) follows this pattern. ▲

Exercise 29

Focus: Completing structure problems involving comparisons. (Note: All the items in this exercise focus on comparisons.)

Directions: Choose the option—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that correctly completes the sentence, and then mark the appropriate blank. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 30

MISSING CONJUNCTIONS

Conjunctions are connecting words; they join parts of a sentence. In this lesson, we'll look at two types of conjunctions.

Coordinate conjunctions are used to join equal sentence parts: single words, phrases, and independent clauses. When two full clauses are joined, they are usually separated by a comma. The coordinate conjunctions you will most often see in Structure problems are listed in the chart below:

Coordinate Conjunction	Use	Examples
and	addition	Hereford cows are brown and white. He washed his car and cleaned out the garage.
or	choice, possibility	This plant can be grown in a house or in a garden. Her action was very brave or very foolish.
but	contrast, opposition	He brought his wallet but forgot his checkbook. The book discussed some interesting ideas, but it wasn't very well written.
nor	negation	He's never taken a class in sociology, nor does he intend to.
so	effect	It was a bright day, so she put on her sunglasses.

(The conjunction so is used to join only clauses—not single words or phrases.)

Conjunctive adverbs (moreover, therefore, however, nevertheless, and so on) are also used to join clauses, but in Structure problems, these words are most often used as distractors—they seldom appear as correct answers.

Correlative conjunctions are two-part conjunctions. Like coordinate conjunctions, they are used to join clauses, phrases, and words.

Correlative Conjunction	Use	Example
both . . . and	addition	Both wolves and coyotes are members of the dog family.
not only . . . but also	addition	Dominic studied not only mathematics but also computer science.
either . . . or	choice, possibility	We need either a nail or a screw to hang up this picture.
neither . . . nor	negation (not A and not B)	Neither the television nor the stereo had been turned off.

▼ Sample Items

The automobile began as a toy _____ developed into a powerful force for social change.

- (A) it
- (B) but
- (C) when
- (D) or

(A) (B) (C) (D)

LESSON 31

MISSING NEGATIVE WORDS

The answer choices for this type of item are four negative expressions, such as the ones listed below:

In this part of the test, there are twenty-five sentences. In each sentence, four expressions—single words or two- or three-word phrases—are underlined. Your job is to identify which of these phrases must be rewritten (it can't simply be omitted) in order for the sentence to be correct. All the errors involve grammar or usage—never punctuation or spelling.

▼ Sample Items

Music, dramatic, and art contribute to the culture of any community.

A B C D

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

This sentence should correctly read “Music, drama, and art contribute to the culture of any community.” Choice (A) would have to be rewritten to correct the sentence, so (A) is the best answer.

Lenses may having either concave or convex shapes.

A B C D

The correct verb form after a modal auxiliary is the simple form have. This sentence should read “Lenses may have either concave or convex shapes.”

The best answer is (A). ▲

What’s the Best Way to Answer Written Expression Items?

You should begin with a quick reading of each sentence to find any obvious errors. Don’t simply read the underlined portions, because in most items the underlined expression is incorrect only in the context of the sentence. Don’t answer the question until you’ve read the entire sentence.

Easier questions can be answered after the first reading; mark your answer and go on. If you don’t find the error immediately, re-read the sentence, now concentrating on the underlined expressions. You can’t use the same techniques for reading these items as you would to read other materials, such as newspapers or magazine articles. Usually, a person’s eyes move very quickly over “little words” like articles and prepositions because these words don’t contain much information. However, in this part of the test, these expressions may be used incorrectly. It would be helpful, in fact, if you could read these sentences aloud, but of course that isn’t permitted. You can, however, train your eyes to move slowly and to pronounce the sentences in your mind exactly as if you were speaking them.

If you haven’t identified the error after a careful reading of the sentence, go through a mental checklist of the most common errors: word form, word choice, verb error, parallelism, pronoun errors, and singular/plural noun errors. Do the underlined expressions seem to fit into any of these categories?

If you still can’t find an error, eliminate expressions that seem to be used correctly, and then make a guess from any items that remain.

Frequency of Errors in Written Expression*

Type of Error	Percentage
Word Form	21
Word Choice	15
Verbs	10
Parallel Structures	9
Pronouns	8
Singular/Plural Nouns	8
Verbals (Infinitives, Gerunds, and Participles)	6
Prepositions	6
Articles	5
Word Order	5
Comparatives and Superlatives	3
Conjunctions	2
Other Types of Errors	2

* Based on an analysis of 20 different exams that test-takers were allowed to keep after Disclosed Test Admissions.

In this section of the Guide, the lessons follow the same order as given in the chart above. The most common error, which involves incorrect word forms, is considered first, and so on. Each type of error is explained, and examples are provided. There are exercises to help you practice identifying all these types of errors.

When taking actual exams, once you've found an error, don't worry about how to correct it. However, while working the exercises in this Guide, it's important to understand why an item is incorrect, so most of the exercises ask you not just to identify errors but to supply corrections as well.

Tactics for Written Expression

- Skim each sentence, looking for obvious errors.
 - If you haven't found the error, read the sentence again carefully, concentrating on the underlined parts. Go through a mental checklist of the most common types of errors (those involving word form, word choice, parallelism, verbs, pronouns, and singular/plural nouns) to see if any of the underlined expressions seem to fall into those categories.
 - If you are still unable to find an error, try eliminating options that seem to be correct. If more than one option remains, put a mark by the number of that item on your answer sheet, and then take a guess and go on.
 - If you finish before time is called, go back and work on Section 2 problems that you marked as difficult. Make sure you have an answer for every problem. Don't go on to Section 3.

LESSON 32

ERRORS WITH WORD FORMS

By far the most common type of Written Expression error involves word forms. As many as eight or nine items per test may be word-form problems. Most errors of this type involve using one part of speech in place of another. Both the incorrect word and the correction come from the same root (rapid and rapidly, for example, or inform and information). The four parts of speech generally involved are verbs, nouns, adjectives, and adverbs. The most common problems are adjectives in place of adverbs and adverbs in place of adjectives. Nouns in place of adjectives and adjectives in place of nouns are also commonly seen. In some word-form problems, different forms of the same part of speech may be involved. For example, a noun that refers to a person (leader) may be used in place of the field (leadership). A gerund (a verbal noun) may also be used in place of an ordinary noun (judging and judgment, for example).

Parts of speech can often be identified by their suffixes (word endings):

Common Noun Endings

-tion	information	-ery	recovery
-sion	provision	-ship	scholarship
-ence	existence	-tude	multitude
-ance	acceptance	-ism	capitalism
-ity	creativity	-cracy	democracy
-hood	childhood	-logy	biology
-dom	wisdom	-ness	happiness
-th	health	-ment	experiment

Endings for Nouns That Refer to Persons

-er	explorer	-ee	employee
-or	sailor	-ic	comic
-ist	psychologist	-ian	technician
-ent	student	-ant	attendant

Common Verb Endings

-ize	realize	-ify	satisfy
-en	shorten	-ate	incorporate
-er	recover

Common Adjective Endings

-ate	moderate	-y	sunny
-ous	dangerous	-ic	economic
-al	normal	-ical	logical
-ial	remedial	-ory	sensory
-able	comfortable	-less	hopeless
-ible	sensible	-ive	competitive
-ish	sluggish	-ly	friendly
-ant	resistant	-ful	colorful

Common Adverb Endings

-ly	quickly	-ally	historically
-----	---------	-------	--------------

A) Adjective/Adverb Errors

The most common type of word-form problem involves the use of an adverb in place of an adjective or an adjective in place of an adverb. A few points to keep in mind:

- Adjectives modify nouns, noun phrases, and pronouns.
 - Adjectives often come before nouns.
 an important test
 a quiet evening
 a long letter
 - They often answer the question What kind?
 She is a brilliant doctor. (What kind of a doctor is she? A brilliant one.)
 - Adjectives also follow the verb to be and other linking verbs.
 The glass was empty.
 That song sounds nice.
 They look upset.
 - Adverbs may modify verbs, participles, adjectives, prepositions, adverb clause markers, and other adverbs.
 Ann eagerly accepted the challenge.
 (adverb modifying the main verb accepted)
 It was a rapidly changing situation.
 (adverb modifying the present participle changing)
 She wore a brightly colored scarf.
 (adverb modifying the past participle colored)
 Ted seemed extremely curious about that topic.
 (adverb modifying the adjective curious)
 We arrived at the airport shortly before our flight left.
 (adverb modifying the adverb-clause marker before)
 We arrived at the airport shortly before noon.
 (adverb modifying the preposition before)
 The accident occurred incredibly quickly.
 (adverb modifying the adverb quickly)

- Sometimes adverbs are used at the beginning of sentences, often followed by a comma. These adverbs sometimes modify the entire sentence rather than one word in the sentence.

Generally, I like my classes.

Usually Professor Ingram's lectures are more interesting.

- Most adverbs tested in this section are adverbs of manner. They are formed by adding the suffix -ly or -ally to an adjective.

quick	quickly	comic	comically comfortable	comfortably	historic	historically

- Adverbs of manner answer the question How?

She treated her employees honestly. (How did she treat her employees? Honestly.)

- A few adverbs (fast, hard, high, for example) have the same form as adjectives.

He bought a fast car. (adjective)

He was driving so fast that he got a speeding ticket. (adverb)

- Well is the irregular adverb form of the adjective good.

Juan is an exceptionally good student.

He did very well on the last test.

- Some adjectives also end in -ly: friendly, yearly, costly, and lively, for example.

That was a costly mistake.

I found Houston a very friendly city.

▼ Sample Items

The Black Hills of South Dakota are covered with densely pine forests.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The best answer is (D). An adjective, dense, not an adverb, is required to modify the noun phrase pine forests.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The adverb abnormally is needed to modify the adjective high. ▲

B) Incorrect Forms of Words Connected with Certain Fields

▼ Sample Item

First specializing in industrial photography, Margaret Bourke-White later became a famous news photographer and editorial.
A B
C D

(A) (B) (C) ☒

The adjective editorial is used to describe the field of editing. However, a noun referring to a person (editor) is needed in this sentence. ▲

C) Other Word-Form Problems

There are many other word-form problems. Some examples are given here:

▼ Sample Items

LESSON 33

ERRORS IN WORD CHOICE

Word-choice errors involve the incorrect use of one word in place of another. These two words may be related forms (other and another, for example), or they may be completely different (do and make, for example).

Descriptions of some of the most common word choice errors are given below.

A) Wrong Choice of Make or Do

The verb to do is often used in place of to make, and to make in place of to do. In its basic sense, to make means to produce, to create, to construct, while to do means to perform, to act, to accomplish. These verbs are also used in a number of set expressions:

Common Expressions with Make make advances	make an offer

make an attempt	make a plan
make a comparison	make a point
make a contribution	make a prediction make a decision	make a profit
make a distinction	make a promise
make a forecast	make a sound/noise make an investment	make a suggestion make a law be made of (= be composed of)

make up (= compose)

To make is also used in this pattern: make + someone + adjective (The gift made her happy).

Common Expressions with Do

do an assignment	do a job (errand, chore)
do business with	do research
do one's duty	do one's work do someone a favor

The auxiliary verb do is used rather than repeat main verbs (My computer doesn't operate as fast as theirs does).

Anytime you see the verb make or do underlined in the Written Expression section, suspect a word-choice error.

▼ Sample Items

Cement is done from varying amounts of limestone, clay, and gypsum.

A B C D

● B C D

The verb done is incorrect in this sentence. The correct word choice is made.

Small town newspapers often urge readers to make business with local merchants.

A B ● D

The phrase should read do business. ▲

B) Wrong Choice of Like or Alike and Like or As

The word alike is incorrectly used in place of like, or like is used in place of alike. These words are used correctly in the following patterns:

Like A, . . .	Like birds, mammals are warm-blooded.
A, like B, . . .	Birds, like mammals, are warm-blooded.
A is like . . .	Birds are like mammals in that they are both warm-blooded.
A and B are alike . . .	Birds and mammals are alike in that they are both warm-blooded.

Whenever you see the words alike or like underlined, you should suspect a word-choice error.

The word like is also sometimes confused with the word as. When like is used in a comparison, it is followed by a noun or pronoun. When as is used in a comparison, it is followed by a clause containing a subject and a verb.

I did my experiment just as Paul did.
My results were much like Paul's.

The word as is also used before nouns when it means in place of or in the role of. This is particularly common after certain verbs: serve, function, and use, among others.

The Vice-President served as President when the President was sick.

▼ Sample Items

Alike their close relative the frogs, toads are amphibians.

Asters, as most perennial plants, bloom once a year.

A B C D

● B C D

The word like should be used in place of the word as before a noun phrase (most perennial plants). ▲

C) Wrong Choice of So, Such, Too, and As

The words so, such, and too are used in the following patterns:

so + adjective + that clause

These boxes are so heavy that we can't lift them.

(So is also used with many . . . that and much . . . that.)

There were so many people in the auditorium that we could barely get in the front door.

such + adjective + noun phrase + that clause

It was such a pretty view that he took a photograph.

too + adjective + infinitive

It's too cold to go swimming today.

Notice that so and such are both followed by that clauses, but too is followed by an infinitive.

The words as and so are also sometimes confused:

*Jane did so well as I did on the economics exam. (INCORRECT)

*The coffee was as hot that I couldn't drink it. (INCORRECT)

In the first sentence, the word as should be used in place of so; in the second, so should be used in place of as.

Also look for so much or too much used in place of so or too.

The phrase should read so small rather than so much small.

D) Wrong Choice of Another or Other

Use of Another and Other

	Another	Other
Used as an adjective	another + singular noun (Have another sandwich.)	other + plural noun (I wonder if there is life on other planets.) determiner + other + noun (There may be life on some other planets.)
Used as a pronoun	another (Thanks. I'll have another .)	determiner + other (“I have one book.” “I have the other .”)

Another means “one more, an additional one.” It can be used as an adjective before a singular nouns or alone as a pronoun.

He needs another piece of paper.

Other is used as an adjective before a plural noun. It is also used as an adjective before a singular noun when preceded by a determiner such as the, some, any, one, or no. It can also be used alone as a pronoun when preceded by a determiner.

There are other matters I'd like to discuss with you.

One of the books was a novel; the other was a collection of essays.

There's no other place I'd rather visit.

E) Wrong Choice of Because or Because Of; and Similar Expressions or Although; During or When/While

Certain expressions, such as because, are adverb clause markers and are used only before clauses. Other expressions, such as because of, are prepositions and are used before noun phrases or pronouns.

Even during economic booms, there is a small number of unemployment.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The word amount must be used to refer to a non-count noun such as unemployment. ▲

LESSON 34

ERRORS WITH VERBS

Whenever the verb is underlined in a Written Expression problem, you should check for the common verb errors outlined in this lesson.

A) Errors in Subject-Verb Agreement

If a subject is singular, the verb must be singular. If the subject is plural, the verb must be plural. Most problems involving subject-verb agreement on TOEFL are simple, but a few are tricky.

▼ Sample Items

Minerals in seawater exists in the same proportions in all of the oceans of the world.
 A B C
 D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The plural subject minerals requires a plural verb, exist. You might have found this question tricky because the singular noun seawater comes between the subject and the verb, and you may have mistaken that word for the true subject.

Bowling, one of the most popular indoor sports, are popular all over the United States and in other countries.
 A B C
 D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The subject of the sentence is bowling, not sports. The singular verb form is should therefore be used.

There are some special rules about subject-verb agreement that you should be familiar with:

- A sentence with two subjects joined by and takes a plural verb.

The chemistry lab and the physics lab are. . .

- Some words end in -s but are singular in form. Many of these words are the names of fields of study (economics, physics, and so on). News is another word of this kind.

Economics is. . .

The news was. . .

- Irregular plurals (children, feet, mice, and so on) do not end in -s but take plural verbs.

The women were. . .

His feet are. . .

- When a clause begins with the expletive there, the verb may be singular or plural, depending on the thematic subject.

There was a loud noise. . .

There were a few problems. . .

- Subjects with each and every take singular verbs. (This includes compound words like everyone and everything.)

Each state has. . .
 Each of the representatives was. . .
 Every person was. . .
 Everyone wants. . .

- The verb in relative clauses depends on the noun that the relative pronoun refers to.

The house that was built. . .
 The students who were selected. . .

- The phrase the number of + plural noun takes a singular verb. The phrase a number of + plural noun takes a plural verb.

The number of trees is. . .
 A number of important matters have. . .

- Singular subjects used with phrases such as along with, accompanied by, together with, as well as, and in addition to take singular verbs.

The mayor, along with the city council, is. . .
 Together with his friends, Mark has. . .

- Quantities of time, money, distance, and so on usually take a singular verb.

Five hundred dollars was. . .
 Two years has. . .
 Ten miles is. . .

B) Errors Involving Tense

Most tense errors involve the simple present tense, the simple past tense, and the present perfect tense.

- The simple present tense is a general-time tense.

It usually indicates that a condition is always true or that an action always occurs. It may also indicate that an action regularly occurs.

The atmosphere surrounds the earth.
 Dana often stays at this hotel.
 Generally, the lectures in this class are very interesting.

- The simple past tense indicates that an action took place at a specific time in the past.

They moved to Phoenix five years ago.
 This house was built in the 1920's.
 Dinosaurs lived millions of years ago.

- The present perfect tense usually indicates that an action began at some time in the past and continues to the present. It may also indicate that an action took place at an unspecified time in the past.

Mr. Graham has worked for this company since 1990.
 She hasn't been to a doctor for a year.
 Jennifer has recently returned from Europe.

14. Fifteen hundred dollars a year (was/were) the per capita income in the United States in 1950.
15. Everyone who (goes/go) into the woods should recognize common poisonous plants such as poison ivy and poison oak.

Exercise 34.2

Focus: Recognizing and correcting errors in verb tense and form.

Directions: If the underlined form is correct, mark the sentence C. If the underlined form is incorrect, mark the sentence X and write a correction for the underlined form in the blank at the end of the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

 shipped

 physical sciences have been produced. _____

Exercise 34.3

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors involving verb forms. (Note: One or two items in this exercise do not focus on word-form errors. These are marked in the answer key with an asterisk.)

Directions: Decide which of the four underlined words or phrases—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—would not be considered correct, and write the letter of the expression in the blank. Then, in the line at the end of the sentence, write a correction for the underlined phrase. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 35

ERRORS WITH PARALLEL STRUCTURES

Written Expression items involving errors with parallel structures are similar to those in the Structure part of the test (Lesson 24). These sentences most often contain a series of three expressions: X, Y, and Z. One of these expressions is not grammatically parallel to the other two items in the series.

Structures that are often involved in parallelism are nouns, adjectives, verbs, prepositional phrases, gerunds, and infinitives.

Some problems with parallelism are actually word-form problems similar to those in Lesson 32.

▼ Sample Item

As a young man, George Washington liked boating, to hunt, and fishing.
A B C

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Option (C) is not parallel with the other items in the series: to hunt is an infinitive, while the other items are gerunds. You may have considered the other options that are part of the series, (B) and (D), but if you rewrote only one of these, the three expressions would still not be parallel.

In general, errors involving parallelism are easy to identify.

Exercise 35.1

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors involving parallelism.

Directions: If the underlined form is parallel to other forms in the sentence, mark the sentence C. If the underlined form is not parallel, mark the sentence X and write a correction for the underlined form in the blank at the end of the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 36

ERRORS WITH PRONOUNS

Pronoun errors in Written Expression involve several types of pronouns:

- Personal pronouns
(he, she, it, they, and so on)
- Reflexive pronouns
(himself, herself, itself, themselves, and so on)
- Relative pronouns (adjective clause markers) (who, whose, which, that, and so on)
- Demonstrative pronouns
(this, that, these, those)

For the purposes of this lesson, possessive adjectives (his house, their bicycles) are considered personal pronouns and demonstrative adjectives (that book, those horses) are considered demonstrative pronouns.

The greatest number of errors involve personal pronouns.

A) Errors in Pronoun/Noun Agreement

A pronoun must agree with the noun to which it refers (the pronoun's referent).

Most agreement errors with personal pronouns, reflexive pronouns, and demonstrative pronouns consist of a singular pronoun referring to a plural noun or a plural pronoun referring to a singular noun.

Agreement errors with relative pronouns usually involve the use of who to refer to things or which to refer to persons. (Note: The relative pronoun that can be used in certain sentences to refer to both persons and things.)

Another error involves the use of this or these in place of that and those. (This and these are used to refer to things that are perceived as close in time or space; that and those are used to refer to things that are perceived as distant in time or space.)

▼ Sample Items

Jackrabbits have powerful rear legs that enable it to leap long distances.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The pronoun referring to the plural noun Jackrabbits must be plural.

The best way for children to learn science is to perform experiments himself.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The referent is plural (children), so the reflexive pronoun must also be plural (themselves) to agree with it. Therefore, the best answer is (D).

The Canadian Shield is a huge, rocky region who curves around Hudson Bay like a giant horseshoe.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The referent for the pronoun who is region. To agree with the referent, the relative pronoun which or that must be used. The pronoun who can refer only to a person.

Trademarks enable a company to distinguish its products from these of another company.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The demonstrative these cannot be used to refer to the products of another company. The demonstrative those should be used instead. ▲

B) Errors in Pronoun Form

These errors involve personal pronouns. A subject form like he might be used in place of an object form like him, or a possessive pronoun like hers might be used in place of a possessive adjective like her. This type of pronoun error is usually easy to spot.

▼ Sample Item

Herman Melville gathered material for him novels, including Moby Dick, during his years at sea.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The possessive form his, not the object form him, is required. ▲

C) Incorrect Type of Pronoun

In some sentences, the wrong type of pronoun is used. For example, a reflexive pronoun might be used when a personal pronoun is needed, or a personal pronoun used when a relative pronoun is required.

▼ Sample Items

As larvae, barnacles are free-swimming, but as adults they attach them to stones, docks, and hulls of ships.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The reflexive pronoun is required because the subject and object are the same entity: they attach themselves.

A barometer is a device it is used to measure atmospheric pressure.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

A personal pronoun (it) cannot be used to connect an adjective clause to the rest of the sentence. A relative pronoun (which or that) must be used instead.

D) Incorrect Inclusion of Pronouns

Some errors involve the unnecessary use of pronouns. Often, this type of error occurs when a personal pronoun is used as a subject in a sentence that already has a noun subject. It may also involve a personal pronoun used unnecessarily in a relative clause.

In a few items, a relative pronoun is used unnecessarily.

▼ Sample Items

Block Island in Long Island Sound it is surrounded by cold, dangerous waters.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The subject of the sentence is Block Island; the personal pronoun it is an unnecessary repetition of the subject.

Dutch elm disease, which it is caused by a fungus, can destroy a tree within four weeks.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The relative pronoun which is the true subject of the relative clause; the personal pronoun it is not needed.

Certain types of turtles that may live as long as 100 years.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The relative pronoun that is unnecessary in this sentence because there is only one verb (may live). A sentence that contains a relative clause must have a verb in each clause.

Exercise 36.1

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors of pronoun agreement.

Directions: If the underlined form is correct, mark the sentence C. If the underlined form is incorrect, mark the sentence X and write a correction for the underlined form in the blank at the end of the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

15. The arrangement of keys on the keyboard of a personal computer is almost the same as those on a standard typewriter.

Exercise 36.2

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors involving incorrect types and forms of pronouns.

Directions: If the underlined form is correct, mark the sentence C. If the underlined form is incorrect, mark the sentence X and write a correction for the underlined form in the blank at the end of the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

Exercise 36.3

Focus: Identifying errors involving the incorrect inclusion of pronouns.

Directions: If the sentence contains a pronoun that is incorrectly included, mark that sentence X and underline the pronoun. If the sentence does not contain an incorrect pronoun inclusion, mark that sentence C. The first one is done as an example.

Then, in the line at the end of the sentence, write a correction for the underlined phrase. The first one is done as an example.

_____ 15. The naturalist Edwin Teal illustration his books with photographs he had taken himself.

LESSON 37

ERRORS WITH SINGULAR AND PLURAL NOUNS

A) Plural Nouns in Place of Singular Nouns and Singular Nouns in Place of Plural Nouns

Underlined nouns in the Written Expression section may be incorrect because they are plural but should be singular, or because they are singular but should be plural.

Sometimes it is clear that a singular subject is incorrectly used because the verb is plural, or that a plural noun is used incorrectly because the verb is singular. In this type of item, the verb will not be underlined, because this is not a verb error.

Sometimes it is obvious that a plural or a singular noun is needed because of the determiners that precede the noun. Certain determiners are used only before singular nouns while other determiners are used only before plural nouns.

Determiners Used with Singular Nouns	Determiners Used with Plural Nouns
a/an	two, three, four, etc.
one	dozens of
a single	hundreds of each	thousands of every	a few (of)
this	many (of)
that	a number of the number of a couple (of) every one of each one of each of one of these

Each contestant won a prize.

Each of the contestants won a prize.

This flower is a yellow rose.

These flowers are yellow roses.

I attended only one game this season.

It was one of the most exciting games that I ever attended.

▼ Sample Items

Several of Washington Irving's story have become classics in American literature.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

In this item, both the determiner before the noun (Several of) and the plural verb (have) indicate that a plural noun (stories) should be used.

Mauna Loa, an active volcano on the island of Hawaii, usually has one eruptions every three years.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

A singular noun must be used after the determiner one.

One of the most beautiful state capitol is the Utah State Capitol, located in Salt Lake City.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct pattern is one of the + superlative adjective + plural noun. The plural noun capitols must therefore be used. ▲

B) Errors Involving Irregular Plurals

Most plural nouns in English end in -s, but a few are irregular. Only the most common irregular plurals are tested on TOEFL. (Irregular plurals that come to English from Latin or Greek—data, cacti, alumnae, or phenomena, for example—will NOT be tested on TOEFL.)

Common Irregular Plural Nouns
Singular Noun		Plural Noun child		children
man		men
woman		women
foot		feet
tooth		teeth
mouse		mice
fish		fish

▼ Sample Item

As childs grow older, their bones become thicker and longer.
 A B C D

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The correct plural form of child is children. ▲

C) Errors with Plural Forms of Non-Count Nouns

In some items a non-count noun (such as furniture, research, sunshine, information, or bread) is incorrectly given as a plural noun.

▼ Sample Item

Some encyclopedias deal with specific fields, such as music or philosophy, and provide informations on only those subjects.
 A B C
 D

Information is an uncountable noun and cannot be pluralized. ▲

D) Errors with Plural Compound Nouns

Compound nouns consist of two nouns used together to express a single idea: grocery store, travel agent, dinner party, and house cat, for example. Only the second noun of compounds is pluralized: grocery stores, travel agents, dinner parties, and house cats.

(There are rare exceptions to this rule—sports cars and women doctors, for example—but these won't be tested.)

▼ Sample Item

Raymond Chandler's detectives stories are admired by both critics and general readers.
 A B
 C D

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The correct plural form of this compound noun is detective stories. ▲

E) Errors Involving Plural Forms of Numbers and Measurement

Some errors involve numbers + measurements:

They went for a six-mile walk.

They walked six miles.

In the first sentence, the number + measurement is used as an adjective, and the measurement is singular. In the second, the measurement is a noun and is therefore plural.

Numbers like hundred, thousand, and million may be pluralized when they are used indefinitely—in other words, when they do not follow other numbers.

seven thousand five million dollars

thousands millions of dollars

▼ Sample Items

The U.S. president serves a maximum of two four-years terms.

The plural form Thousands should be used.

Exercise 37

Directions: Decide which of the four underlined words or phrases—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—would not be considered correct, and write the letter of the expression in the blank. LESSON 38ERRORS WITH VERBALS

Verbals are participles, gerunds, infinitives, and—for the purpose of this lesson—simple forms of the verb.

Participles are verbal adjectives. In this part of the test, participles are often seen before nouns as one-word adjectives. Present participles end with -ing. When used before a noun, present participles have an active meaning. Past participles of regular verbs end in -ed; the past participles of many common verbs are irregular. Before nouns, past participles have a passive meaning.

It was an exhausting ten-kilometer race. (present participle)

The exhausted runners were too tired to move after the race. (past participle)

In the first sentence, the race exhausts the runners. The race “performs” the action. In the second sentence, the runners are exhausted by the race. They receive the action.

Participles are also used in phrases after nouns as reduced (shortened) relative clauses. Again, present participles imply an active idea, past participles a passive one.

The man stealing the money was arrested.

(present participle; means “who stole”)

The money stolen from the bank was recovered.

(past participle; means “which was stolen”)

Gerunds are verbal nouns. Like present participles, gerunds end in -ing. They can be the subjects of verbs, the objects of prepositions, and the objects of certain verbs. (See the chart on the following page.)

Dancing is good exercise. (gerund as subject)

You can solve this problem by using a calculator. (gerund as object of a preposition)

He enjoys going to good restaurants. (gerund as object of a verb)

All two- and three-word verb phrases that can be followed by verbals are used with gerunds, not infinitives. This is true even when the verb phrase ends with the word to. (This can be tricky because infinitives always begin with the word to.)

I’m looking forward to going to New Orleans.

John is opposed to our participating.

Infinitives consist of the word to and the simple form of the verb. Like gerunds, infinitives can be the subjects of verbs and the objects of certain verbs (see chart). Unlike gerunds, infinitives can never be the objects of prepositions.

To help others is rewarding. (infinitive as subject)

He attempted to swim across the river. (infinitive as object of a verb)

Infinitives are used in several other ways:

It’s important to change the oil in your car frequently.

(infinitive after an adjective)

The first man to land on the moon was Neil Armstrong.

(infinitive used as an adjective after a noun)

She must take this class to graduate.

(infinitive used to show purpose)

Simple forms are the base forms of verbs; they consist of the infinitive without the word to.

Simple forms are used after the causative verbs have, make, and let:

He had the carpenter repair the door.

His father makes him study hard.

She let her son go on the trip.

Watch for the following errors involving verbals:

A) Incorrect Choice of Verbal

Any of these verbals—participle, gerund, infinitive, or simple form—may be incorrectly used when another one of them is required.

Simple forms are the base forms of verbs; they consist of the infinitive without the word to.

Simple forms are used after the causative verbs have, make, and let:

He had the carpenter repair the door.

His father makes him study hard.

She let her son go on the trip.

Watch for the following errors involving verbals:

A) Incorrect Choice of Verbal

Any of these verbals—participle, gerund, infinitive, or simple form—may be incorrectly used when another one of them is required.

▼ Sample Items

The writer Edgar Allan Poe is usually credited with invent the short story.
A B C
D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

After a preposition (with), a simple form cannot be used. The correct form is a gerund (inventing).

A single-lens reflex camera allows a photographer seeing exactly what the camera will photograph.
A B C

(A) (B) (C) (D)

After the verb allow, a gerund (seeing) cannot be used. An infinitive (to see) is correct. ▲

B) Incorrect Choice of Participle

You may see past participles used incorrectly for present participles or present participles used incorrectly for past participles.

You may also see a main verb used when a participle is required.

▼ Sample Items

There are probably around 3,000 languages speaking in the world.
A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

A past participle (spoken) is required because the idea is passive. The sentence means, "... 3,000 languages which are spoken ..."

For decades, journalist Theodore H. White wrote books described
A B C
 American presidential elections.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The past participle described is used incorrectly because the idea is active: the books described the elections. Therefore, a present participle, describing, should be used. (The sentence could also be corrected by adding a relative pronoun: that described.)

Nutmeg, widely is used as a spice, is actually the kernel of a tropical nut.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Rather than the main verb is used, a past participle (used) is required.

Exercise 38.2

Focus: Identifying incorrect and correct forms of participles.

Directions: Underline the form that best completes each sentence. The first one is done as an example.

3. A hummingbird's heart beats at the (astonishing/astonished) rate of 615 beats per minute.

Directions: Decide which of the four underlined words or phrases—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—would not be considered correct, and write the letter of that expression in the blank. Then, in the line at the end of the sentence, write a correction for the underlined phrase. The first one is done as an example.

1. C The most widely used material for package consumer goods is cardboard.

LESSON 39

ERRORS WITH PREPOSITIONS

Errors with prepositions are among the most difficult errors to catch. Preposition use in English is very complex. For every rule, there seems to be an exception. Recently, there have been more errors involving prepositions in the Written Expression part of TOEFL, and the errors have been more difficult to spot.

Prepositions are used in the following ways:

- In adverbial phrases that show time, place, and other relationships in the morning on Pennsylvania Avenue to the park by a student

- After certain nouns

a cause of a reason for a solution to

- After certain adjectives and participles different from aware of disappointed in

- After certain verbs combine with rely on refer to

- In phrasal prepositions (two- or three-word prepositions) according to together with instead of

- In certain set expressions by far in general on occasion at last

Note: In Mini-Lessons for Section 2, found at the end of this section of the Guide, all of these uses for prepositions are explained and practice exercises are provided.

There are two main types of preposition errors that you may see in the Written Expression part of the test:

A) Errors in Preposition Choice

The wrong preposition is used according to the context of the sentence.

Some of the rules for choosing the correct prepositions are given in the Mini-Lessons, but you will never be able to memorize all the rules for preposition use in English. The more you practice, though, the more you will develop a “feel” for determining which preposition is correct in any given situation.

There are two particular situations involving preposition choice that are often tested in Written Expression:

- Errors with from . . . to and *between . . . and

Both these expressions are used to give the starting time and ending time. They can also be used to show relationships of place and various other relationships.

He lived in Seattle from 1992 to 1997.

He lived in Seattle between 1992 and 1997.

Route 66 ran from Chicago to Los Angeles.

Route 66 ran between Chicago and Los Angeles.

Errors usually involve an incorrect pairing of those words, or the incorrect use of other prepositions:

between* A to B between* A with B

from* X and Y
 since* X to Y

■ Errors with since, for, and in

Since is used before a point in time with the present perfect tense—but never with the past tense. For is used before a period of time with the present perfect and other tenses. In is used before certain points in time (years, centuries, decades) with the past tense and other tenses—but never with the present perfect tense.

He's lived here since 1995.
 He's lived here for two years.
 He moved here in 1995.

Errors involve the use of one of these prepositions for another:

*He's lived here in 1995.
 *He's lived here since two years.
 *He lived here since 1995.

▼ Sample Items

The pitch of a tuning fork depends of the size and shape of its arms.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct preposition after the verb depend is on, not of.

The Alaskan Pipeline runs between Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic

Coastal Plain to the port of Valdez, a distance of 789 miles.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct pattern is from . . . to.

Candles were mankind's chief source of illumination since at least 2,000 years.

(A) (B) (C) (D)

Before a period of time (2,000 years) the preposition for should be used. ▲

B) Incorrect Inclusion or Omission of Prepositions

A preposition is used when one is not needed, or not used when one is needed.

▼ Sample Items

According many critics, Mark Twain's novel Huckleberry Finn is his greatest work, and is one of the greatest American novels ever written.

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

The preposition to has been omitted from the phrase According to.

Some of the most of spectacular waterfalls in the eastern United States are found in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania.

☐ A ☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

The preposition of should not be used in this phrase. (When most means "majority," it can be used in the phrase most of the. "Most of the people agree . . .," for example. However, in this sentence, most is part of the superlative form of the adjective spectacular, and so cannot be used with of.) ▲

Exercise 39.1

Focus: Identifying correct and incorrect preposition choice.

Directions: Underline the prepositions that correctly complete the sentences below. The first one is done as an example.

Directions: If there is a preposition unnecessarily included in a sentence, mark that sentence X and underline the preposition. If there is a preposition incorrectly omitted from a sentence, mark that sentence X, underline the word before and after the missing preposition, and write the correct preposition on the line at the end of the sentence. If the sentence is correctly written, mark that sentence C. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 40

ERRORS WITH ARTICLES

Like errors with prepositions, errors with articles are sometimes hard to catch. This is partly because of the complexity of the article system in English, and partly because articles, like prepositions, are “small words” and one’s eye tends to skip over errors involving these words.

The basic uses of articles are explained in the chart:

Indefinite Articles a and an	Definite Article the	No Article (\emptyset)
A or an is used before singular nouns when one does not have a specific person, place, thing, or concept in mind:	The is used before singular, plural, and non-count nouns when one has a specific person, place, thing, or concept in mind:	No article is used before non-count nouns or plural nouns when one does not have specific persons, places, things, or concepts in mind:
an orange	the oranges	\emptyset orange
a chair	the oranges	\emptyset oranges
	the fruit	\emptyset fruit
	the chair	\emptyset chair
	the chairs	\emptyset chairs
	the furniture	\emptyset furniture

The indefinite article a is used before words that begin with a consonant sound (a chair, a book); an is used before words that begin with a vowel sound (an orange, an ocean liner). Before words that begin with the letters b- and u-, either a or an can be used, depending on the pronunciation of the words.

Vowel Sounds	Consonant Sounds
an honor	a hat
an umbrella	a university

There are also some specific rules for using (or not using) articles that you should be aware of.

- An indefinite article can be used to mean “one.” It can also be used to mean “per.”
 - a half, a quarter, a third, a tenth
 - a mile a minute (one mile per minute)
 - an apple a day (one apple per day)
- A definite article is used when there is only one example or the thing or person, or when the identity of the thing or person is clear.

The Moon went behind some clouds. (There’s only one Moon.)
Please open the door. (You know which door I mean.)

- A definite article is usually used before these expressions of time and position.

the morning	the front	the beginning the afternoon	the back	the middle
the evening*	the center	the end the top
the past	the bottom
the present the future

*No article is used in the expression “at night.”

- A definite article comes before a singular noun that is used as a representative of an entire class of things. This is especially common with the names of animals, trees, inventions, musical instruments, and parts of the body.

The tiger is the largest cat.
 My favorite tree is the oak.
 The Wright Brothers invented the airplane.
The oboe is a woodwind instrument.
The heart pumps blood.

- A definite article is used before expressions with a ordinal number. No article is used before expressions with cardinal numbers.

the first	one
the fourth chapter	Chapter Four the seventh volume	Volume Seven

- A definite article is used before decades and centuries.

the 1930's	the 1800's
the fifties	the twenty-first century

- A definite article is usually used before superlative forms of adjectives.

the widest river	the most important decision
------------------	-----------------------------

- A definite article is used in quantity expressions in this pattern: quantifier + of + the + noun.

many of the textbooks	not much of the paper
some of the water	most of the students all of the people	a few of the photographs

These expressions can also be used without the phrase of the.

many textbooks	not much paper
some water	most students
all people	a few photographs

- A definite article is used before the name of a group of people or a nationality. No article is used before the name of a language.

The Swedish are proud of their ancestors, the Vikings.
 She learned to speak Swedish when she lived in Stockholm.

- A definite article is used when an adjective is used without a noun to mean “people who are”

Both the young and the old will enjoy this movie.
 The poor have many problems.

- A definite article is used before a non-count noun or a plural noun when it is followed by a modifier. No article is used when these nouns appear alone.

The rice that I bought today is in the bag.

Rice is a staple in many countries.

Trees provide shade.

The trees in this park are mostly evergreens.

- A definite article is used before the name of a field of study followed by an of phrase. If a field is used alone, or is preceded by an adjective, no article is used.

the literature of the twentieth century literature the history of the United States American history

- Definite articles are used before the “formal” names of nations, states, and cities. (These usually contain of phrases.) No articles are used before the common names of nations, states, and cities.

the United States of America America

the state of Montana Montana

the city of Philadelphia Philadelphia

- Definite articles are used before most plural geographic names: the names of groups of lakes, mountains, and islands. No article is used before the names of individual lakes, mountains, and islands.

the Great Lakes

Lake Powell

the Rocky Mountains

Mount Washington

the Hawaiian Islands

Long Island

In the Written Expression section, there are three main types of errors involving articles:

A) Incorrect Article Choice

One of the most common errors is the use of a in place of an or vice versa. Fortunately, this is also the easiest type of error to detect. Another error is a or an used in place of the, or the in place of a or an.

▼ Sample Items

A eclipse of the Sun may be either total or partial.

D

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

An must be used before a noun beginning with a vowel sound such as eclipse.

Rose Bird was a first woman in the history of California to serve on the State Supreme Court.

D

☒ ☐ B ☐ C ☐ D

In a phrase with an ordinal number (such as first) the definite article the must be used. ▲

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors with articles. (Note: One or two items in this exercise do not focus on article errors. These are marked in the answer key with an asterisk.)

Directions: Decide which of the four underlined words or phrases—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—would not be considered correct, and write the letter of the expression in the blank. Then, in the line at the end of the sentence, write a correction for the underlined phrase. The first one is done as an example.

- _____ A 1. The most butterfly eggs are coated with a sticky substance that holds them to plants.
A B C D
_____ Most _____

A B C
tropical fish. _____
D
- _____ 5. Arthritis, a painful swelling of the joints, is often associated with elderly people, but can afflict young as well. _____
A B C
D

LESSON 41

ERRORS WITH COMPARATIVES AND SUPERLATIVES

Most adjectives have three forms: the absolute (the basic adjective form), the comparative, and the superlative. Comparatives are used to show that one item has more of some quality than another does.

George is taller than his brother.

Superlatives are used to show that one item in a group of three or more has the greatest amount of some quality.

He was the tallest man in the room.

The chart explains how comparatives and superlatives are formed:

	Absolute	Comparative	Superlative
One-syllable adjectives	warm	warmer	the warmest
Two-syllable adjectives ending with -y	funny	funnier	the funniest
Other two-syllable adjectives	common	more common	the most common
Adjectives with three or more syllables	important	more important	the most important

Some two-syllable adjectives have two correct forms of both the comparative and the superlative:

narrower	clever	polite
more narrow	more clever	more polite
narrowest	cleverest	politest
most narrow	most clever	most polite

A “negative” comparison can be expressed with the words less and least. Less and least are used no matter how many syllables an adjective has.

less bright	less expensive
the least bright	the least expensive

The absolute form of a few adjectives ends in -er (tender, bitter, slender, clever, and so on). Don’t confuse these with the comparative forms (more bitter or bitterer, for example).

Many adverbs also have comparative and superlative forms. The comparative and superlative forms of all -ly adverbs are formed with more and most.

more brightly	more importantly most brightly	most importantly

A few adjectives and adverbs have irregular comparative and superlative forms:

Irregular Comparatives and Superlatives good/well	better	the best
bad/badly	worse	the worst
far	farther	the farthest
	further	the furthest

(Far has two comparative and superlative forms, depending on how the word is used, but the distinction between these two forms will not be tested.)

There are two main types of errors involving comparatives and superlatives:

A) Incorrect Choice of the Three Forms

Any of the three forms—absolute, comparative, or superlative—may be incorrectly used in place of one of the other forms.

▼ Sample Items

Basketball is played at a much fast pace than baseball.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The comparative form faster is needed because two concepts—the pace of basketball and the pace of baseball—are being compared.

The deep oceans contain some of the stranger of all living creatures.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

This sentence does not compare two groups; a superlative form (strangest) is required. ▲

B) Incorrect Forms of Comparatives and Superlatives

Incorrect forms such as more bigger or most hot may appear.

▼ Sample Item

The most small vessels in the circulatory system are capillaries.

A B C D

(A) (B) (C) (D)

The correct form is smallest because small is a one-syllable adjective. ▲

Exercise 41

Focus: Identifying and correcting errors in comparatives and superlatives.

Directions: If the underlined form is correct, mark the sentence C. If the underlined form is incorrect, mark the sentence X and write a correction for the underlined form in the blank at the end of the sentence. The first one is done as an example.

LESSON 42

ERRORS IN WORD ORDER

Most word-order errors in Written Expression consist of two words in reverse order. Some of the most common examples of this type of error are given below:

Error	Example	Correction
Noun + adjective	drivers careful	careful drivers
Noun + possessive	clothing women's	women's clothing
Main verb + auxiliary	finished are	are finished
Adjective + adverb	a basic extremely idea	an extremely basic idea
Verb + subject (in an indirect question or other wh - clause)	Tell me where is it. I spoke to John when was he here.	Tell me where it is. I spoke to John when he was here.

Relative pronoun + preposition	the house which in she lives	the house in which she lives adverb, adjective, or quantifier + almost	totally almost late almost all almost	almost totally almost late almost all enough + adjective*	enough good	good enough

Enough* can correctly be used before nouns: enough money, enough time. Enough may also be used before an adjective when the adjective comes before a noun. (There weren't enough good seats at the concert.)

Guide to Reading Comprehension

About Reading Comprehension

This part of the exam tests your ability to read and answer questions about passages written in formal written English. It usually contains five passages. After each passage there are usually from eight to twelve questions referring to that passage for a total of fifty questions. The passages vary in length from about seven lines to about thirty-five.

▼ Sample Items

(line) Like mammals, birds claim their own territories. A
(5) bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds claim only their nest and the area right around it, while others claim far larger territories that include their feeding areas. Gulls, penguins, and other waterfowl nest in huge colonies, but even in the biggest colonies, each male and his mate have small territories of their own immediately around their nests.

(10) Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species. In some cases, a warning call or threatening pose may be all the defense needed, but in other cases, intruders may refuse to leave peacefully.

1. What is the main topic of this passage?
(A) Birds that live in colonies
(B) How birds defend their territory
(C) The behavior of birds
(D) Territoriality in birds

(A) (B) (C) ☒

Choice (A) deals with particular types of birds—gulls, penguins, and others—but the passage concerns all birds. Choice (B) deals only with the concept of defending a territory. This is the topic of the second paragraph, but not of the passage as a whole. Choice (C) is too general; there are many types of bird behavior that this passage does not examine. Choice (D) is best, because all the aspects of the passage deal with some factors of birds' territories.

2. According to the passage, male birds defend their territories primarily against
(A) female birds
(B) birds of other species
(C) males of their own species
(D) carnivorous mammals

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

Lines 9–10 state that male birds “defend their territories chiefly against other males of the same species.” There is no mention in the passage of any of the other options.

3. It can be inferred from the passage that gulls and penguins
 (A) do not claim a feeding area as part of their territories
 (B) share their territories with many other birds
 (C) leave their colonies during their nesting season
 (D) do not build nests

☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

The passage says that birds which claim their feeding areas have large territories compared to those which do not. Birds living in colonies have “small territories . . . immediately around their nests,” indicating that their feeding areas would not be part of their territories. Choice (B) contradicts lines 7–8, which state that “each male and his mate . . . have small territories of their own.” Choice (C) is unlikely because the passage indicates that these birds’ nests are part of large colonies; they would not leave during nesting season. Choice (D) is incorrect because these birds’ nests are part of their territories.

4. In line 5, the word “it” refers to
 (A) a nest
 (B) an area
 (C) a bird
 (D) a territory

☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

Substitute all four answer choices for the word it in line 3; as you’ll see, only (A) is a logical choice.

5. The word “intruders” in line 12 is closest in meaning to
 (A) invaders
 (B) youngsters
 (C) defenders
 (D) guests

☒ B ☐ C ☐ D

It is clear from the passage that the “intruders” mentioned in this line are male birds that “refuse to leave peacefully.” Of the four answer choices, only “invaders” (persons or creatures that attack from the outside) could be substituted for the word “intruders” with no major change in meaning. ▲

The Passages

The passages cover a wide range of topics, but in general can be classified as follows:

1. Science and technology (40%) Includes astronomy, geology, chemistry, physics, mathematics, zoology, botany, medicine, engineering, mechanics, and so on.
2. North American history, government, geography, and culture (20%)
3. Art (15%) Includes literature, painting, architecture, dance, drama, and so on.
4. Social science (10%) Includes anthropology, economics, psychology, urban studies, sociology, and so on.
5. Biography (15%)

Some passages may be classified in more than one way. For example, a biography might be about the life of a historical figure, an artist, or a scientist.

If there is a national context for any of the passages, it is American or occasionally Canadian. Therefore, if a passage is about history, it will be about the history of the United States or Canada.

Although the passages deal with various topics, the style in which they are written is similar, and they usually follow fairly simple patterns of organization.

The vocabulary used in the Reading Comprehension portion is fairly sophisticated. There will almost certainly be words that you do not recognize. Sometimes you can guess the meaning of these words by context. However, it is not necessary to understand all the vocabulary in the passages in order to answer the questions.

The Questions

The main types of questions asked can be categorized as shown below:

Type of Question/ Percentage on Test	Explanation	Example
Main Idea/ Main Topic/ Main Purpose (10%)	These ask you to identify an answer choice that correctly summarizes the author's main idea, the subject of the whole passage, or the author's reason for writing the passage.	"What is the main idea of the passage?" "What is the passage primarily about?" "Why did the author write the passage?"
Factual Questions (24%)	These ask you to locate and identify answers to questions about specific information and details in the passage.	"According to the passage, where did . . . ?" "According to the author, why did . . . ?" "Which of the following is true, according to the passage?"
Negative Questions (9%)	These ask which of the answer choices is NOT discussed in the passage.	"Which of the following is NOT true about . . ." "All of the following are true EXCEPT . . ."
Scanning Questions (4%)	These ask you to find the place in the passage that some topic is mentioned.	"Where in the passage does the author first discuss . . ."
Inference Questions (12%)	These ask you to draw conclusions based on information in the passage.	"The author implies that which of the following is true?" "Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?"

Vocabulary-in-Context Questions (26%)	These ask you identify the meaning of a word or phrase as used in the passage.	“The word ‘——’ in line 5 is closest in meaning to . . .”
Reference Questions (10%)	These ask you to identify the noun to which a pronoun or other expression refers.	“The word “it” in line 15 refers to . . .” “In line 20, the word “there” refers to which of the following?”

There are a few other types of questions that are occasionally asked about the readings. These make up the remaining 5% of the question types.

About half the Reading items have closed stems; they begin with direct questions. The others have open stems; they begin with incomplete sentences.

Closed Stem

Which of the following is the main topic of the passage?

Open Stem

The main topic of the passage is

The Answer Choices

For all questions in this part, the four options are equally grammatical and, in most cases, would be equally logical choices for someone who has not carefully read the passage. Incorrect choices are generally based on information that is found in the passage, but does not correctly answer the question.

What Is the Best Way to Approach the Passages?

First, take a quick look at the questions (not at the answer choices) to see what will be asked about. Try to keep these in the back of your mind as you read the passage. Then read the article at a comfortable speed. Try not to read one word at a time, like this:

A bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds claim only their nest and the area right around it.

Word-by-word reading slows you down and interferes with your comprehension. Try to read in units of thought. In other words, group words into related phrases.

A bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds claim only their nest and the area right around it.

The paragraph is the primary unit of meaning in all reading. Most passages consist of from one to five paragraphs. If you can form a clear idea of what each paragraph is about, you can put these ideas together and come up with the main idea of the entire passage. The main idea of each paragraph is often contained in one sentence, called the topic sentence. Try to locate topic sentences. Often, the topic sentence is the first sentence of a paragraph, but it may also be the last sentence. Occasionally, a paragraph has no topic sentence; the topic is stated indirectly.

If there is more than one paragraph in the passage, try to understand the relationship between the paragraphs. Form a mental “map” of the passage. Watch for words that signal special relationships and transitions, such as however, therefore, first, next, then, and so on.

What Is the Best Way to Answer the Questions?

It depends on the type of question. The best tactics for answering each type of question are given in the next five lessons. In the exercises, you will read passages similar to the ones found on actual TOEFL tests to develop the reading skills needed to do well on this section.

What Are Some Important Factors in Scoring High on This Section?

Timing is an important factor. Most test-takers find this the hardest to complete because reading the passages takes up so much time. Near the end of the test, you may realize that you won't have enough time to finish. Don't panic! When there is only about four or five minutes remaining, this is what you should do: If you have not read one of the passages, skim it over very quickly to get the main idea. Answer the first question about it (which will probably be a main idea or topic question). Then answer any of the questions that provide line numbers (vocabulary-in-context and reference questions) because these require less time to locate the information you need. Then answer any remaining questions, referring back to the passage as little as possible. If you can't find the information needed to answer the question in about ten seconds, just pick the choice that seems the most logical. Then, in the last few seconds, fill in any empty blanks with your "guess answer."

On the other hand, if you do finish the test before time is called, go back and work on items that you had trouble with the first time. Don't just sit back and relax, and don't turn back to Sections 1 or 2.

Concentration is another important factor. This is the last section of the test. It's also the longest and, for some people, the most difficult. You may be starting to get tired. However, you've got to maintain your concentration until the end of the test and not waste any time.

What Is the Best Way to Prepare for This Part of TOEFL?

After completing the exercises in the Guide and taking the practice tests in this book, read as much on your own as you can. A recent study showed that extracurricular reading (readings done outside of classes) was the single most important factor in improving overall TOEFL scores. Material from textbooks, magazines, newspapers, and encyclopedias will be useful. You might also want to try writing TOEFL-style questions about passages that you read. This technique not only increases your comprehension, but it also helps you think like the people who write TOEFL tests.

Strategies for Section 3

- As with the other sections, be familiar with the directions and examples for Section 3 so that you can begin work immediately.
 - For each passage, begin by briefly looking over the questions (but not the answer choices). Try to keep these questions in mind during your reading.
 - Read each passage at a comfortable speed.
 - Answer the questions, referring to the passage when necessary.
 - Eliminate answers that are clearly wrong or do not answer the questions. If more than one option remains, guess.
 - Mark difficult or time-consuming answers so that you can come back to them later if you have time. Erase all these marks before the end of the test.
 - Don't spend more than about 10 minutes on any one reading and the questions about it.

- When only a few minutes remain, don't start guessing blindly. Skim the remaining passage or passage quickly; then answer the first question in each set. Then answer any questions with line numbers. After that, read the remaining questions, and if you can't find the question quickly, choose the one that seems most logical to you.
 - When there are only a few seconds left, fill in all remaining blanks with your guess letter.

Sample Reading Comprehension Test

Time: 55 minutes

This section of the test measures your ability to understand the meaning of words and to comprehend written materials.

Directions: The remainder of this section contains several passages, each followed by a number of questions. Read the passages and, for each question, choose the one best answer—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—based on what is stated in the passage or on what can be inferred from the passage. Then fill in the space on your answer sheet that matches the letter of the answer that you have selected.

Read the following passage:

- (line) Like mammals, birds claim their own territories. A
 (5) bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds claim only their nest and the area right around it, while others claim far larger territories that include their feeding areas. Gulls, penguins, and other waterfowl nest in huge colonies, but even in the biggest colonies, each male and his mate have small territories of their own immediately around their nests.

- (10) Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species. In some cases, a warning call or threatening pose may be all the defense needed, but in other cases, intruders may refuse to leave peacefully.

Example 1

Sample Answer

(A) (B) (C) ☒

What is the main topic of this passage?

- (A) Birds that live in colonies
 (B) Birds' mating habits
 (C) The behavior of birds
 (D) Territoriality in birds

The passage mainly concerns the territories of birds. You should fill in (D) on your answer sheet.

Example II

Sample Answer

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

According to the passage, male birds defend their territory primarily against

- (A) female birds
- (B) birds of other species
- (C) males of their own species
- (D) mammals

The passage states that "Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species." You should fill in (C) on your answer sheet.

As soon as you understand the directions, begin work on this part.

Questions 1–12

The technology of the North American colonies did not differ strikingly from that of Europe, but in one respect, the colonists enjoyed a great advantage. Especially by comparison with (line) Britain, Americans had a wonderfully plentiful supply of wood.

(5) The first colonists did not, as many people imagine, find an entire continent covered by a climax forest. Even along the Atlantic seaboard, the forest was broken at many points. Nevertheless, all sorts of fine trees abounded, and through the early colonial period, those who pushed westward encountered new
(10) forests. By the end of the colonial era, the price of wood had risen slightly in eastern cities, but wood was still extremely abundant.

The availability of wood brought advantages that have seldom been appreciated. Wood was a foundation of the economy. Houses
(15) and all manner of buildings were made of wood to a degree unknown in Britain. Secondly, wood was used as a fuel for heating and cooking. Thirdly, it was used as the source of important industrial compounds, such as potash, an industrial alkali; charcoal, a component of gunpowder; and tannic acid, used for
(20) tanning leather.

The supply of wood conferred advantages but had some negative aspects as well. Iron at that time was produced by heating iron ore with charcoal. Because Britain was so stripped of trees, she was unable to exploit her rich iron mines. But the American
(25) colonies had both iron ore and wood; iron production was encouraged and became successful. However, when Britain developed coke smelting, the colonies did not follow suit because they had plenty of wood and besides, charcoal iron was stronger than coke iron. Coke smelting led to technological innovations and was
(30) linked to the emergence of the Industrial Revolution. In the early nineteenth century, the former colonies lagged behind Britain in industrial development because their supply of wood led them to cling to charcoal iron.

1. What does the passage mainly discuss?

- (A) The advantages of using wood in the colonies
- (B) The effects of an abundance of wood on the colonies
- (C) The roots of the Industrial Revolution
- (D) The difference between charcoal iron and coke iron

Questions 13–22

The Peales were a distinguished family of American artists.

Charles Willson Peale is best remembered for his portraits of leading figures of the American Revolution. He painted portraits (line) of Franklin and Jefferson, and over a dozen of George Washington.

- (5) His life-size portrait of his sons Raphaelle and Titian was so realistic that George Washington reportedly once tipped his hat to the figures in the picture.

- Charles Willson Peale gave up painting in his middle age and devoted his life to the Peale Museum, which he founded in (10) Philadelphia. The world's first popular museum of art and natural science, it featured paintings by Peale and his family as well as displays of animals in their natural settings. Peale found the animals himself and devised a method of taxidermy to make the exhibits more lifelike. The museum's most popular display was (15) the skeleton of a mastodon—a huge, extinct elephant—which Peale unearthed on a New York farm in 1801.

- Three of Peale's seventeen children were also famous artists. Raphaelle Peale often painted still lifes of flowers, fruit, and cheese. His works show the same luminosity and attention to (20) detail that the works of the Dutch masters show. In the late eighteenth century, however, portraiture was the rage, and so Raphaelle Peale found few buyers for his still lifes at the time. His brother Rembrandt studied under his father and painted portraits of many noted people, including one of George (25) Washington. Another brother, Rubens Peale, painted mostly landscapes and portraits.

James Peale, the brother of Charles Willson Peale, specialized in miniatures. His daughter Sarah Miriam Peale was probably the first professional female portrait painter in America.

 (A) The life of Charles Willson Peale
 (B) Portraiture in the 18th century

 (D) A family of artists
14. The author probably mentions that Washington “tipped his hat to the figures in the painting” (lines 6–7) to indicate that
 (A) Charles Willson Peale's painting was very lifelike

 (C) Washington was friendly with Raphaelle and Titian Peale
 (D) the painting of the two brothers was extremely large

Questions 23–34

- According to the best evidence gathered by space probes and astronomers, Mars is an inhospitable planet, more similar to Earth's Moon than to Earth itself—a dry, stark, seemingly lifeless world. Mars' air pressure is equal to Earth's at an altitude of 100,000 feet. The air there is 95% carbon dioxide. Mars has no ozone layer to screen out the Sun's lethal radiation. Daytime temperatures may reach above freezing, but because the planet is blanketed by the mere wisp of an atmosphere, the heat radiates back into space. Even at the equator, the temperature drops to -50°C (-60°F) at night. Today there is no liquid water, although valleys and channels on the surface show evidence of having been carved by running water. The polar ice caps are made of frozen water and carbon dioxide, and water may be frozen in the ground as permafrost.
- Despite these difficult conditions, certain scientists believe that there is a possibility of transforming Mars into a more Earth-like planet. Nuclear reactors might be used to melt frozen gases and eventually build up the atmosphere. This in turn could create a "greenhouse effect" that would stop heat from radiating back into space. Liquid water could be thawed to form a polar ocean. Once enough ice has melted, suitable plants could be introduced to build up the level of oxygen in the atmosphere so that, in time, the planet would support animal life from Earth and even permanent human colonies. "This was once thought to be so far in the future as to be irrelevant," said Christopher McKay, a research scientist at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "But now it's starting to look practical. We could begin work in four or five decades."
- The idea of "terra-forming" Mars, as enthusiasts call it, has its roots in science fiction. But as researchers develop a more profound understanding of how Earth's ecology supports life, they have begun to see how it may be possible to create similar conditions on Mars. Don't plan on homesteading on Mars any time soon, though. The process could take hundreds or even thousands of years to complete, and the cost would be staggering.

23. With which of the following is the passage primarily concerned?
- (A) The possibility of changing the Martian environment
 - (B) The challenge of interplanetary travel
 - (C) The advantages of establishing colonies on Mars
 - (D) The need to study the Martian ecology

Questions 35–43

- Another critical factor that plays a part in susceptibility to colds is age. A study done by the University of Michigan School of Public Health revealed particulars that seem to hold true for
- (line) the general population. Infants are the most cold-ridden group,
- (5) favoring more than six colds in their first year. Boys have more colds than girls up to age three. After the age of three, girls are more susceptible than boys, and teenage girls average three colds a year to boys' two.

- The general incidence of colds continues to decline into
- (10) maturity. Elderly people who are in good health have as few as one or two colds annually. One exception is found among people in their twenties, especially women, who show a rise in cold infections, because people in this age group are most likely to have young children. Adults who delay having children until
- (15) their thirties and forties experience the same sudden increase in cold infections.

- The study also found that economics plays an important role. As income increases, the frequency at which colds are reported in the family decreases. Families with the lowest income suffer
- (20) about a third more colds than families at the upper end. Lower income generally forces people to live in more cramped quarters than those typically occupied by wealthier people, and crowding increases the opportunities for the cold virus to travel from person to person. Low income may also adversely influence diet.
- (25) The degree to which poor nutrition affects susceptibility to colds is not yet clearly established, but an inadequate diet is suspected of lowering resistance generally.

35. The paragraph that precedes this passage most probably deals with
- (A) minor diseases other than colds
- (B) the recommended treatment of colds
- (C) a factor that affects susceptibility to colds
- (D) methods of preventing colds among elderly people
36. Which of the following is closest in meaning to the word "particulars" in line 3?
- (A) Minor errors
- (B) Specific facts
- (C) Small distinctions
- (D) Individual people
37. What does the author claim about the study discussed in the passage?
- (A) It contains many inconsistencies.
- (B) It specializes in children.
- (C) It contradicts the results of earlier studies in the field.
- (D) Its results apparently are relevant for the population as a whole.

38. It may be inferred from the passage that which of the following groups of people is most likely to catch colds?
- (A) Infant boys
 - (B) Young girls
 - (C) Teenage boys

39. There is information in the second paragraph of the passage to support which of the following conclusions?
- (A) Men are more susceptible to colds than women.
 - (B) Children infect their parents with colds.
 - (C) People who live in a cold climate have more colds than those who live in a warm one.
 - (D) People who don't have children are more susceptible to colds than those who do.

- (A) infants
 - (B) people in their twenties
 - (C) people in their thirties and forties
 - (D) elderly people

 - (C) discuss the relationship between income and frequency of colds
 - (D) discuss the distribution of income among the people in the study
42. The word "cramped" in line 21 is closest in meaning to

 - (B) crowded
 - (C) depressing
 - (D) simple

Questions 44–50

- About fifty years ago, plant physiologists set out to grow roots by themselves in solutions in laboratory flasks. The scientists found that the nutrition of isolated roots was quite simple. They required sugar and the usual minerals and vitamins. (line) However, they did not require organic nitrogen compounds. These roots got along fine on mineral inorganic nitrogen. Roots are capable of making their own proteins and other organic compounds. These activities by roots require energy, of course. The process of respiration uses sugar to make the high energy compound ATP, which drives the biochemical reactions. Respiration also requires oxygen. Highly active roots require a good deal of oxygen.

- The study of isolated roots has provided an understanding of the relationship between shoots and roots in intact plants. The leaves of the shoots provide the roots with sugar and vitamins, and the roots provide the shoots with water and minerals. In addition, roots can provide the shoots with organic nitrogen compounds. This comes in handy for the growth of buds in the early spring when leaves are not yet functioning. Once leaves begin photosynthesizing, they produce protein, but only mature leaves can “export” protein to the rest of the plant in the form of amino acids.

44. What is the main topic of the passage?
- (A) The relationship between a plant's roots and its shoots
 - (B) What can be learned by growing roots in isolation
 - (C) How plants can be grown without roots
 - (D) What elements are necessary for the growth of plants
45. The word “themselves” in line 2 refers to
- (A) plant physiologists
 - (B) solutions
 - (C) laboratory flasks
 - (D) roots
46. According to the passage, what is ATP?

LESSON 44

OVERVIEW QUESTIONSA) Main Idea, Main Topic, and Main Purpose Questions

After almost every passage, the first question is an overview question about the main idea, main topic, or main purpose of a passage. Main idea questions ask you to identify the most important thought in the passage. Answer choices are complete sentences.

Sample Questions

- What is the main idea of the passage?
- The primary idea of the passage is . . .
- Which of the following best summarizes the author's main idea?

When there is not a single, readily identified main idea, main topic questions may be asked. These ask you what the passage is generally "about." Answer choices are noun phrases.

Sample Questions

- The main topic of the passage is . . .
- What does the passage mainly discuss?
- The passage is primarily concerned with . . .

Main purpose questions ask why an author wrote a passage. The answer choices for these questions usually begin with infinitives.

Sample Questions

- The author's purpose in writing is to . . .
- What is the author's main purpose in the passage?
- The main point of this passage is to . . .
- Why did the author write the passage?

Sample Answer Choices

- | | |
|---|----------------------------------|
| ■ To define . . . | ■ To relate . . . |
| ■ To discuss . . . | ■ To propose . . . |
| ■ To illustrate . . . | ■ To support the idea that . . . |
| ■ To distinguish between _____ and _____ | ■ To compare _____ and
_____ |

Don't answer the initial overview question about a passage until you have answered the other questions. The process of answering the detail questions may give you a clearer idea of the main idea, topic, or purpose of the passage.

The correct answers for main idea, main topic, and main purpose questions correctly summarize the main points of the passage; they must be more general than any of the supporting ideas or details, but not so general that they include ideas outside the scope of the passages.

Distractors for this type of question have one of these characteristics:

1. They are too specific.
2. They are too general.
3. They are incorrect according to the passage.
4. They are irrelevant (unrelated) to the main idea of the passage.

If you're not sure of the answer for one of these questions, go back and quickly scan the passage. You can usually infer the main idea, main topic, or main purpose of the entire passage from an understanding of the main ideas of the paragraphs that make up the passage and the relationship between them.

B) Other Overview Questions

A number of other questions are asked that require an overall understanding of the passage. These are often the last question in a set of questions.

Tone questions ask you to determine the author's feelings about the topic by the language that he or she uses in writing the passage. Look for vocabulary that indicates if the author's feelings are positive, negative, or neutral.

Sample Questions

- What tone does the author take in writing this passage?
- The tone of this passage could best be described as . . .

Sample Answer Choices

- | | | |
|--------------|---------------|--------------|
| ■ Positive | ■ Negative | ■ Neutral |
| ■ Favorable | ■ Critical | ■ Objective |
| ■ Optimistic | ■ Unfavorable | ■ Impersonal |
| ■ Amused | ■ Angry | |
| ■ Pleased | ■ Defiant | |
| ■ Respectful | ■ Worried | |
| ■ Humorous | ■ Outraged | |

If you read the following sentences in passages, would the tone of those passages most likely be positive or negative?

- A) That was just the beginning of a remarkable series of performances by this brilliant actress.
- B) Despite some minor problems, this device has a number of admirable features.
- C) This practice is a waste of time and money.
- D) At the time his poems were first published, they were very popular, but today most critics find them simplistic and rather uninteresting.

The italicized words in sentences A) and B) show a positive tone; in C) and D), the italicized words indicate a negative attitude. Notice that sentence B) contains negative words ("minor problems"), but the overall meaning of the sentence is positive. Sentence D) contains positive language ("very popular"), but overall, the tone is negative. (Words like despite, but, although, however, and similar words can "reverse" the tone of the passage.)

Most TOEFL Reading passages have a neutral tone, but sometimes an author may take a position for or against some point. However, answer choices that indicate strong emotion—angry, outraged, sad, and so forth—will seldom be correct.

Attitude questions are very similar to tone questions. Again, you must understand the author's opinion. The language that the author uses will tell you what his or her position is.

What is the author's attitude toward smoking on airplanes as expressed in the sentence below?

Although some passengers may experience a slight discomfort from not smoking on long flights, their smoking endangers the health of all the passengers and crew.

The author opposes smoking during flights. He admits that there is some argument in favor of smoking—some passengers may feel discomfort—but this is not as important as the fact that smoking can be dangerous to everyone on the flight. The use of the word although shows this.

Sample Questions

- What is the author's attitude toward . . .
- The author's opinion of _____ is best described as . . .
- The author's attitude toward _____ could best be described as one of . . .
- How would the author probably feel about . . .

Another type of attitude question presents four statements and asks how the author would feel about them.

- Which of the following recommendations would the author most likely support?
- The author would be LEAST likely to agree with which of the following statements?
- The author of the passage would most likely be in favor of which of the following policies?

Organization questions ask about the overall structure of a passage or about the organization of a particular paragraph.

Sample Question

- Which of the following best describes the organization of the passage?

Sample Answer Choices

- A general concept is defined, and examples are given.
- Several generalizations are presented, from which a conclusion is drawn.
- The author presents the advantages and disadvantages of _____.
- The author presents a system of classification for _____.
- Persuasive language is used to argue against _____.
- The author describes _____.
- The author presents a brief account of _____.
- The author compares _____ and _____.

Questions about previous or following paragraphs ask you to assume that the passage is part of a longer work: What would be the topic of the hypothetical paragraph that precedes or follows the passage? To find the topic of the previous paragraph, look for clues in the first line or two of the passage; for the topic of the following passage, look in the last few lines. Sometimes incorrect answer choices mention topics that have already been discussed in the passage.

Sample Questions

- With what topic would the following/preceding paragraph most likely deal?
- The paragraph prior to/after the passage most probably discusses . . .
- It can be inferred from the passage that the previous/next paragraph concerns . . .
- What most likely precedes/follows the passage?

Exercise 44.1

Focus: Identifying correct answers and recognizing distractors in main idea/main topic/main purpose questions.

Directions: Read the passages. Then mark each answer choice according to the following system:

- | | |
|---|--------------|
| S | Too specific |
| G | Too general |
| X | Incorrect |
| I | Irrelevant |
| C | Correct |

The first one is done as an example.

There are two main types of cell division. Most cells are produced by a process called mitosis. In mitosis, a cell divides and forms two identical daughter cells, each with an identical number of chromosomes. Most one-celled creatures reproduce by this method, as do most of the cells in multi-celled plants and animals. Sex cells, however, are formed in a special type of cell division called meiosis. This process reduces the number of chromosomes in a sex cell to half the number found in other kinds of cells. Then, when sex cells unite, they produce a single cell with the original number of chromosomes.

1. What is the main topic of this passage?

- S (A) The method by which one-celled organisms reproduce
C (B) A comparison between mitosis and meiosis
X (C) Meiosis, the process by which identical cells are produced

The last gold rush belongs as much to Canadian history as it does to American. The discovery of gold along the Klondike River, which flows from Canada's Yukon Territory into Alaska, drew some 30,000 fortune hunters to the north. The Yukon became a territory, and its capital of the time, Dawson, would not have existed without the gold rush. The gold strike furnished material for a dozen of Jack London's novels. It inspired Robert Service to write "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" and other poems, and it provided the background for the wonderful Charlie Chaplin movie, The Gold Rush. It also marked the beginnings of modern Alaska.

2. This author's main purpose in writing is to

- _____ (A) discuss the significance of mining in Canada and the United States
 _____ (B) show the influence of the Klondike gold strike on the creative arts
 _____ (C) point out the impact of the Klondike gold strike

The keystone arch was used by almost every early civilization. To build a keystone arch, stones are cut so that the opposite sides taper toward each other slightly. The upper and lower surfaces are carved so that when several stones are placed side by side, the upper and lower surfaces meet in smooth, continuous curves. Some form of scaffolding is built under the arch and shaped to accept the curved underside of the stones. Then the stones are fitted in place one by one. The keystone is the top center stone, the last to be dropped into position. Afterwards, the scaffolding is removed and the arch is self-supporting.

3. The passage mainly concerns the

- _____ (A) basic principles of building keystone arches
 _____ (B) uses of arches in modern architecture
 _____ (C) role of scaffolding in building keystone arches

Circumstantial evidence is evidence not drawn from the direct observation of a fact. If, for example, there is evidence that a piece of rock embedded in a wrapped chocolate bar is the same type of rock found in the vicinity of the candy factory, and that rock of this type is found in few other places, then there is circumstantial evidence that the stone found its way into the candy during manufacture and suggests that the candy-maker was negligent. Despite a popular notion to look down on the quality of circumstantial evidence, it is of great usefulness if there is enough of it and if it is properly interpreted. Each circumstance, taken singly, may mean little, but a whole chain of circumstances can be as conclusive as direct evidence.

4. What is the author's main purpose in this passage?

- _____ (A) To show that a manufacturer's negligence can be shown by direct evidence only _____ (B) To define circumstantial evidence and show its usefulness
 _____ (C) To demonstrate that circumstantial evidence can be very useful in science

The Northwest Ordinance was passed by Congress in 1787. It set up the government structure of the region north of the Ohio River and west of Pennsylvania, then called the Northwest Territory. It set the conditions under which parts of the Territory could become states having equality with the older states. But the ordinance was more than just a plan for government. The law also guaranteed freedom of religion and trial by jury in the Territory. It organized the Territory into townships of 36 square miles and ordered a school to be built for each township. It also abolished slavery in the Territory. The terms were so attractive that thousands of pioneers poured into the Territory. Eventually, the Territory became the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

5. What is the main topic of this passage?
- _____ (A) The structure of government
 - _____ (B) The provisions of an important law
 - _____ (C) The establishment of schools in the Northwest Territory

The story of the motel business from 1920 to the start of World War II in 1941 is one of uninterrupted growth. Motels spread from the West and the Midwest all the way to Maine and Florida. They clustered along transcontinental highways such as U.S. routes 40 and 66 and along the north-south routes running up and down both the East and West coast. There were 16,000 motels by 1930 and 24,000 by 1940. The motel industry was one of the few industries that was not hurt by the Depression of the 1930's. Their cheap rates attracted travelers who had very little money.

6. What does the passage mainly discuss?
- _____ (A) How the Depression hurt U.S. motels
 - _____ (B) The impact of transcontinental highways
 - _____ (C) Two decades of growth for the motel industry

An old proverb states, "Beware of oak, it draws the stroke." This saying is handy during thunderstorm season. In general, trees with deep roots that tap into groundwater attract more lightning than do trees with shallow, drier roots. Oaks are around 50 times more likely to be struck than beeches. Spruces are nearly as safe as beeches. Pines are not as safe as these two, but are still much safer than oaks.

7. What is the author's main point?
- _____ (A) Old proverbs often contain important truths.
 - _____ (B) Trees with shallow roots are more likely to avoid lightning than those with deep roots.
 - _____ (C) The deeper a tree's roots, the safer it is during a thunderstorm.

Alternative history is generally classified as a type of science fiction, but it also bears some relation to historical fiction. This type of writing describes an imaginary world that is identical to ours up to a certain point in history, but at that point, the two worlds diverge; some important historical event takes place in one world but not in the other, and they go in different directions. Alternative histories might describe worlds in which the Roman Empire had never fallen, in which the Spanish Armada had been victorious, or in which the South had won the Civil War. Or they may suppose that some technology had been introduced earlier in the world's history than actually happened. For example: What if computers had been invented in Victorian times? Many readers find these stories interesting because of the way they stimulate the imagination and get them thinking about the phenomenon of cause and effect in history.

8. What is the main idea of this passage?
- _____ (A) Alternative histories describe worlds in which history has taken another course.
 - _____ (B) Alternative histories are a type of historical novel.
 - _____ (C) Science fiction writers have accurately predicted certain actual scientific developments.

Until the late 1700's, metal could not be turned on a lathe to make it uniformly smooth and round. The operator could not guide the cutting tool evenly by hand against the turning piece. This problem was solved by David Wilkinson of Pawtucket, Rhode Island. In 1798 he invented a machine in which the cutter was clamped into a movable slide that could be advanced precisely, by hand crank, parallel to the work. The slide rest, as it came to be called, has many uses. It permits the manufacture of parts so uniform that they can be interchanged. Without it, mass production would not have been possible. As it turns out, the great English machinist Henry Maudsley had developed nearly the same mechanism a few years before, but this was unknown to Wilkinson and does not diminish his accomplishment.

9. Why did the author write this passage?

- ☐ (A) To prove that Wilkinson's invention was based on Maudsley's
- ☐ (B) To demonstrate the importance of mass production to American society
- ☐ (C) To show the usefulness of Wilkinson's invention

Almost every form of transportation has given someone the idea for a new type of toy. After the Montgolfier brothers flew the first balloon, toy balloons became popular playthings. In the nineteenth century, soon after railroads and steamships were developed, every child had to have model trains and steamboats. The same held true for automobiles and airplanes in the early twentieth century. Toy rockets and missiles became popular at the beginning of the space age, and by the 1980's, there were many different versions of space-shuttle toys.

10. The main idea of this passage is that

- ☐ (A) inventors have been inspired by toys to build new forms of transportation
- ☐ (B) toy automobiles and airplanes were very popular in the early 1900's
- ☐ (C) toy design has followed developments in transportation

Exercise 44.2

Focus: Answering a variety of overview questions about short passages.

Directions: Read the passages and mark the best answer choice—(A), (B), (C), or (D). The first one is done as an example.

American folk music originated with ordinary people at a time when the rural population was isolated and music was not yet spread by radio, audios, compact disks, or music DVDs. It was transmitted by oral tradition and is noted for its energy, humor, and emotional impact. The major source of early American folk songs was music from the British Isles, but songs from Africa as well as songs of the American Indians have a significant part in its heritage. Later settlers from other countries also contributed songs. In the nineteenth century, composer Stephen Foster wrote some of the most enduringly popular of all American songs, which soon became part of the folk tradition. Beginning in the 1930's, Woody Guthrie gained great popularity by adapting traditional melodies and lyrics and supplying new ones as well. In the 1950's and 1960's, singer-composers such as Pete Seeger, Bob Dylan, and Joan Baez continued this tradition by creating "urban" folk music. Many of these songs dealt with important social issues, such as racial integration and the war in Vietnam.

1. The primary purpose of this passage is to

- ☒ (A) trace the development of American folk music
- ☐ (B) explain the oral tradition
- ☐ (C) contrast the styles of folk musicians
- ☐ (D) point out the influence of social issues on "urban" folk music

Every scientific discipline tends to develop its own special language because it finds ordinary words inadequate, and psychology is no different. The purpose of this special jargon is not to mystify non-psychologists; rather, it allows psychologists to accurately describe the phenomena they are discussing and to communicate with each other effectively. Of course, psychological terminology consists in part of everyday words such as emotion, intelligence, and motivation, but psychologists use these words somewhat differently. For example, laymen use the term anxiety to mean nervousness or fear, but most psychologists reserve the term to describe a condition produced when one fears events over which one has no control.

2. The main topic of this passage is
- _____ (A) effective communication
 - _____ (B) the special language of psychology
 - _____ (C) two definitions of the word anxiety
 - _____ (D) the jargon of science

Gifford Pinchot was the first professionally trained forester in the United States. After he graduated from Yale in 1889, he studied forestry in Europe. In the 1890's he managed the forest on the Biltmore estate in North Carolina (now Pisgah National Forest) and became the first to practice scientific forestry. Perhaps his most important contribution to conservation was persuading President Theodore Roosevelt to set aside millions of acres in the West as forest reserves. These lands now make up much of the national parks and national forests of the United States. Pinchot became the Chief Forester of the U.S. Forest Service in 1905. Although he held that post for only five years, he established guidelines that set forest policy for decades to come.

3. The passage primarily deals with
- _____ (A) Gifford Pinchot's work on the Biltmore Estate
 - _____ (B) the practice and theory of scientific forestry
 - _____ (C) the origin of national parks and national forests in the United States
 - _____ (D) the contributions Gifford Pinchot made to American forestry

Off-Broadway theater developed in New York City in about 1950 as a result of dissatisfaction with conditions on Broadway. Its founders believed that Broadway was overly concerned with producing safe, commercially successful hit plays rather than drama with artistic quality. Off-Broadway producers tried to assist playwrights, directors, and performers who could not find work on Broadway. Off-Broadway theaters were poorly equipped, had limited seating, and provided few conveniences for audiences. But the originality of the scripts, the creativity of the performers, and the low cost of tickets made up for these disadvantages, and off-Broadway theater prospered. However, by the 1960's, costs began to rise and by the 1970's, off-Broadway theater was encountering many of the difficulties of Broadway and had lost much of its vitality. With its decline, a experimental movement called off-off-Broadway theater developed.

4. What is the main idea of this passage?
- _____ (A) After initial success, off-Broadway theater began to decline.
 - _____ (B) Off-Broadway theaters produced many hit commercial plays.
 - _____ (C) Theaters on Broadway were not well equipped.
 - _____ (D) Off-Broadway plays were highly creative.
5. The paragraph that follows this passage most likely deals with
- _____ (A) the help off-Broadway producers provided directors, playwrights, and performers
 - _____ (B) methods off-Broadway theaters used to cope with rising prices
 - _____ (C) the development of off-off-Broadway theater
 - _____ (D) the decline of Broadway theater

At the time of the first European contact, there were from 500 to 700 languages spoken by North American Indians. These were divided into some 60 language families, with no demonstrable genetic relationship among them. Some of these families spread across several of the seven cultural areas. The Algonquin family, for instance, contained dozens of languages and occupied a vast territory. Speakers of Algonquin languages included the Algonquins of the Eastern Woodland, the Blackfoots of the Plains, and the Wiyots and Yuroks of California. Other language families, like the Zuni family of the Southwest, occupied only a few square miles of area and contained only a single tribal language.

6. What is the main idea of this passage?
- _____ (A) Each of the cultural areas was dominated by one of the language families.
 - _____ (B) The Zuni language is closely related to the Algonquin language.
 - _____ (C) There is considerable diversity in the size and the number of languages in language families of the North American Indians.
 - _____ (D) Contact with Europeans had an extraordinary effect on the languages of the Indian tribes of North America.

Other major changes in journalism occurred around this time. In 1846, Richard Hoe invented the steam cylinder rotary press, making it possible to print newspapers faster and cheaper. The development of the telegraph made possible much speedier collection and distribution of news. Also in 1846, the first wire service was organized. A new type of newspaper appeared around this time, one that was more attuned to the spirit and needs of the new America. Although newspapers continued to cover politics, they came to report more human interest stories and to record the most recent news, which they could not have done before the telegraph. New York papers and those of other northern cities maintained corps of correspondents to go into all parts of the country to cover newsworthy events.

7. The main purpose of the passage is to
- _____ (A) present a brief history of American journalism
 - _____ (B) outline certain developments in mid-19th-century journalism
 - _____ (C) explain the importance of the steam cylinder rotary press
 - _____ (D) present some biographical information about Richard Hoe
8. What is the most probable topic of the paragraph preceding this one?
- _____ (A) Other types of rotary presses
 - _____ (B) Alternatives to using wire services
 - _____ (C) Newspapers that concentrated on politics
 - _____ (D) Other developments in journalism
9. The tone of the passage could best be described as
- _____ (A) objective
 - _____ (B) optimistic
 - _____ (C) angry
 - _____ (D) humorous

In the western third of North America, the convoluted folds of the Earth's surface and its fractured geologic structure tend to absorb the seismic energy of an earthquake. Even if an earthquake measuring 8.5 on the Richter scale struck Los Angeles, its force would fade by the time it reached San Francisco, some 400 miles away. But in the eastern two thirds of the continent the same energy travels more easily. The earthquake that struck New Madrid, Missouri, in 1811, estimated at 8 on the Richter scale, shook Washington, D.C., about 800 miles away, and was felt as far as Boston and Toronto.

10. Which of the following best expresses the main idea of this passage?

- ☐ (A) If a major earthquake strikes Los Angeles, it will probably damage San Francisco as well.
- ☐ (B) The New Madrid earthquake of 1811 was felt in Boston and Toronto.
- ☐ (C) The geology of the western United States is much more complex than that of the East.
- ☐ (D) Earthquakes travel farther in the East than in the West.

There has never been an adult scientist who has been half as curious as any child between the ages of four months and four years. Adults sometimes mistake this superb curiosity about everything as a lack of ability to concentrate. The truth is that children begin to learn at birth, and by the time they begin formal schooling at the age of five or six, they have already absorbed a fantastic amount of information, perhaps more, fact for fact, than they will learn for the rest of their lives. Adults can multiply by many times the knowledge children absorb if they appreciate this curiosity while simultaneously encouraging the children to learn.

11. With which of the following statements would the author probably agree?

- ☐ (A) Children lack the ability to concentrate.
- ☐ (B) Young children have a much greater curiosity than adult scientists do.
- ☐ (C) The first few years of school are the most important ones for most children.
- ☐ (D) Adults can use children's intense curiosity to help children learn more.

12. The paragraph following this one most likely deals with

- ☐ (A) ways in which adults can help children learn by stimulating their curiosity
- ☐ (B) the learning habits of children over the age of four
- ☐ (C) the methods adult scientists use to study the curiosity of young children
- ☐ (D) ways in which adults can become as curious as children about their environments

Settlement houses were institutions established to improve living conditions in poor city neighborhoods in the late 1800's and early 1900's. They offered health, educational, recreational, and cultural activities. The first to open in the United States was University Settlement in New York City. It was established by the social reformer Stanton Coit in 1886. The most famous example was Hull House, established by the well-known reformer Jane Addams in Chicago in 1890. Settlement houses were usually staffed by idealistic young college graduates who were eager to improve the condition of the poor.

13. The passage mainly discusses

- ☐ (A) U.S. cities in the late nineteenth century
- ☐ (B) the idealism of college graduates
- ☐ (C) settlement houses in the late 1800's and early 1900's
- ☐ (D) the life of several American social reformers

The dancer Isadora Duncan was a daring, dynamic innovator in dance. While she was not very successful in teaching her highly personal style of dance to others, she taught a generation of dancers to trust their own forms of expression. She rebelled against the rigid, formal style of classical ballet. Inspired by the art of Greece, she usually danced barefoot in a loose, flowing Greek tunic. She found further inspiration in nature and used dance movements to mirror the waves of the sea and passing clouds.

Isadora Duncan was born in San Francisco in 1878. She gave her first performance in 1899. Early failures gave way to triumphant performances in Budapest, Berlin, London, and finally, in 1908, back in the United States. She lived in Europe most of her life, establishing dancing schools for children there. She died in 1927 near Nice, France, in a freak accident, her long scarf being caught in the wheel of an open sports car in which she was riding.

14. The author's attitude toward Isadora Duncan could best be described as one of
- _____ (A) displeasure
 - _____ (B) admiration
 - _____ (C) compassion
 - _____ (D) amazement
15. Which of the following best describes the organization of the passage?
- _____ (A) The author first discusses Isadora Duncan's style of dance and then her life history.
 - _____ (B) The first paragraph deals with Isadora Duncan's role as a teacher, the second her role as a performer.
 - _____ (C) The author first discusses Isadora Duncan's shortcomings and then her positive points.
 - _____ (D) First there is an analysis of Isadora Duncan's influences and then of her lasting contributions to dance.

Through the centuries, the dream of medieval alchemists was to discover how to turn lead and other "base" metals into gold. Some were fakes, but many were learned men with philosophical goals. Their quest was based on the ancient idea that all matter consists of different proportions of just four substances—earth, water, fire, and air. They believed that it was possible to adjust the proportions of the elements that made up lead by chemical means so that it turned into gold, a process called transmutation. Their experiments were concerned with finding the substance—which they called the philosopher's stone—that, when added to lead, would cause this astonishing change to take place. Alchemists also searched for the elixir of life, a substance that could cure diseases and prolong life. They failed on both counts. However, their techniques for preparing and studying chemicals helped lay the foundation for the modern science of chemistry.

16. Which of the following statements best summarizes the author's attitude toward medieval alchemists?
- _____ (A) Although they were all fakes, they made important contributions to science.
 - _____ (B) Their discovery of the philosopher's stone was more important than the achievements of modern chemists.
 - _____ (C) Although their theories were sound, they lacked the equipment needed to accomplish their goals.
 - _____ (D) They were unable to realize their goals, but they helped prepare the way for modern chemistry.

Exercise 44.3

Focus: Understanding the meaning of multi-paragraph passages by identifying the main point of each of the paragraphs.

Directions: Read the following passages and the questions about them. Decide which of the choices best answers the question, and mark the answer. The first one is done as an example.

Questions 1–3

In most of Europe, farmers' homes and outbuildings are generally located within a village, and tools and animals are housed there. Every morning, the farmers and farm laborers leave their village to work their land or tend their animals in distant fields, and return to the village at the end of the day. Social life is thus centripetal; that is, it is focused around the community center, the village. Only in certain parts of Quebec has this pattern been preserved in North America.

Throughout most of North America, a different pattern was established. It was borrowed from northern Europe, but was pushed even further in the New World where land was cheap or even free.

It is a centrifugal system of social life, with large isolated farms whose residents go to the village only to buy goods and procure services. The independence associated with American farmers stems from this pattern of farm settlement. The American farmer is as free of the intimacy of the village as the urbanite.

1. The main topic of the first paragraph is ☐ (A) European farm products
☐ (B) social life in Quebec
☒ (C) the European pattern of rural settlement
2. The main topic of the second paragraph is
☐ (A) the relative isolation of North American farm families
☐ (B) the relationship between farmers and urbanites in North America
☐ (C) the low cost of farmland in North America
3. The main topic of the entire passage is ☐ (A) a comparison of farming in northern and southern Europe
☐ (B) the difference between farming in Quebec and the rest of North America
☐ (C) European influence on American agriculture
☐ (D) a contrast between a centripetal system of rural life and a centrifugal system

Questions 4–7

While fats have lately acquired a bad image, one should not forget how essential they are. Fats provide the body's best means of storing energy, far more efficient energy sources than either carbohydrates or proteins. They act as insulation against cold, as cushioning for the internal organs, and as lubricants. Without fats, there would be no way to utilize fat-soluble vitamins. Furthermore, some fats contain fatty acids that contain necessary growth factors and help with the digestion of other foods.

An important consideration of fat intake is the ratio of saturated fats to unsaturated fats. Saturated fats, which are derived from dairy products, animal fats, and tropical oils, increase the amount of cholesterol in the blood. Cholesterol may lead to coronary heart disease by building up in the arteries of the heart. However, unsaturated fats, derived from vegetable oils, tend to lower serum cholesterol if taken in a proportion twice that of saturated fats.

The consumption of a variety of fats is necessary, but the intake of too much fat may lead to a variety of health problems. Excessive intake of fats, like all nutritional excesses, is to be avoided.

4. The main idea of the first paragraph is that ☐ (A) fats have a bad image
☐ (B) fats serve important functions in the body
☐ (C) fats store food more efficiently than proteins or carbohydrates
5. What is the main idea of the second paragraph?
☐ (A) Unsaturated fats may reduce cholesterol levels.
☐ (B) The consumption of any type of fat leads to heart disease.
☐ (C) Fats taken in the proper proportion may reduce serum cholesterol.
6. The main idea of the third paragraph is that ☐ (A) people are eating less and less fat today
☐ (B) fats should be gradually eliminated from the diet
☐ (C) excessive consumption of fats may be dangerous to one's health
7. With which of the following is the whole passage primarily concerned?
☐ (A) The role of fats in human health
☐ (B) The dangers of cholesterol
☐ (C) The benefits of fats in the diet
☐ (D) The importance of good nutrition

Questions 8–10

The term weathering refers to all the ways in which rock can be broken down. It takes place because minerals formed in a particular way (say at high temperatures, in the case of igneous rocks) are often unstable when exposed to various conditions. Weathering involves the interaction of the lithosphere (the earth's crust) with the atmosphere and hydrosphere (air and water). It occurs at different rates and in different ways, depending on the climactic and environmental conditions. But all kinds of weathering ultimately produce broken minerals and rock fragments and other products of the decomposition of stone.

Soil is the most obvious and, from the human point of view, the most important result of the weathering process. Soil is the weathered part of the Earth's crust that is capable of sustaining plant life. The character of soil depends on the nature of rock from which it is formed. It also depends on the climate and on the relative "age" of the soil. Immature soils are little more than broken rock fragments. Over time, immature soil develops into mature soil, which contains quantities of humus, formed from decayed plant matter. Mature soil is darker, richer in microscopic life, and more conducive to plant growth.

8. The first paragraph primarily describes
 - _____ (A) the process by which rocks are broken down
 - _____ (B) the weathering of igneous rocks
 - _____ (C) gradual changes in the earth's weather patterns
9. The main topic of the second paragraph is
 - _____ (A) a description of immature soil
 - _____ (B) the growth of plants
 - _____ (C) the evolution of soil
10. The main idea of the entire passage is that
 - _____ (A) weathering breaks down rocks and leads to the development of soil
 - _____ (B) soils may be classified as mature or immature
 - _____ (C) the process of soil development is more important to humans than that of weathering
 - _____ (D) the Earth's crust is constantly changing

Questions 11–15

The first Dutch outpost in New Netherlands was made at Fort Orange (now Albany) in 1624; it became a depot of the fur trade. But the most important settlement was at the southern tip of Manhattan, commanding the great harbor at the mouth of the Hudson River. Peter Minuit, first governor-general of New Netherlands, "purchased" title to the island from the Canarsie Indians for the equivalent of twenty-four dollars worth of trinkets. However, the Canarsie Indians might be described as tourists from Brooklyn; Minuit had to make a later payment to the group that was actually resident there.

In 1626 engineers from Holland arrived in Manhattan to construct Fort Amsterdam. Within its rectangular walls, permanent houses were built, replacing the thatched dwellings of the original Manhattanites. The fort became the nucleus of the town of New Amsterdam. Soon Manhattan had its first skyline: the solid outline of the fort, the flagstaff, the silhouette of a giant windmill, and the masts of trading ships.

The Dutch West India company established dairy farms in the vicinity of New Amsterdam. Each morning, the cattle were driven to the "Bouwerie" (now the Bowery), a large open common in the city. Just southwest of the Bouwerie was the Bowling Green, a level area where the burghers played ninepins, the ancestor of modern bowling. The Bowling Green became the site of a cattle fair where livestock were marketed; beer and sausage was available from booths; cheese, lace, and linen were sold by farmers' wives; and Indian women sold baskets and other handicrafts. These colorful gatherings and other aspects of everyday life in New Amsterdam are described in Washington Irving's rollicking book, Diedrich Knickerbocker's History of New York.

The last and most powerful governor-general of New Netherlands was Peter Stuyvesant, famous for his temper and his wooden leg. He annexed the Swedish colony of Delaware and ordered the streets of New Amsterdam laid out in an orderly manner and numbered. He did his best to obtain military and financial aid from Holland against the British. When the British sent emissaries demanding the surrender of the colony, he wanted to fight.

Four British warships, commanded by Colonel Richard Nicolls, sailed into the harbor in 1664. The fort was long out of repair, and there was a shortage of ammunition. Stuyvesant had no choice but to surrender. New Netherlands became the British colony of New York, and New Amsterdam became New York City.

11. What is the main topic of the first paragraph?
_____ (A) The first Dutch settlement in New Netherlands
_____ (B) Peter Minuit's acquisition of Manhattan
_____ (C) Tourism in Manhattan
12. The second paragraph deals primarily with _____ (A) the establishment of Fort Amsterdam
_____ (B) the skyline of Manhattan
_____ (C) the thatched houses of the Indians
13. The third paragraph mainly describes
_____ (A) aspects of everyday life in New Amsterdam
_____ (B) the origin of the game of modern bowling
_____ (C) Washington Irving's book about New Amsterdam
14. What does the fourth paragraph mainly discuss?
_____ (A) The annexation of the Swedish colony of Delaware
_____ (B) The ordering of the streets in New Amsterdam
_____ (C) A description of Peter Stuyvesant and his accomplishments
15. What is the primary topic of the entire passage?
_____ (A) A history of the British colony of New York
_____ (B) The origin and importance of the Cattle Fair
_____ (C) European colonization in the New World
_____ (D) Forty years of Dutch rule in New Amsterdam

LESSON 45

FACTUAL QUESTIONS, NEGATIVE QUESTIONS, AND SCANNING QUESTIONS

A) Factual Questions

Factual questions ask about explicit facts and details given in the passage. They often contain one of the wh- question words: who, what, when, where, why, how much.

Factual questions often begin with the phrases “According to the passage, . . .” or “According to the author, . . .” When you see these phrases, you know that the information needed to answer the question is directly stated somewhere in the passage (unlike answers for inference questions).

To answer factual questions, you have to locate and identify the information that the question asks about. If you are not sure from your first reading where to look for specific answers, use the following scanning techniques:

- Focus on one or two key words as you read the stem of each question. Lock these words in your mind.
- Scan the passage looking for the key words or their synonyms. Look only for these words. Do not try to read every word of the passage.
- It may help to use the eraser end of your pencil as a pointer to focus your attention. Don’t re-read the passage completely—just look for these words.
- When you find the key words in the passage, carefully read the sentence in which they occur. You may have to read the sentence preceding or following that sentence as well.
- Compare the information you read with the four answer choices.

The order of detail questions about a passage almost always follows the order in which ideas are presented in the passage. In other words, the information you need to answer the first detail question will usually come near the beginning of the passage; the information for the second will follow that, and so on. Knowing this should help you locate the information you need.

Correct answers for detail questions are seldom the same, word for word, as information in the passage; they often contain synonyms and use different grammatical structures.

There are generally more factual questions—twelve to eighteen per Reading section—than any other type except (on some tests) vocabulary-in-context questions.

B) Negative Questions

These questions ask you to determine which of the four choices is not given in the passage. These questions contain the words NOT, EXCEPT, or LEAST (which are always capitalized).

- According to the passage, all of the following are true
EXCEPT
- Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?
- Which of the following is the LEAST likely . . .

Scan the passage to find the answers that ARE correct or ARE mentioned in the passage. Sometimes the three distractors are clustered in one or two sentences; sometimes they are scattered throughout the passage. The correct answer, of course, is the one that does not appear.

Negative questions often take more time than other questions. Therefore, you may want to guess and come back to these questions if you have time.

There are generally from three to six negative questions per Reading section.

C) Scanning Questions

These questions ask you to find where in the passage some particular information or transition is located. They are easy to identify: the answers are usually line numbers. They are usually easy to answer too. Scanning questions are often the last question in a set of questions about a passage. To answer these questions, use the same techniques for scanning given in Part A about factual questions.

Sample Questions

- In what line does the author shift his focus to _____?
- Where in the passage does the author first discuss _____?
- A description of _____ can be found in . . .
- Where in the passage does the author specifically stress _____?
- In what paragraph does the author first mention the concept of _____?

In each Reading section, there are generally from one to three scanning questions.

Exercise 45.1

Focus: Scanning passages to locate answers for factual and scanning questions.

Directions: For each question, locate that part of the passage in which the answer will probably be found, and write down the line numbers in the blank at the end of the passage. Don't worry about answering the question itself, only about finding the information. The first one is done as an example. Do these scanning exercises as fast as you can.

Questions 1–7

(line) Antlers grow from permanent knoblike bones on a deer's skull.
(5) Deer use their antlers chiefly to fight for mates or for leadership of a herd. Among most species of deer, only the males have antlers, but both male and female reindeer and caribou have antlers. Musk deer and Chinese water deer do not have antlers at all.

(10) Deer that live in mild or cold climates lose their antlers each winter. New ones begin to grow the next spring. Deer that live in tropical climates may lose their antlers and grow new ones at other times of year.

(15) New antlers are soft and tender. Thin skin grows over the antlers as they develop. Short, fine hair on the skin makes it look like velvet. Full-grown antlers are hard and strong. The velvety skin dries up and the deer rubs the skin off by scraping its antlers against trees. The antlers fall off several months later.

(20) The size and shape of a deer's antlers depend on the animal's age and health. The first set grows when the deer is from one to two years old. On most deer, the first antlers are short and straight. As deer get older, their antlers grow larger and form intricate branches.

1. How do deer primarily use their antlers? 2-3
 2. In what way are reindeer and caribou different from other types of deer? _____
 3. When do deer that live in temperate climates begin to grow their antlers? _____
 4. According to the article, which of the following does the skin on deer's antlers most closely resemble? _____

5. Which of the following factors influences the size and shape of a deer's antlers? _____
6. At what age do deer get their first antlers? _____
7. What happens to a deer's antlers as the deer grow older? _____

Questions 8–13

(line) The trumpet player Louis Armstrong, or Satchmo as he was usually called, was among the first jazz musicians to achieve international fame. He is known for the beautiful, clear tone of his trumpet playing and for his gruff, gravelly singing voice. He was one of the first musicians to sing in the scat style, using rhythmic nonsense syllables instead of lyrics.

- (5) Armstrong was born into a poor family in New Orleans. He first learned to play the cornet at the age of 13, taking lessons while living in a children's home. As a teenager, he played in a number of local jazz bands in New Orleans' rollicking nightlife district, Storyville.

(10) In 1922, Armstrong moved to Chicago to play in Joe "King" Oliver's band. Two years later, he joined Fletcher Henderson's band. Then, from 1925 to 1928, Armstrong made a series of records with groups called the Hot Five, the Hot Seven, and the Savoy Ballroom Five. These records rank among the greatest recordings in the history of jazz. They include "Cornet Chop Suey," "Potato Head Blues," and "West End Blues."

(15) Armstrong led a big band during the 1930's and 1940's, but in 1947 returned to playing with small jazz groups. He performed all over the world and made a number of hit records, such as "Hello, Dolly" and "Mack the Knife." Armstrong also appeared in a number of movies, first in New Orleans in 1947, High Society in 1956, and Hello, Dolly in 1969.

8. What was Armstrong's nickname? _____
9. Which of the following phrases best describes Armstrong's singing voice? _____
10. Where did Armstrong first learn to play the cornet? _____
11. In what city was Joe "King" Oliver's band based? _____
12. During what period did Armstrong record some of jazz's greatest records? _____
13. What was the first movie Armstrong appeared in? _____

Questions 14–23

(line) In 1862, during the Civil War, President Lincoln signed the Morrill Act. The measure was named for its sponsor, Congressman (later Senator) Justin S. Morrill of Vermont. Popularly called the Land Grant Act, it provided each state with 30,000 acres of public land for each senator and each
(5) representative it had in Congress. It required that the land be sold, the proceeds invested, and the income used to create and maintain colleges to teach agriculture and engineering.

(10) Although not all states used the money as planned in the act, some thirty states did establish new institutions. Purdue University, the University of Illinois, Texas A & M, Michigan State, and the University of California all trace their roots to the Morrill Act. Eighteen states gave the money to existing state universities to finance new agricultural and engineering departments. A few gave their money to private colleges. For example, Massachusetts used much of its funds to endow the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. One state changed its mind. Yale University was chosen to be funded in Connecticut, but farmers protested, and the legislature moved the assets to the University of Connecticut.

(15) Most students chose to study engineering. Agriculture was not even considered a science until it had been dignified by the work of research stations. These were established at land-grant institutions in 1887 by the Hatch Act. Gradually, universities broke away from the narrow functions Congress had assigned them and presented a full range of academic offerings, from anthropology to zoology.

Today there are some 69 land-grant institutions in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. About one in five college students in the United States attends land-grant schools.

14. When was the Morrill Act signed? _____
15. Who sponsored the Morrill Act? _____
16. What position did the sponsor of the Morrill Act have at the time it was passed? _____
17. How much land did each state receive under the Morrill Act? _____
18. How many states used the money in the way it was intended by Congress? _____
19. Which of these states used its money to fund a private university? _____
20. Who objected to the way the Connecticut legislature initially decided to spend its funds?

21. What was one effect of the Hatch Act of 1887? _____
22. How many land-grant institutions are in operation at present? _____
23. What percent of college students in the United States currently attend land-grant institutions?

Exercise 45.2

Focus: Answering factual, negative, and scanning questions about reading passages.

Directions: Read the following passages and the questions about them. Decide which of the choices—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—best answers the question, and mark the answer. The first one is done as an example.

Questions 1–9

- (line) Mesa Verde is the center of the prehistoric Anasazi culture. It is located in the high plateau lands near Four Corners, where Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, and Arizona come together. This high ground is majestic but not forbidding. The climate is dry, but tiny streams trickle at the bottom of deeply cut canyons, where seeps and springs provided water for the Anasazi to irrigate their crops.
- (5) Rich red soil provided fertile ground for their crops of corn, beans, squash, tobacco, and cotton. The Anasazi domesticated the wild turkey and hunted deer, rabbits, and mountain sheep.
- For a thousand years the Anasazi lived around Mesa Verde. Although the Anasazi are not related to the Navajos, no one knows what these Indians called themselves, and so they are commonly referred to by their Navajo name, Anasazi, which means “ancient ones” in the Navajo language.
- (10) Around 550 A.D., early Anasazi—then a nomadic people archaeologists call the Basketmakers—began constructing permanent homes on mesa tops. In the next 300 years, the Anasazi made rapid technological advancements, including the refinement of not only basket-making but also pottery-making and weaving. This phase of development is referred to as the Early Pueblo Culture.
- (15) By the Great Pueblo Period (1100–1300 A.D.), the Anasazi population swelled to over 5,000 and the architecturally ambitious cliff dwellings came into being. The Anasazi moved from the mesa tops onto ledges on the steep canyon walls, creating two and three story dwellings. They used sandstone blocks and mud mortar. There were no doors on the first floor and people used ladders to reach the first roof. All the villages had underground chambers called kivas. Men held tribal councils there and also used them for secret religious ceremonies and clan meetings. Winding paths, ladders, and steps
- (20) cut into the stone led from the valleys below to the ledges on which the villages stood. The largest settlement contained 217 rooms. One might surmise that these dwellings were built for protection, but the Anasazi had no known enemies and there is no sign of conflict.
- But a bigger mystery is why the Anasazi occupied these structures such a short time. By 1300, Mesa Verde was deserted. It is conjectured that the Anasazi abandoned their settlements because of
- (25) drought, overpopulation, crop failure, or some combination of these. They probably moved southward and were incorporated into the pueblo villages that the Spanish explorers encountered two hundred years later. Their descendants still live in the Southwest.

Questions 10–15

(line) Dulcimers are musical instruments that basically consist of wooden boxes with strings stretched
 (5) over them. In one form or another, they have been around since ancient times, probably originating with the Persian santir. Today there are two varieties: the hammered dulcimer and the Appalachian, or (10) mountain dulcimer. The former is shaped like a trapezoid, has two or more strings, and is played with wooden mallets. It is the same instrument played in a number of Old World countries. The Appalachian dulcimer is classified by musicologists as a box zither. It is a descendant of the Pennsylvania Dutch scheitholt and the French epinette. Appalachian dulcimers are painstakingly fashioned by artisans in the mountains of West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia. These instruments have three or four strings and are plucked with quills or the fingers. They are shaped like teardrops or hourglasses. Heart-shaped holes in the sounding board are traditional. Most performers play the instruments while seated with the instruments in their laps, but others wear them around their necks like guitars or place them on tables in front of them. Originally used to play dance music, Appalachian dulcimers were popularized by performers such as John Jacob Niles and Jean Ritchie during the folk music revival of the 1960's.

Questions 16–20

Humanitarian Dorothea Dix was born in Hampden, Maine, in 1802. At the age of 19, she established a school for girls, the Dix Mansion School, in Boston, but had to close it in 1835 due to her poor health. She wrote and published the first of many books for children in 1824. In 1841, Dix accepted an invitation to teach classes at a prison in East Cambridge, Massachusetts. She was deeply disturbed by the sight of mentally ill persons thrown in the jail and treated like criminals. For the next 18 months, she toured Massachusetts institutions where other mental patients were confined, and reported the shocking conditions she found to the state legislature. When improvements followed in Massachusetts, she turned her attention to the neighboring states and then to the West and South.

- (10) Dix's work was interrupted by the Civil War; she served as superintendent of women hospital nurses for the federal government.

Dix saw special hospitals for the mentally ill built in some 15 states. Although her plan to obtain public land for her cause failed, she aroused concern for the problem of mental illness all over the United States as well as in Canada and Europe.

Questions 21–26

(line) A quilt is a bed cover made of squares of material pieced together. Each square consists of two layers filled with a layer of wool or cotton cloth, feathers, or down. Often, the squares are decorated with fancy stitches and designs. According to legend, the earliest pieced quilt was stitched in 1704 by (5) Sarah Sedgewick Everett, wife of the governor of the Massachusetts colony. By 1774 George Washington was buying quilts in Belvoir, Virginia, to take back to Martha in Mount Vernon. As the frontier moved westward, quilting went along. In addition to sleeping under them, homesteaders kept out drafts by hanging quilts over doors and windows. And if the money ran out, quilts were used to pay debts.

(10) For isolated pioneer women, quilts were a source of comfort. Mary Wilman, whose family moved to Texas from Missouri in 1890, recalled the first time she and her mother had to spend a week alone and a dust storm came up. "The wind blew for three days and the dust was so thick that you couldn't see the barn. My mother quilted all day, and she taught me how to quilt. If it hadn't been for quilting, I think we would have gone crazy."

(15) Quilting provided an important social function for the women of the frontier as well. At quilting bees, women met to work on quilts and to share the latest news.

Today, however, the homely quilt has become a costly cultural phenomenon. The International Quilt Festival in Houston, Texas, the "world's fair of quilting," attracted only 2,500 people and displayed only 200 quilts when it began a dozen years ago. This year there were over 20,000 visitors and 5,000 quilts, some of which sold for as much as $50,000.

- _____ (D) Line 16

Questions 27–32

- (line) Ambient divers, unlike divers who go underwater in submersible vehicles or pressure-resistant suits, are exposed to the pressure and temperature of the surrounding (ambient) water. Of all types of diving, the oldest and simplest is free diving. Free divers may use no equipment at all, but most use a face mask, foot fins, and a snorkel. Under the surface, free divers must hold their breath. Most
- (5) free divers can descend only 30 to 40 feet, but some skilled divers can go as deep as 100 feet.

- Scuba diving provides greater range than free diving. The word scuba stands for self-contained underwater breathing apparatus. Scuba divers wear metal tanks with compressed air or other breathing gases. When using open-circuit equipment, a scuba diver simply breathes air from the tank through a hose and releases the exhaled air into the water. A closed-circuit breathing device, also
- (10) called a rebreather, filters out carbon dioxide and other harmful gases and automatically adds oxygen. This enables the diver to breathe the same air over and over.

In surface-supplied diving, divers wear helmets and waterproof canvas suits. Today, sophisticated plastic helmets have replaced the heavy copper helmets used in the past. These divers get their air from a hose connected to compressors on a boat. Surface-supplied divers can go deeper than any other type of ambient diver.

27. Ambient divers are ones who
- _____ (A) can descend to extreme depths
- _____ (B) use submersible vehicles
- _____ (C) use no equipment
- _____ (D) are exposed to the surrounding water
28. According to the passage, a free diver may use any of the following EXCEPT
- _____ (A) a rebreather
- _____ (B) a snorkel
- _____ (C) foot fins
- _____ (D) a mask
29. According to the passage, the maximum depth for free divers is around
- _____ (A) 40 feet
- _____ (B) 100 feet
- _____ (C) 200 feet
- _____ (D) 1,000 feet
30. When using closed-circuit devices, divers
- _____ (A) exhale air into the water
- _____ (B) hold their breath
- _____ (C) breathe the same air over and over
- _____ (D) receive air from the surface
31. According to the passage, surface-supplied divers today use helmets made from
- _____ (A) glass
- _____ (B) copper
- _____ (C) plastic
- _____ (D) canvas

32. Where in the passage does the author mention which type of diver can make the deepest descents?
- _____ (A) Lines 2-3
 - _____ (B) Lines 6-8
 - _____ (C) Lines 9-10
 - _____ (D) Lines 14-15

LESSON 46

INFERENCE QUESTIONS AND PURPOSE QUESTIONS

A) Inference Questions

As in the Listening Comprehension section, there are questions in the Reading Comprehension section that require you to make inferences. The answers to these questions are not directly provided in the passage—you must “read between the lines.” In other words, you must make conclusions based indirectly on information in the passage. Many test-takers find these questions the most difficult type of Reading question.

Inference questions may be phrased in a number of ways. Many of these questions contain some form of the words infer or imply:

- Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?
- It can be inferred from the passage that . . .
- The author implies that . . .
- Which of the following does the passage imply?
- Which of the following would be the most reasonable guess about _____?
- The author suggests that . . .
- It is probable that . . .

There will probably be from five to eight of these questions per Reading section.

▼ Sample Item

A star very similar to the Sun is one of the nearest stars to Earth. That star is Alpha Centauri, just 4.3 light-years away. Other than our own Sun, the nearest star to the Earth is a tiny red star, not visible without a telescope, called Proxima Centauri.

It can be inferred from this passage that

- (A) Proxima Centauri is similar to the Earth's Sun.
- (B) Proxima Centauri is the closest star to the Earth.
- (C) Alpha Centauri is invisible from the Earth.
- (D) Proxima Centauri is less than 4.3 light-years from the Earth.

(A) (B) (C)

Choice (A) is not a valid inference; Alpha Centauri is similar to the Sun, but Proxima Centauri is “a tiny red star.” Choice (B) also cannot be inferred; the closest star to the Earth is our own Sun. Nor can (C) be inferred; Proxima Centauri is invisible, but there is no information as to whether Alpha Centauri is. Since Alpha Centauri is 4.3 light-years away, it can be inferred that Alpha Centauri, the closest star, is less than that. ▲

B) Purpose Questions

These questions ask why the author of a passage mentions some piece of information, includes a quotation from a person or a study, or uses some particular word or phrase.

Sample Questions

- Why does the author mention _____?
- The author refers to _____ to indicate that . . .
- The author quotes _____ in order to show . . .
- The phrase _____ in line _____ is mentioned to illustrate the effect of . . .

Sample Answer Choices

- To strengthen the argument that _____
- To provide an example of _____
- To challenge the idea that _____
- To contradict _____
- To support the proposal to _____

There are usually from one to four purpose questions per Reading section.

Exercise 46.1

Focus: Identifying valid inferences based on sentences.

Directions: Read each sentence; then mark the one answer choice—(A), (B), or (C)—that is a valid inference based on that sentence. The first one is done as an example.

 _____ (C) Cowboys are generally younger than shepherds.
12. The Okefenokee Swamp is a fascinating realm that both confirms and contradicts popular notions of a swamp, because along with huge cypresses, dangerous quagmires, and dim waterways, the Okefenokee has sandy pine islands, sunlit prairies, and clear lakes.
 _____ (A) People generally feel that swamps are fascinating places.
 _____ (B) The Okefenokee has features that most people do not associate with swamps.
 _____ (C) Most swamps do not have huge cypresses, dangerous quagmires, and dim waterways.
13. As an architect, Thomas Jefferson preferred the Roman style, as seen in the University of Virginia, to the English style favored by Charles Bullfinch.
 _____ (A) The University of Virginia was influenced by the Roman style.
 _____ (B) Bullfinch was an English architect.
 _____ (C) Jefferson preferred to build in the English style of architecture.

- _____ (C) Silk is used by all spiders.

Exercise 46.2

Focus: Recognizing valid inferences based on longer passages.

Directions: Read the passages. If the statements following the passages are valid inferences based on those passages, mark the items I. If the statements cannot be inferred from the passage, mark those items X. The first one is done as an example.

Questions 1–7

- (line) The term "neon light" was originally applied to a particular type of vapor lamp using the inert gas neon. A long tube was filled with neon, which then became luminous at low pressure when an electric current was passed through it. The lamp then emitted
- (5) the characteristic reddish-orange light of neon. Today, the term "neon light" is given to lamps of this general type which may be filled with a variety of gases, depending on the color that is desired. Argon, for example, is used to produce blue light. Colors can also be altered by changing the color of the glass
- (10) tube. The tubes must be quite long in all these lamps to produce light efficiently. As a result, high voltages are required. Neon tube lamps are not practical for indoor illumination, but they have found widespread outdoor use in glowing, colorful advertising signs.

- X 1. The inert gas neon is reddish-orange in color.
2. The meaning of the term "neon light" has changed over time.
3. Today's "neon lights" never actually contain neon.
4. All types of "neon lights" work on the same general principles.
5. When stimulated by electricity, different types of gas produce different colors.
6. Modern "neon lights" are more efficient than those used in the past.
7. The primary market for neon lights is businesses rather than private households.

Questions 8–15

(line) Natural flavorings and fragrances are often costly and limited
(5) in supply. For example, the vital ingredient in a rose fragrance is extracted from natural rose oil at a cost of thousands of dollars a pound; an identical synthetic substance can be made for 1% of this cost. Since the early twentieth century, success in reproducing these substances has created a new industry that today produces hundreds of artificial flavors and fragrances.

(10) Some natural fragrances are easily synthesized; these include vanillin, the aromatic ingredient in vanilla, and benzaldehyde, the aromatic ingredient in wild cherries. Other fragrances, however, have dozens, even hundreds of components. Only recently has it been possible to separate and identify these ingredients by the use of gas chromatography and spectroscopy. Once the chemical identity is known, it is often possible to synthesize
(15) them. Nevertheless, some complex substances, such as the aroma of fresh coffee, have still not been duplicated satisfactorily.

Many of the chemical compounds making up these synthetics are identical to those found in nature, and are as harmless or harmful as the natural substances. New products must be tested
(20) for safety, and when used in food, must be approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The availability of synthetic flavors and fragrances has made possible a large variety of products, from inexpensive beverages to perfumed soap to used cars with applied “new car odor.”

- _____ 8. Natural rose fragrance is 100 times more expensive to produce than artificial rose fragrance.
- _____ 9. Vanillin is easier to synthesize than benzaldehyde.
- _____ 10. In general, the more components there are in a fragrance, the harder it is to synthesize.
- _____ 11. Once a substance has been chemically analyzed, it can always be easily synthesized.
- _____ 12. Only recently has it been possible to satisfactorily synthesize the aroma of fresh coffee.
- _____ 13. Not all synthetic flavors are harmless.
- _____ 14. Synthesized substances must be tested for safety only if they are used in food.
- _____ 15. Synthetic fragrances can be used to make a used car smell like a new one.

Questions 16–20

- (line) A legend is a popular type of folk tale. In some ways, legends
(5) resemble myths, another type of folk tale. But myths describe events from antiquity and usually deal with religious subjects, such as the birth of a god. Legends tell of recognizable people, places, and events and often take place in comparatively recent times. Some legends are based on real persons or events, but many are entirely fictional. The legends of the superhuman accomplishments of Paul Bunyan and Pecos Bill are imaginary, while the legends about Washington and Lincoln are mostly
(10) exaggerations of real qualities those two presidents had.

All societies have legends. Most legends began as stories about the heroes of a particular region, occupation, or ethnic group. For example, John Henry was a legendary hero of black Americans, and Casey Jones of railroad workers. Over time, however, these figures have become national heroes.

- _____ 16. Both legends and myths can be classified as folk tales.
_____ 17. Myths generally take place in comparatively recent times.
_____ 18. The stories of Paul Bunyan and Pecos Bill are not true, but they are based on actual people.
_____ 19. Legends about Washington and Lincoln are not entirely fictional.
_____ 20. John Henry and Casey Jones are today well-known only by certain groups of people.

Exercise 46.3

Focus: Answering inference and purpose questions.

Directions: Read the following passages and the questions about them. Decide which of the choices—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—best answers the question, and mark the answer. The first one is done as an example.

Questions 1–4

- (line) Pigeons have been taught to recognize human facial expressions,
(5) upsetting long-held beliefs that only humans had evolved the sophisticated nervous systems to perform such a feat. In recent experiments at the University of Iowa, eight trained pigeons were shown photographs of people displaying emotions of happiness, anger, surprise, and disgust. The birds learned to distinguish between these expressions. Not only that, but they were also able to correctly identify the same expressions on photographs of unfamiliar faces. Their achievement does not suggest, of course,
(10) that the pigeons had any idea what the human expressions meant.

Some psychologists have theorized that because of the importance of facial expression to human communication, humans developed special nervous systems capable of recognizing subtle expressions. The pigeons cast doubt on that idea, however.

- (15) In fact, the ability to recognize facial expressions of emotion is not necessarily innate even in human babies, but may have to be learned in much the same way pigeons learn. In experiments conducted several years ago at the University of Iowa, it was found that pigeons organize images of things into the same logical categories that humans do.
- (20) None of this work would come as any surprise to Charles Darwin, who long ago wrote about the continuity of mental development from animals to humans.

1. From the passage, which of the following can be inferred about pigeons?
 - ☐ (A) They can show the same emotions humans can.
 - ☐ (B) They can understand human emotions.
 - ☐ (C) They can only identify the expressions of people they are familiar with.
 - ☒ (D) They have more sophisticated nervous systems than was once thought.
2. The passage implies that, at birth, human babies
 - ☐ (A) have nervous systems capable of recognizing subtle expressions
 - ☐ (B) can learn from pigeons
 - ☐ (C) are not able to recognize familiar faces
 - ☐ (D) may not be able to identify basic emotions through facial expressions
3. Why does the author mention the experiments conducted several years ago at the University of Iowa?
 - ☐ (A) They proved that pigeons were not the only kind of animal with the ability to recognize facial expressions.
 - ☐ (B) They were contradicted by more recent experiments.
 - ☐ (C) They proved that the ability to recognize human expressions was not innate in human babies.
 - ☐ (D) They showed the similarities between the mental organization of pigeons and that of humans.
4. If Charles Darwin could have seen the results of this experiment, his most probable response would have been one of
 - ☐ (A) rejection
 - ☐ (B) surprise
 - ☐ (C) agreement
 - ☐ (D) amusement

Questions 5–7

- (line) The spectacular eruptions of Old Faithful geyser in Yellowstone National Park do not occur like clockwork. Before the earthquake of 1959, eruptions came every 60 to 65 minutes; today they are as little as 30 minutes or as much as 90 minutes apart. The geyser
- (5) usually gives a warning: a short burst of steam. Then a graceful column rises up to 150 feet in the air. The water unfurls in the sunlight with the colors of the rainbow playing across it.

- This eruption is only the visible part of the spectacle. The geyser is linked by an intricate plumbing network to some
- (10) extremely hot rocks. As water seeps into the underground system, it is heated at the bottom like water in a tea kettle. But while water in a kettle rises because of convection, the narrow tubes of the geyser system prevent free circulation of the water. Thus,

- (15) the water in the upper tubes is far cooler than the water at the bottom. The weight of the water puts pressure on the column, and this raises the boiling point of the water near the bottom. Finally, the water in the upper part of the column warms and expands, some of it welling out of the mouth of the geyser. This decreases the pressure on the superheated water, which
- (20) abruptly turns to steam. This in turn forces all the water and vapor out of the geyser.
5. It can be inferred from the passage that the earthquake of 1959 made Old Faithful geyser erupt _____
- _____ (A) more frequently
 _____ (B) less regularly
 _____ (C) more suddenly
 _____ (D) less spectacularly
6. Why does the author mention a rainbow in line 7?
- _____ (A) The column of water forms an arc in the shape of a rainbow.
 _____ (B) In the sunlight, the column of water may produce the colors of the rainbow.
 _____ (C) Rainbows can be seen quite frequently in Yellowstone National Park.
 _____ (D) The rainbow, like the geyser, is an example of the beauty of nature.
7. The passage implies that Old Faithful would probably not erupt at all if _____
- _____ (A) the tubes of the geyser system were very wide
 _____ (B) the climate suddenly changed
 _____ (C) there had not been an earthquake in 1959
 _____ (D) the underground tubes were longer

Questions 8–12

- (line) In 1881, a new type of weed began spreading across the northern Great Plains. Unlike other weeds, the tumbleweed did not spend its life rooted to the soil; instead it tumbled and rolled across
- (5) fields in the wind. The weed had sharp, spiny leaves that could lacerate the flesh of ranchers and horses alike. It exploited the vast area of the plains, thriving in regions too barren to support other plants. With its ability to generate and disseminate numerous seeds quickly, it soon became the scourge of the prairies.
- (10) To present-day Americans, the tumbleweed symbolizes the Old West. They read the Zane Grey novels in which tumbleweeds drift across stark western landscapes and see classic western movies in which tumbleweeds share scenes with cowboys and covered wagons. Yet just over a century ago, the tumbleweed was a newcomer. The
- (15) first sign of the invasion occurred in North and South Dakota in the late 1870's.
- Farmers had noticed the sudden appearance of the new, unusual weed. One group of immigrants, however, did not find the weed at all unfamiliar. The tumbleweed, it turns out, was a native of
- (20) southern Russia, where it was known as Tartar thistle. It was imported to the United States by unknown means.

- (25) Frontier settlers gave the plants various names: saltwort, Russian cactus, and wind witch. But botanists at the Department of Agriculture preferred the designation Russian thistle as the plant's common name. However, these botanists had a much harder time agreeing on the plant's scientific name. Generally, botanists compare a plant to published accounts of similar plants, or to samples kept as specimens. Unfortunately, no book described the weed, and no samples existed in herbaria in the United States.
8. Which of the following can be inferred about tumbleweeds?
- _____ (A) They have strong, deep roots.
 - _____ (B) They require a lot of care.
 - _____ (C) They reproduce efficiently.
 - _____ (D) They provided food for ranchers and animals.
9. The passage suggests that most present-day Americans
- _____ (A) consider the tumbleweed beneficial
 - _____ (B) don't know when tumbleweeds came to North America
 - _____ (C) have never heard of tumbleweeds
 - _____ (D) believe tumbleweeds are newcomers to the United States
10. The author mentions the novels of Zane Grey and classic western movies (lines 11-12) because they
- _____ (A) tell the story of the invasion of tumbleweeds
 - _____ (B) are sources of popular information about tumbleweeds
 - _____ (C) present very inaccurate pictures of tumbleweeds
 - _____ (D) were written long before tumbleweeds were present in the United States
11. It is probable that the "group of immigrants" mentioned in line 18
- _____ (A) was from southern Russia
 - _____ (B) had lived in North and South Dakota for many years
 - _____ (C) imported tumbleweeds into the United States
 - _____ (D) wrote a number of accounts about tumbleweeds
12. From the passage it can be inferred that the botanists at the Department of Agriculture
- _____ (A) could not find any tumbleweeds on the plains
 - _____ (B) gave the names saltwort, Russian cactus, and wind witch to the tumbleweed
 - _____ (C) could not decide on a common designation for the tumbleweed
 - _____ (D) found it difficult to classify the plant scientifically

Questions 13-17

- (line) For most modern airports, the major design problem is scale—
(5) how to allow adequate space on the ground for maneuvering wide-body jets while permitting convenient and rapid movement of passengers departing, arriving, or transferring from one flight to another.

- Most designs for airport terminals take one of four approaches. In the linear plan, the building may be straight or curved. The passengers board aircraft parked next to the terminal. This plan works well for small airports that need to provide boarding areas for only a few aircraft at a time.
- (10)

In the pier plan, narrow corridors or piers extend from a central building. This plan allows many aircraft to park next to the building. However, it creates long walking distances for passengers.

- (15) In the satellite plan, passengers board aircraft from small terminals that are separated from the main terminals. Passengers reach the satellites by way of shuttle trains or underground passageways that have shuttle trains or moving sidewalks.
- (20) The transporter plan employs some system of transport to move passengers from the terminal building to the aircraft. If buses are used, the passengers must climb a flight of stairs to board the aircraft. If mobile lounges are used, they can link up directly with the aircraft and protect passengers from the weather.
13. It can be inferred that scale would not pose a major design problem at airports if _____ (A) airports were larger
 _____ (B) aircraft did not need so much space to maneuver on the ground
 _____ (C) other forms of transportation were more efficient
 _____ (D) airplanes could fly faster
14. The linear plan would probably be best at _____ (A) a busy airport
 _____ (B) an airport used by many small aircraft
 _____ (C) an airport with only a few arrivals or departures
 _____ (D) an airport that serves a large city
15. The passage implies that the term “satellite plan” is used because _____ (A) satellites are launched and tracked from these sites
 _____ (B) small terminals encircle the main terminal like satellites around a planet
 _____ (C) the plan makes use of the most modern, high-technology equipment
 _____ (D) airports that make use of this plan utilize data from weather satellites
16. The passage suggests that shuttle trains transfer passengers to satellite terminals from _____ (A) the main terminal
 _____ (B) airplanes
 _____ (C) downtown
 _____ (D) other satellite terminals
17. It can be inferred that mobile lounges would be more desirable than buses when _____ (A) passengers are in a hurry
 _____ (B) flights have been delayed
 _____ (C) the weather is bad
 _____ (D) passengers need to save money

Questions 18–20

(line) The sea has been rising relative to the land for at least 100
(5) years, geologists say. During that same period, the Atlantic Coast has eroded an average of 2 to 3 feet per year, the Gulf Coast even faster. Many engineers maintain that seawalls and replenished beaches are necessary to protect the nation's shoreline. Too many people live or vacation in Miami Beach, Atlantic City, or Martha's Vineyard to allow their roads and buildings to simply fall into the sea.

(10) The problem with seawalls is that they simply don't work. One study has shown that, in fact, seawalls accelerate the erosion of beaches.

(15) Faced with the loss of their beaches, other communities have tried a simple but expensive solution: replace the lost sand. These replenishment programs, however, are costly and of dubious value. Another study has shown that only 10% of replenished beaches lasted more than 5 years.

18. It can be inferred from the passage that the author
 _____ (A) opposes the use of both seawalls and beach replenishment
 _____ (B) believes beach replenishment would be more effective than seawalls
 _____ (C) opposes any actions to protect the shoreline
 _____ (D) denies that beach erosion is a problem
19. Why does the author mention Miami Beach, Atlantic City, and Martha's Vineyard?
 _____ (A) These are communities with seawalls.
 _____ (B) These are communities that have implemented replenishment programs.
 _____ (C) These are communities in danger of beach erosion.
 _____ (D) These are communities which have lost roads and buildings to erosion.
20. The author quotes the two studies in the passage in order to _____ (A) suggest that the sea is not rising as fast as was originally believed
 _____ (B) strengthen the engineers' contention that seawalls and replenished beaches are necessary
 _____ (C) propose two new solutions to beach erosion
 _____ (D) support his own position

LESSON 47VOCABULARY-IN-CONTEXT QUESTIONS

In vocabulary-in-context questions, you must determine which of four words or phrases can best substitute for a word or words in the passage.

Most of the questions ask about single words (usually nouns, verbs, adjectives, and adverbs). Some ask about two- or three-word phrases.

Sometimes two or more of the answer choices for these items might be “correct” definitions of the word that is asked about. In those cases, you must decide which is correct in the context of the passage.

There are a number of clues that can help you determine the meaning of an unknown word:

■ Synonyms

The first state to institute compulsory education was Massachusetts, which made it mandatory for students to attend school 12 weeks a year.

The word mandatory is a synonym for the word compulsory.

■ Examples

Many gardeners use some kind of mulch, such as chopped leaves, peat moss, grass clippings, pine needles, or wood chips, in order to stop the growth of weeds and to hold in moisture.

From the examples given, it is clear that mulch is plant matter.

■ Contrast

In the 1820's the Southern states supported improvements in the national transportation system, but the Northern states balked.

Since the Southern states supported improvements, and since a word signaling contrast (but) is used, it is clear that the Northern states disagreed with this idea, and that the word balked must mean objected or refused.

■ General Context

In a desert, vegetation is so scanty as to be incapable of supporting any large human population.

As is generally known, deserts contain little vegetation, so clearly the word scanty must mean scarce or barely sufficient.

When answering vocabulary-in-context questions, you must often depend on the general context of the sentence to help you choose the correct answer.

You should follow these steps to answer vocabulary-in-context items:

1. Look at the word being asked about and the four answer choices. If you are familiar with the word, guess which answer is correct. Do not mark your answer sheet yet.
2. Read the sentence in which the word appears. If you were familiar with the word and guessed at the answer, make sure that the word that you chose fits with the word as it is used in the sentence. If you were unfamiliar with the word, see if context clues in the sentence or in the sentences before or after help you guess the meaning.

3. If you are not sure which answer is correct, read the sentence with each of the four answer choices in place. Does one seem more logical, given the context of the sentence, than the other three? If not, do any seem illogical? (Those you can eliminate.)
4. If you're still not sure, make the best guess you can and go on.

▼ Sample Items

In Britain's North American colonies, university trained physicians were at a premium. At the time of the Revolution, there were probably only around 400 physicians and some 3,000 practitioners who had on-the-job training as barber-surgeons or physicians' apprentices. Whether university trained or not, none had much knowledge of the causes of disease, and the "cures" they often recommended—bleeding, blistering, and the use of violent purgatives—were at best ineffective and at worst lethal.

1. The phrase "at a premium" in line 2 is closest in meaning to
 - (A) well-paid
 - (B) not very numerous
 - (C) very experienced
 - (D) not well-respected

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

The phrase "only around 400" indicates that there was a shortage of university-trained physicians.

2. Which of the following words could best be substituted for the word "lethal" in line 10?
 - (A) Impractical
 - (B) Brutal
 - (C) Impossible
 - (D) Deadly

(A) (B) (C) ☒

The phrase "at best ineffectual and at worst lethal" indicates that the correct answer must describe a situation much worse than ineffectual. Choices (A) and (C) don't create logical sentences when substituted for lethal. Choice (B), brutal (which means savage or violent), is more logical, but only choice (D) is synonymous with the word that is asked about. ▲

Exercise 47.1

Focus: Using context clues to answer vocabulary-in-context questions involving words with multiple definitions.

Directions: Read each item. Then mark the answer choice that could best be used in place of the underlined expression as it appears in the sentence.

Exercise 47.2

Focus: Answering vocabulary-in-context questions about words or phrases in reading passages.

Directions: Answer the questions about the vocabulary in the passages, and mark the words or phrases that are closest in meaning to the words or phrases that are asked about. The first one is done as an example.

Questions 1–11

- (line) The Civil War created feverish manufacturing activity to supply
 (5) critical material, especially in the North. When the fighting stopped, the stage was set for dramatic economic growth. Wartime taxes on production vanished, and the few taxes that remained leaned heavily on real estate, not on business. The population flow from farm to city increased, and the labor force it provided was buttressed by millions of newly arrived immigrants willing to work for low wages in the mills of the North and on the railroad crews of the Midwest and West.
- (10) Government was nothing if not accommodating. It established tariff barriers, provided loans and grants to build a transcontinental railroad, and assumed a studied posture of nonintervention in private enterprise. The social Darwinism of British philosopher Herbert Spencer and American economist William (15) Graham Summer prevailed. The theory was that business, if left to its own devices, would eliminate the weak and nurture the strong.
 But as business expanded, rivalry heated up. In the 1880's, five railroads operating between New York and Chicago were vying for traffic, and two more were under construction. As a result of (20) the battle, the fare between the cities decreased to $1. The petroleum industry suffered from similar savage competition, and in the 1870's, many oil industries failed.

Questions 12–19

All birds have feathers, and all animals with feathers are birds. No other major group of animals is so easy to categorize. All birds have wings, too, but wings are not peculiar to birds.

(line) Many adaptations are found in both feathers and wings. Feathers
(5) form the soft down of geese and ducks, the long decorative plumes of ostriches, and the strong flight feathers of eagles and hawks.

Wings vary from the short, broad ones of chickens, which seldom fly, to the long, slim ones of albatrosses, which spend almost all their lives soaring on air currents. In penguins, wings have been
(10) modified into flippers and feathers into a waterproof covering. In kiwis, the wings are almost impossible to detect.

Yet diversity among birds is not so striking as it is among mammals. The difference between a hummingbird and a penguin is immense, but hardly as startling as that between a bat and a whale.
(15) It is variations in details rather than in fundamental patterns that have been important in the adaptation of birds to many kinds of ecosystems.

12. The word “categorize” in line 2 is closest in meaning to

Questions 20–27

- (line) Manufactured in the tranquil New England town of Concord, New
(5) Hampshire, the famous Concord Coach came to symbolize the Wild West. Its rugged body and a suspension system of leather straps could handle the hard jolts from rough roads. A journalist in 1868, describing a railroad shipment of 30 coaches bound for Wells, Fargo and Company, wrote, "They are splendidly decorated . . . the bodies red and the running parts yellow. Each door has a handsome picture, mostly landscapes, and no two coaches are exactly alike."
- (10) Wells, Fargo and Company was founded in 1852 to provide mail and her responsibility to and for the Peaceful People—the Hopi’s the universe. With this they organize their society in such a way to obtain a measure of security from a harsh and hazardous environment made up of human foes, famine, and plagues. They

Questions 36–42

Canadian researchers have discovered a set of genes that determine the lifespan of the common nematode, a type of worm. This finding sheds new light on the aging process that may eventually allow scientists to delay the inexorable process of aging and death.

(line) (5)

By manipulating the newly discovered genes, the team at McGill University in Montreal was able to increase the lifespan of the nematode fivefold. Altering the genes apparently slowed the metabolism of the worms to a more leisurely pace. This in turn may slow the accumulation of the DNA defects thought to cause aging.

LESSON 48REFERENCE QUESTIONS

Reference questions ask what noun (called the referent) a pronoun or some other expression refers to. The correct answer is not always the noun that is closest to the pronoun in the passage. Incorrect choices are usually other nouns that appear in the passage. If you are unable to decide immediately which answer is correct, substitute the four choices for the word that is being asked about. Which one is the most logical substitute?

In general, reference questions tend to be the easiest type of reading question.

▼ Sample Item

- (line) There is a poisonous, plant-like animal called the
(5) anemone that lives among coral reefs. When small fish venture too close to the tentacles of these “living flowers,” they are stung and eaten. For unknown reasons, the anemone makes an exception of the clownfish, which swims through its deadly tentacles in safety. When in danger, the clownfish dashes among the anemone’s tentacles where other fish are afraid to follow. The clownfish even builds its nest where the anemone can protect it.

1. The word “they” in line 4 refers to

- (A) coral reefs
- (B) small fish
- (C) tentacles
- (D) flowers

2. The word “it” in line 10 is a reference to the

- (A) clownfish
- (B) nest

Questions 1–6

- In addition to these various types of deep mining, several types of surface mining may be used when minerals lie relatively close to the surface of the Earth. One type is open-pit mining.
- (line) The first step is to remove the overburden, the layers of rock
(5) and earth lying above the ore, with giant scrapers. The ore is broken up in a series of blasting operations. Power shovels pick up the pieces and load them into trucks or, in some cases, ore trains. These carry it up ramps to ground level. Soft ores are removed by drilling screws, called augers.
- (10) Another type is called “placer” mining. Sometimes heavy metals such as gold are found in soil deposited by streams and rivers. The soil is picked up by a power shovel and transferred to a long trough. Water is run through the soil in the trough. This carries soil particles away with it. The metal particles are heavier than - (15) the soil and sink to the bottom, where they can be recovered.
- The finishing-off process of mining is called mineral concentration. In this process, the desired substances are removed from the waste in various ways. One technique is to bubble air through a liquid in which ore particles are suspended.
- (20) Chemicals are added that make the minerals cling to the air bubbles. The bubbles rise to the surface with the mineral particles attached, and they can be skimmed off and saved.

Questions 7–10

(line) Mount Rainier, the heart of Mt. Rainier National Park, is the highest mountain in the state of Washington and in the Cascade Range. The mountain's summit is broad and rounded. It is 14,410
 (5) feet above sea level and has an area of about one square mile.
 Numerous steam and gas jets occur around the crater, but the volcano has been sleeping for many centuries.

Mount Rainier has a permanent ice cap and extensive snow fields, which give rise to over forty glaciers. These feed swift streams and tumbling waterfalls that race through the glacial between the glaciers and the forests which contain beautiful wild flowers. The Nisqually Glacier is probably the ice region that is most often explored by visitors. Paradise Valley, where hotel

Questions 11–15

Some people associate migration mainly with birds. Birds do travel vast distances, but mammals also migrate. An example is the caribou, reindeer that graze on the grassy slopes of northern Canada. When the weather turns cold, they travel south until spring. Their tracks are so well-worn that they are clearly visible from the air. Another migrating mammal is the Alaska fur seal. These seals breed only in the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea. The young are born in June and by September are strong enough to go with their mothers on a journey of over 3,000 miles. Together they swim down the Pacific Coast of North America. The females and young travel as far as southern California. The males do not journey so far. They swim only to the Gulf of Alaska. In the spring, males and females all return to the islands, and there the cycle begins again. Whales are among the greatest migrators of all. The humpback, fin, and blue whales migrate thousands of miles each year from the polar seas to the tropics. Whales eat huge quantities of tiny plants and animals (called plankton). These are most abundant in cold polar waters. In winter, the whales move to warm waters to breed and give birth to their young.

11. The phrase “An example” in line 2 refers to an example of a

Questions 16–19

(line) Design is the arrangement of materials to produce certain
 (5) effects. Design plays a role in visual arts and in the creation of commercial products as well. Designers are concerned with the direction of lines, the size of shapes, and the shading of colors. They arrange these patterns in ways that are satisfying to viewers. There are various elements involved in creating a pleasing design.

(10) Harmony, or balance, can be obtained in a number of ways. It may be either symmetrical (in balance) or asymmetrical (out of balance, but still pleasing to the eye). Or a small area may balance a large area if it has an importance to the eye (because of color or treatment) which equals that of the larger area.

(15) Contrast is the opposite of harmony. The colors red and orange harmonize, since orange contains red. A circle and oval harmonize, as they are both made up of curved lines. But a short line does not harmonize with a long line. It is in contrast.

(20) Unity occurs when all the elements in a design combine to form a consistent whole. Unity resembles balance. A design has balance if its masses are balanced, or if its tones and colors harmonize. But unity differs from balance because it implies that balanced elements work together to form harmony in the design as a whole.

16. The word "They" in line 5 refers to _____ (A) designers
 _____ (B) lines, shapes, and colors
 _____ (C) directions, size, and shape
 _____ (D) visual arts

 _____ (A) unity
 _____ (B) balance
 _____ (C) a design
 _____ (D) a consistent whole

Questions 20–22

- Although they had been used to haul freight and passengers between the Eastern seaboard and the Ohio Valley since 1812, wagon trains were first used extensively in the 1820's on the Santa Fe Trail. Long trains of covered wagons drawn by oxen or mules carried manufactured goods to trade for fur, gold, and silver in Santa Fe. The independent traders who pooled their resources to form these trains elected a captain and several lieutenants who commanded the parallel columns in which the wagons usually moved. They enforced the rules, selected the routes, and designated stopping places.

Questions 23–26

- In most of the earliest books for children, illustrations were an afterthought. But in the Caldecott “toy books,” pictures were as important as the few lines of copy, and they occupied far more space. One can almost read the nursery rhymes from the dramatic action in the pictures.
- (line) (5) (10) (15)
- Since then, thousands of successful picture books have been published in the United States and in many countries around the world. In the best, the text and illustrations seem to complement each other perfectly. Often one person is the author and illustrator—for example, Robert McCloskey (Make Way for Ducklings) and Arnold Loebel (Frog and Toad Together). Many others have been produced by an author-artist team, as in The Happy Lion, written by Louise Fatio and illustrated by Roger Duvoisin.
- Wordless picture books have also become popular. With a little help, three- or four-year-olds can follow the sequence of events and they can understand the stories suggested in them. One of the most delightful examples of a wordless book is Jan Ormerod’s Sunshine.

- (20) American publishers have also drawn on artists from other countries whose original, imaginative works have brought their different visions to American children's book illustration. Among them are Leo Lionni from Italy, Feoddor Rojankowski from Russia, and Taro Yashima from Japan.

Questions 1–12

- (line) Humans have struggled against weeds since the beginnings of
 (5) agriculture. Marring our gardens is one of the milder effects of weeds—any plants that thrive where they are unwanted. They clog waterways, destroy wildlife habitats, and impede farming. Their spread eliminates grazing areas and accounts for one-third of all crop loss. They compete for sunlight, nutrients, and water with useful plants.

(10) The global need for weed control has been answered mainly by the chemical industry. Its herbicides are effective and sometimes necessary, but some pose serious problems, particularly if misused. Toxic compounds threaten animal and public health when they accumulate in food plants, ground water, and drinking water. They also harm workers who apply them.

(15) In recent years, the chemical industry has introduced several herbicides that are more ecologically sound. Yet new chemicals alone cannot solve the world's weed problems. Hence, scientists are exploring the innate weed-killing powers of living organisms, primarily insects and microorganisms.

(20) The biological agents now in use are harmless to humans and are environmentally benign. They can be chosen for their ability to attack selected targets and leave crops and other plants untouched. In contrast, some of the most effective chemicals kill virtually all the plants they come in contact with, sparing only those that are naturally resistant or have been genetically modified for resistance. Furthermore, a number of biological agents
(25) can be administered only once, after which no added applications are needed. Chemicals typically must be used several times per growing season.

1. With what topic does this passage primarily deal?

 _____ (D) A proposal to ban the use of all herbicides

- (5) By happenstance, the number of people at the show equalled the entire car population at that time. At that time, 10 million bicycles and an unknown number of horse-and-buggies provided the prime means of transportation. Questions 34–41

When drawing human figures, children often make the head too large for the rest of the body. A recent study offers some insights into this common disproportion in children's illustrations. As part of the study, researchers asked children (line) between four and seven years old to make several drawings of men. (5) When they drew front views of male figures, the size of the heads was markedly enlarged. However, when the children drew rear views of men, the size of the heads was not so exaggerated. Guide to the Test of Written English (TWE)

About the Test of Written English

Introduction

The TWE (Test of Written English) is designed to measure your ability to write an academic essay. The TWE is NOT given with Institutional TOEFL tests. However, it is ALWAYS given with paper-based tests that are administered by ETS. It is administered before the other three sections of TOEFL. There is no additional fee required to take the TWE.

TWE differs from the rest of TOEFL in that it is productive. Instead of choosing one of four answer choices, you must write your own short essay. TWE consists of a single essay topic called a prompt; there is no choice as to what to write about. You have thirty minutes in which to write an essay based on the prompt. A typical TWE answer is about 200 to 300 words long and is divided into four or five paragraphs.

The most common type of TWE prompt asks you to write a contrast/opinion essay. In this type of essay, you must contrast two points of view, then defend one of those positions. Another type of essay asks you to select some development, invention, or phenomenon and explain its importance. Prompts are carefully chosen to avoid anything controversial, upsetting, or unfair to a particular group.

At ETS, your essay is read by at least two trained readers who score it “holistically.” In other words, the essay is not judged according to individual errors you might make but by the overall organization, development, clarity, and effectiveness of your writing. The score is based on a scale of 1 to 6; half-point scores (5.5, 4.5, and so on) are also given. The scoring system ETS uses is similar to the one that follows. (You can use this chart to estimate your TWE score when you take the TWE Practice Tests.)

Score	Explanation of Score
6	Strongly indicates the ability to write a well-organized, well-developed, and logical essay. Specific examples and details support the main ideas. All the elements of the essay are unified and cohesive. A variety of sentence structures are used successfully, and sophisticated vocabulary is employed. Grammatical errors are infrequent, but a few minor mistakes may occur.
5	Indicates the ability to write an organized, developed, and logical essay. The main ideas are adequately supported by examples and details. Sentence structure may be less varied than that of a level 6 essay, and vocabulary less sophisticated. Some grammatical errors will appear.
4	Indicates a moderate ability to write an acceptable essay. Although main ideas may be adequately supported, weaknesses in organization and development will be apparent. Sentence structure and vocabulary may lack sophistication or be used inappropriately. Grammatical errors may be frequent.
3	Indicates some minimal ability in writing an acceptable essay, but involves serious weaknesses in organization and development. Significant sentence-structure and vocabulary problems occur, and there are frequent grammatical errors that sometimes make the writer's ideas difficult to comprehend.
2	Indicates the inability to write an acceptable essay. Organization and development are very weak or nonexistent. Lacks unity and cohesion. Few if any specific details may be given in support of the writer's ideas. If details are given, they may seem inappropriate. Significant and frequent errors in grammar occur throughout the essay. Writer may not have fully understood the essay topic.
1	Strongly indicates the inability to write an acceptable essay. No apparent development or organization. Sentences may be brief and fragmentary and unrelated to one another. Significant grammatical errors occur throughout the essay and make it difficult to understand any of the author's ideas. Writer may have completely misunderstood the essay topic.

OFF Did not write on the topic assigned.

1NR Did not write the essay.

The average score TWE score is between 3.5 and 4.0. TWE is scored separately from the rest of the test and has no effect on your overall TOEFL score.

Following are two sample TWE prompts and essays that respond to those prompts. (Note: These essays are based on composite student essays. They have been edited to correct errors in grammar and mechanics.)

Sample TWE Prompt A

Some people believe that money spent on space research benefits all of humanity. Others take the opposite view and say that money for this type of research is wasted. Discuss these two positions, using examples. Tell which view you agree with and explain why.

Notes

Intro: Space research + 50 years:
expensive—$ well spent or wasted?

– ideas

costs billions; also human resources; no real benefits

e.g., trip to Moon only brought back rocks

many important uses for this $ on Earth:

e.g., education environment housing

+ ideas consumer products; e.g., PC's, freeze-dried foods,

pacemakers

weather & communication satellites scientific knowledge about planets, Moon, even Earth

Conclu: As shown, many benefits—also, human race needs challenge just as individuals do—therefore, space research is worth all the money spent

For over fifty years, a number of nations have been involved in the exploration of outer space. This research has been very costly, of course. Has this money been well-spent or wasted?

Some people believe that all or most space research should be eliminated because of its incredible expense, not only in terms of money, but also in terms of scientific and human resources. These people point out the fact that it cost billions of dollars to send astronauts to the Moon, but all they brought back were some worthless rocks. These people say that the money and effort now being wasted in outer space could be spent on more important projects right here on Earth, such as providing housing for homeless people, improving the education system, saving the environment, and finding cures for diseases.

However, other people believe that space research has provided many benefits to humanity. They point out that hundreds of useful products, from personal computers to heart pacemakers to freeze-dried foods, are the direct or indirect results of space research. They say that weather and communication satellites, which are also products of space programs, have benefited people all over the globe. In addition to these practical benefits, supporters of the space program point to the scientific knowledge that has been acquired about the Sun, the Moon, the planets, and even our own Earth as a result of space research.

I agree with those people who support space research and want it to continue. Space research, as shown, has already brought many benefits to humanity. Perhaps it will bring even more benefits in the future, ones that we can't even imagine now. Moreover, just as individual people need challenges to make their lives more interesting, I believe the human race itself needs a challenge, and I think that the peaceful exploration of outer space provides just such a challenge.

Notice that in the first sample TWE, the writer organized the essay in the following way:

Sample TWE Prompt B

Developments in transportation such as the invention of the automobile have had an enormous impact on modern society. Choose another development in transportation that you think is of great importance. Give reasons for your selection.

Notes

Intro: One of most important develop is internat'l jet transport—since '50's—because of speed & rel. low costs, has changed way people think

Speed: 100 yrs ago, took weeks to cross ocean: today, few hrs—this has changed people's concept of space—world smaller

Low costs: In past, only wealthy could travel comfortably; poor people had to save for years—today, more and more people can travel: businessmen students tourists

Conclusion: countries no longer so isolated; people think of world as they used to think of their own hometowns

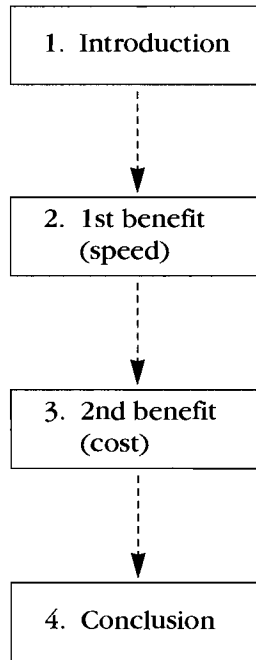

I believe that one of the most important developments in transportation has been the development of international jet transport. Since this style of transportation appeared in the 1950's, it has had some revolutionary effects. Because of the high speeds and the relatively low cost of this type of travel, it has changed the way people look at the world.

The most obviously important characteristic of jet travel is the high speed involved. A hundred years ago, it took weeks to cross the Atlantic or Pacific oceans by ship. Today, those same trips can be completed in a matter of hours. One can attend a meeting in Paris and have dinner in New York the same day. These amazing speeds have changed people's concepts of space. Today the world is much smaller than it was in the past.

Another important aspect of jet travel is its relatively low cost. An international journey one hundred years ago was extremely expensive. Only wealthy people could afford to travel comfortably, in first class. Poor people had to save for years to purchase a ticket, and the conditions in which they traveled were not very good. Today it is possible for more and more people in every country to travel in comfort. Thus it is possible for businesspeople to do business all over the world, for students to attend universities in other countries, and for tourists to take vacations anywhere in the world.

In conclusion, the speed and low cost of international jet travel have changed the world. Individual nations are not as isolated as they were in the past, and people now think of the whole planet as they once thought of their own hometowns.

Notice that the writer organized the second sample essay as follows:

Ten Keys to Writing the TWE Essay

KEY #1: Budget your time carefully.

You have only a half-hour in which to complete your work. You should use your time more or less as shown below:

Reading and thinking about the prompt	2 minutes
Planning and taking notes	3 minutes
Writing the essay	22 minutes
Checking the essay	3 minutes

As with all parts of TOEFL, be familiar with the directions for TWE so that you don't have to waste time reading them.

KEY #2: Read the question carefully.

You must write on the prompt exactly as it is given, so be sure you understand it. If you write about another topic, you won't receive a score at all. If you don't completely address the topic, you will receive a lower score.

KEY #3: Brainstorm!

Before you begin to write, spend a minute or two just "brainstorming." Just think about the prompt and the best way to approach it. Remember: there is no "correct" answer for TWE. You can choose any position as long as you can adequately support it. While you're brainstorming, jot down your ideas in the section marked "NOTES".

KEY #4: Plan your essay before you write.

You don't have to write out a formal outline with Roman numerals, capital letters, and so on. However, you should make some notes. By following your notes, you can organize your essay before you write, leaving you free to concentrate on the task of writing.

When making notes, don't worry about writing complete, grammatical sentences; use abbreviations if possible. The point of taking notes is to simply get your ideas down on paper as quickly as possible.

KEY #5: Be sure your handwriting is as clear and legible as possible.

Handwriting that is hard to read may unconsciously prejudice the readers who are grading your essay. Be sure your handwriting is not too small or too large.

KEY #6: Follow a clear, logical organization.

All TWE essays should consist of three basic parts: an introductory paragraph, a body that consists of two or three paragraphs, and a concluding paragraph. You need to include all of these elements in your essay. The introduction states the main idea of the essay in one sentence called the thesis statement and may provide some background about that idea. The body develops the main idea brought up in the introduction. Specific examples are given to make the thesis statement seem stronger and more believable to the reader. The conclusion evaluates and summarizes the material that is in the body. It provides the reader with a sense of closure—the feeling that the essay is really finished, not that the writer simply ran out of time.

The exact plan of organization you use depends on the type of prompt you are given. The following patterns could be used for the two main types of prompt commonly given. Of course, these are not the only patterns that could be used in writing TWE essays, but they are effective plans for organizing your ideas.

Prompt Type A: Contrast/Opinion

- Introduction: Paragraph 1: Present the two sides of the issue; give a brief amount of background information.
- Body: Paragraph 2: Discuss the negative side of the issue; give examples.
Paragraph 3: Discuss the positive side of the issue; give examples.
- Conclusion: Paragraph 4: Express your own opinion about the issue; give specific reasons for your decision.

Prompt Type B: Explain the Importance of a Development, Invention, or Phenomenon

- Introduction: Paragraph 1: Explain what development you have chosen to write about, and why.
- Body: Paragraph 2: Discuss one aspect of why this development is important; give examples.
Paragraph 3: Discuss another aspect of why this development is important; give examples.
- Conclusion: Paragraph 4: Summarize the points made in paragraphs 2 and 3.

Now look back at the two TWE sample essays to see if they follow these patterns of organization.

KEY #7: Use concrete examples and specific reasons.

Whenever you make a general statement, you should support it with specific examples. Don't just say, "Computers are important to modern business." Give specific examples of how computers can benefit businesses. If you state an opinion, give reasons. Don't just say, "I believe television is harmful to children." Explain exactly why you think television hurts children.

KEY #8: Use signal words to indicate transitions.

Signal words can be used to join paragraph to paragraph and sentence to sentence. These words make your essay clearer and easier to follow. Some of these expressions and their meanings are given below.

Expressions Used to List Points, Examples, or Reasons

First example or reason

First, . . .

The first example is . . .

The first reason for this is that . . .

Additional examples or reasons

Second . . . (Third, Fourth)

A second (third, fourth) example is that . . .

Another example is . . .

Another reason is that . . .

In addition, . . .

Furthermore, . . .

Moreover, . . .

Final examples or reasons

Finally, . . .

To give individual examples

For example, . . .

For instance, . . .

To give a specific example, . . .

X is an example of Y.

To show contrast

However, . . .

On the other hand, . . .

Nevertheless, . . .

To show a conclusion

Therefore, . . .

Consequently, . . .

To show similarity

Likewise, . . .

Similarly, . . .

To begin a concluding paragraph

In conclusion, . . .

In summary, . . .

Examples of the Use of Signal Words

I agree with the idea of stricter gun control for a number of reasons. First, statistics show that guns are not very effective in preventing crime. Second, accidents involving guns frequently occur. Finally, guns can be stolen and later used in crimes.

I believe that a good salary is an important consideration when looking for a career. However, the nature of the work is more important to me. Thus, I would not accept a job that I did not find rewarding.

For me, the reasons for living in an urban area are stronger than the reasons for living in a rural community. Therefore, I agree with those people who believe it is an advantage to live in a big city.

Look back at the sample essays again. Did the authors use signal words to show transitions?

KEY #9: Use a variety of sentence types.

Good writing in English consists of a more or less equal balance between short, simple sentences consisting of only one clause and longer sentences containing two or more clauses. Therefore, make an effort to use sentences of various lengths.

You should also vary sentence structures. Begin some sentences with prepositional phrases or subordinate clauses.

Examples of various sentence types

Instead of . . .

I agree with this idea for several reasons.

Try . . .

For several reasons, I agree with this idea.

Instead of . . .

I support Idea A even though Idea B has some positive attributes.

Try . . .

Even though Idea B has some positive attributes, I support Plan A.

KEY #10: Check your essay for errors.

Allow a few minutes to proofread the essay. However, don't make any major changes at this time. Don't cross out long sections or try to add a lot of new material. Look for obvious errors in punctuation, spelling, and capitalization, as well as common grammatical mistakes: subject-verb agreement, wrong tense use, incorrect use of plurals, incorrect word forms, and so on. If you have ever taken a writing class in English, look at the corrections the teacher made on your papers to see what types of mistakes you commonly make, and look for these.

Three Practice TWE Tests

The following exams are very similar to actual TWE tests. Time yourself carefully while taking these practice tests. You can use the scoring chart on page 388 to estimate your score. If you are taking an English course, you may want to ask your English teacher to score your test and to make recommendations for improving your essay.

Practice TWE Directions

30 Minutes

1. When you are ready, turn the page and carefully read the essay prompt.
2. Before you begin writing, think about the prompt. You will probably want to make some notes to organize your thoughts. Use only the space marked NOTES to write notes or an outline.
3. Write on only one topic. If you do not write on the topic given, you will not receive a score.
4. Your essay should be clear and precise. Support your ideas with facts. The quality of your writing is of more importance than the quantity, but you will probably want to write more than one paragraph.
5. Begin your essay on the first line of the essay page. Use the next page if you need to. Write as neatly as possible. Don't write in large letters. Don't skip lines or leave large margins.
6. Check your essay after you have finished. Give yourself enough time to read over your essay and make minor revisions before the end of the exam.
7. After 30 minutes, stop writing and put your pencil down.

Three Complete Practice Tests

About Taking the Practice Tests

One of the best ways to ensure success on TOEFL is to take realistic practice exams. The three tests in this book are accurate and up to date. They duplicate actual exams in terms of format, content, and level of difficulty. They cover all the types of items that commonly appear on actual exams. All items have been pre-tested.

These tests can be used in the classroom or by self-study learners. In order to get the most from these practice tests, suggestions for both types of users are given below.

Using the Tests in the Classroom

- The test should be given under actual testing conditions—for example, desks should be arranged as they would be during a test, and no talking should be allowed. If possible, each test should be given in its entirety rather than section by section.
- Sections 2 and 3 should be carefully timed, and students should not work ahead.
- Students should mark answers on the answer sheets provided at the end of the book.
- An analysis and a discussion of all three parts of the exam is an important follow-up for the practice tests. These activities can be done as a class or in small groups. Test-takers should understand why a choice is correct.

Using the Tests for Self-Study

- Take each test all at one time rather than section by section.
- Use a watch to time yourself carefully during Sections 2 and 3. Do not go ahead to the next section even if you finish early. Do not give yourself extra time even if you haven't finished the section.
- Sit at a desk or table, not in an easy chair or on a sofa, and work away from distractions such as a television or a stereo.
- Mark your answers on the answer sheets rather than in the book.
- After completing the test, mark incorrect answers but do not write in the corrections. Instead, go back and answer these questions a second time.
- Read the explanations in the Written Expression section and the Reading Comprehension section for all items that you answer incorrectly.
- If you have time, take the entire test over again on another answer sheet. (You may want to make photocopies of the answer sheets in the back of the book before you begin.)
- Use the scoring charts in the back of this book to calculate your scores for each practice test.
- Keep track of your scores in the Personal Score Record in the Scoring section of this book. If you have consistently lower scores on one section of the test, you might want to review the corresponding section in the Guide.
- If you have enough time, take the entire test over on a separate answer sheet.

Scoring the Practice Tests

The level of difficulty varies slightly from one TOEFL test to another. ETS uses a statistical process called “test equating” to adjust each set of scores. The chart given here can only be used to determine a range of scores. ETS, of course, reports your score as a single number, not as a range.

After completing each test, obtain a raw score for each of the three sections by counting the number of correct answers in the three sections. Then look at the conversion chart to determine the range of scaled scores for each section. Add the three low scores from the range of scores for each section, then the three high scores. Multiply both totals by 10 and divide by 3. Your “actual” TOEFL score will lie somewhere in that range of numbers.

For example, suppose that you had 32 correct answers in Listening Comprehension, 29 in Structure and Written Expression, and 37 in Reading Comprehension:

	Raw Score (number correct)	Range of Scaled Scores (from conversion chart)
Section 1	32	49-50
Section 2	29	50-52
Section 3	37	53-54

$$49 + 50 + 53 = 152$$

$$50 + 52 + 54 = 156$$

$$152 \times 10 = 1,520 \div 3 = 507$$

$$156 \times 10 = 1,560 \div 3 = 520$$

Your score on the practice test would be between 507 and 520.

Listening Comprehension

This section tests your ability to comprehend spoken English. It is divided into three parts, each with its own directions. You are not permitted to turn the page during the reading of the directions or to take notes at any time.

Part A

Directions: Each item in this part consists of a brief conversation involving two speakers. Following each conversation, a third voice will ask a question. You will hear the conversations and questions only once, and they will not be written out.

When you have heard each conversation and question, read the four answer choices and select the one—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—that best answers the question based on what is directly stated or on what can be inferred. Then fill in the space on your answer sheet that matches the letter of the answer that you have selected.

Here is an example.

You will hear:

Sample Answer

(A) ☒ (C) (D)

You will read: (A) Open the window.
(B) Move the chair.
(C) Leave the room.
(D) Take a seat.

From the conversation you find out that the woman thinks the man should put the chair over by the window. The best answer to the question, "What does the woman think the man should do?" is (B), "Move the chair." You should fill in (B) on your answer sheet.

Reading Comprehension

Time: 55 minutes

This section of the test measures your ability to comprehend written materials.

Directions: This section contains several passages, each followed by a number of questions. Read the passages and, for each question, choose the one best answer—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—based on what is stated in the passage or on what can be inferred from the passage. Then fill in the space on your answer sheet that matches the letter of the answer that you have selected.

▼ Read the following passage:

- (line) Like mammals, birds claim their own territories. A bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds
(5) claim only their nest and the area right around it, while others claim far larger territories that include their feeding areas. Gulls, penguins, and other waterfowl nest in huge colonies, but even in the biggest colonies, each male and his mate have small territories of their own immediately around their nests.

- (10) Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species. In some cases, a warning call or threatening pose may be all the defense needed, but in other cases, intruders may refuse to leave peacefully.

Sample Answer

(A) (B) (C) ☒

What is the main topic of this passage?

- (A) Birds that live in colonies
(B) Birds' mating habits
(C) The behavior of birds
(D) Territoriality in birds

The passage mainly concerns the territories of birds. You should fill in (D) on your answer sheet.

Example II

Sample Answer

(A) (B) ☒ (D)

According to the passage, male birds defend their territory primarily against

- (A) female birds
(B) birds of other species
(C) males of their own species
(D) mammals

The passage states that "Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species." You should fill in (C) on your answer sheet.

As soon as you understand the directions, begin work on this section.

Questions 1–11

- (line) The Sun today is a yellow dwarf star. It is fueled by
(5) thermonuclear reactions near its center that convert hydrogen to helium. The Sun has existed in its present state for about 4 billion, 600 million years and is thousands of times larger than the Earth.

- (10) By studying other stars, astronomers can predict what the rest of the Sun's life will be like. About 5 billion years from now, the core of the Sun will shrink and become hotter. The surface temperature will fall. The higher temperature of the center will increase the rate of thermonuclear reactions. The outer regions of the Sun will expand approximately 35 million miles, about the distance to Mercury, which is the closest planet to the Sun. The Sun will then be a red giant star. Temperatures on the Earth will become too hot for life to exist.

- (15) Once the Sun has used up its thermonuclear energy as a red giant, it will begin to shrink. After it shrinks to the size of the Earth, it will become a white dwarf star. The Sun may throw off huge amounts of gases in violent eruptions called nova explosions as it changes from a red giant to a white dwarf.

- (20) After billions of years as a white dwarf, the Sun will have used up all its fuel and will have lost its heat. Such a star is called a black dwarf. After the Sun has become a black dwarf, the Earth will be dark and cold. If any atmosphere remains there, it will have frozen onto the Earth's surface.

1. What is the primary purpose of this passage?
(A) To alert people to the dangers posed by the Sun
(B) To discuss conditions on Earth in the far future
(C) To present a theory about red giant stars
(D) To describe changes that the Sun will go through
2. The word "fueled" in line 1 is closest in meaning to

(D) propelled
3. The word "state" in line 3 is closest in meaning to

4. It can be inferred from the passage that the Sun
 - (A) is approximately halfway through its life as a yellow dwarf
 - (B) has been in existence for 10 billion years
 - (C) is rapidly changing in size and brightness
 - (D) will continue as a yellow dwarf for another 10 billion years
5. What will probably be the first stage of change as the Sun becomes a red giant?
 - (A) Its core will cool off and use less fuel.
 - (B) Its surface will become hotter and shrink.
 - (C) It will throw off huge amounts of gases.
 - (D) Its center will grow smaller and hotter.

Questions 12–23

(line) It is said that George Washington was one of the first to realize
 (5) how important the building of canals would be to the nation's development. In fact, before he became President, he headed the first company in the United States to build a canal which was to connect the Ohio and Potomac rivers. It was never completed, but it showed the nation the feasibility of canals. As the country expanded westward, settlers in western New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio needed a means to ship goods. Canals linking natural waterways seemed to offer an effective solution.

(10) In 1791 engineers commissioned by the state of New York investigated the possibility of a canal between Albany on the Hudson River and Buffalo on Lake Erie, which would link the Great Lakes area with the Atlantic seacoast. It would avoid the mountains that served as a barrier to canals from the Delaware and Potomac rivers.

(15) The first attempt to dig the canal, to be called the Erie Canal, was made by private companies, but only a comparatively small portion was built before the project was halted for lack of funds. The cost of the project was an estimated five million dollars, an enormous amount for those days. There was some on-again-off-again Federal funding, but the War of 1812 put an end to this. In 1817 DeWitt Clinton was elected Governor of New York and persuaded the state to finance and build the canal. It was completed in 1825, costing two million dollars more than expected.

(20) The canal rapidly lived up to its sponsors' faith, quickly paying for itself through tolls. It was far more economical than any other form of transportation at the time. It permitted trade between the Great Lake region and East Coast, robbing the Mississippi River of much of its traffic. It allowed New York to supplant Boston, Philadelphia, and other Eastern cities as the chief center of both domestic and foreign commerce. Cities sprang up along the canal. It also contributed in a number of ways to the North's victory over the South in the Civil War.

(30) An expansion of the canal was planned in 1849. Increased traffic would undoubtedly have warranted its construction had it not been for the development of the railroads.

12. Why does the author most likely mention George Washington in the first paragraph?
- (A) He was President at the time the Erie Canal was built.
 - (B) He was involved in pioneering efforts to build canals.
 - (C) He successfully opened the first canal in the United States.
 - (D) He commissioned engineers to study the possibility of building the Erie Canal.

Questions 24–33

- (line) It's a sound you will probably never hear, a sickened tree sending out a distress signal. But a group of scientists has heard the cries, and they think some insects also hear the trees and are drawn to them like vultures to a dying animal.
- (5) Researchers with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service fastened sensors to the bark of parched trees and clearly heard distress calls. According to one of the scientists, most drought-stricken trees transmit their plight in the 50- to 500-kilohertz range. (The unaided human ear can detect no more than
- (10) 20 kilohertz.) Red oak, maple, white pine, and birch all make slightly different sounds in the form of vibrations at the surface of the wood.
- (15) The scientists think that the vibrations are created when the water columns inside tubes that run the length of the tree break, a result of too little water flowing through them. These fractured columns send out distinctive vibration patterns. Because some

(20) insects communicate at ultrasonic frequencies, they may pick up the trees' vibrations and attack the weakened trees. Researchers are now running tests with potted trees that have been deprived of water to see if the sound is what attracts the insects. "Water-stressed trees also smell differently from other trees, and they experience thermal changes, so insects could be responding to something other than sound," one scientist said.

24. Which of the following is the main topic of the passage?
(A) The vibrations produced by insects
(B) The mission of the U.S. Forest Service
(C) The effect of insects on trees

(B) condition

28. It can be inferred from the passage that the sounds produced by the trees
(A) serve as a form of communication with other trees
(B) are the same no matter what type of tree produces them

(D) fall into the 1–20 kilohertz range

Questions 34–41

(line) The concepts of analogy and homology are probably easier to
(5) exemplify than to define. When different species are structurally compared, certain features can be described as either analogous or homologous. For example, flight requires certain rigid aeronautical principles of design, yet birds, bats, and insects have all conquered the air. The wings of all three types of animals derive from different embryological structures, but they perform the same functions. In this case, the flight organs of these creatures can be said to be analogous. In contrast, features that arise from the (10) same structures in the embryo but are used in different functions are said to be homologous. The pectoral fins of a fish, the wings of a bird, and the forelimbs of a mammal are all homologous structures. They are genetically related in the sense that both the forelimb and the wing evolved from the fin.

34. Which of the following best describes the organization of the passage?
- (A) A contrast is drawn between two concepts by means of examples.
 - (B) A general concept is introduced, examples are given, and a conclusion is offered.
 - (C) Two definitions of the same concept are compared.
 - (D) Two proposals are suggested and support for both is offered.
35. According to the passage, the concepts of analogy and homology are
- (A) difficult to understand
 - (B) easier to understand through examples than through definitions
 - (C) impossible to explain
 - (D) simple to define but hard to apply

 (A) A shark’s fin and a tiger’s claws
 (B) A man’s arms and a bird’s wings

 (D) A spider’s legs and a horse’s legs
38. According to the passage, one way in which homologous organs differ from analogous organs is that they
 (A) are genetically related
 (B) are only found in highly developed animals
 (C) perform the same general functions
 (D) come from different embryological structures
39. As used throughout the passage, the term “structures” most nearly means
 (A) buildings
 (B) features of an animal’s anatomy
 (C) organizational principles
 (D) units of grammar
40. The word “sense” in line 13 is closest in meaning to
 (A) feeling
 (B) logic
 (C) meaning
 (D) perception

 (A) Lines 2–4
 (B) Lines 6–8
 (C) Lines 9–11
 (D) Lines 13–14

Questions 42–50

- Probably the most famous film commenting on twentieth century technology is Modern Times, made in 1936. Charlie Chaplin was motivated to make the film by a reporter who, while interviewing him, happened to describe working conditions in industrial Detroit. Chaplin was told that healthy young farm boys were lured
- (line) _____
 (5) _____

to the city to work on automotive assembly lines. Within four or five years, these young men's health was destroyed by the stress of work in the factories.

- (10) The film opens with a shot of a mass of sheep making their way down a crowded ramp. Abruptly the scene shifts to a scene of factory workers jostling one another on their way to a factory. However, the rather bitter note of criticism in the implied comparison is not sustained. It is replaced by a gentler note of satire. Chaplin prefers to entertain rather than lecture.
- (15) Scenes of factory interiors account for only about one-third of the footage of Modern Times, but they contain some of the most pointed social commentary as well as the most comic situations. No one who has seen the film can ever forget Chaplin vainly trying to keep pace with the fast-moving conveyor belt, almost losing his mind in the process. Another popular scene involves an automatic feeding machine brought to the assembly line so that workers need not interrupt their labor to eat. The feeding machine malfunctions, hurling food at Chaplin, who is strapped into his position on the assembly line and cannot escape. This serves to illustrate people's
- (20) utter helplessness in the face of machines that are meant to serve their basic needs.
- (25) Clearly, Modern Times has its faults, but it remains the best film treating technology within a social context. It does not offer a radical social message, but it does accurately reflect the
- (30) sentiments of many who feel they are victims of an over-mechanized world.

42. The author's main purpose in writing this passage is to
- (A) criticize the factory system of the 1930's
 - (B) analyze an important film
 - (C) explain Chaplin's style of acting
 - (D) discuss how film reveals the benefits of technology
43. According to the passage, Chaplin got the idea for the film Modern Times from
- (A) a newspaper article
 - (B) a scene in a movie
 - (C) a job he had once held
 - (D) a conversation with a reporter
44. The word "abruptly" in line 10 is closest in meaning to

 - (B) mysteriously
 - (C) finally
 - (D) predictably

- (A) is completely unforgettable
 - (B) takes place outside a factory

46. Which of the following could best replace the phrase “losing his mind” in lines 19–20?
- (A) Getting fired

Time: 55 minutes

This section of the test measures your ability to comprehend written materials.

Directions: This section contains several passages, each followed by a number of questions. Read the passages and, for each question, choose the one best answer—(A), (B), (C), or (D)—based on what is stated in the passage or on what can be inferred from the passage. nest in huge colonies, but even in the biggest colonies, each male and his mate have small territories of their own immediately around their nests.

Questions 1–11

(line) The time when humans crossed the Arctic land bridge from
(5) Siberia to Alaska seems remote to us today, but actually represents a late stage in the prehistory of humans, an era when polished stone implements and bows and arrows were already being used, and dogs had already been domesticated.

(10) When these early migrants arrived in North America, they found the woods and plains dominated by three types of American mammoths. These elephants were distinguished from today's elephants mainly by their thick, shaggy coats and their huge, upward-curving tusks. They had arrived on the continent hundreds of thousands of years before their human followers. The woolly mammoth in the North, the Columbian mammoth in middle North America, and the imperial mammoth of the South, together with their distant cousins the mastodons, dominated the land. Here, as
(15) in the Old World, there is evidence that humans hunted these elephants, as shown by the numerous spear points found with mammoth remains.

(20) Then, at the end of the Ice Age, when the last glaciers had retreated, there was a relatively sudden and widespread extinction of elephants. In the New World, both mammoths and mastodons disappeared. In the Old World, only Indian and African elephants survived.

(25) Why did the huge, seemingly successful mammoths disappear? Were humans connected with their extinction? Perhaps, but at that time, although they were cunning hunters, humans were still widely scattered and not very numerous. It is difficult to see how they could have prevailed over the mammoth to such an extent.

Questions 12–23

- (line) Just before and during World War I, a number of white musicians came to Chicago from New Orleans playing in an idiom they had learned from blacks in that city. Five of them formed what eventually became known as the Original Dixieland Band. They
(5) moved to New York in 1917 and won fame there. That year they recorded the first phonograph record identified as jazz.

- The first important recording by black musicians was made in Chicago in 1923 by King Oliver's Creole Jazz Band, a group that featured some of the foremost jazz musicians of the time,
(10) including trumpet player Louis Armstrong. Armstrong's dynamic trumpet style became famous worldwide. Other band members had played in Fate Marable's band, which traveled up and down the Mississippi River entertaining passengers on riverboats.

- The characteristics of this early type of jazz, known as
(15) Dixieland jazz, included a complex interweaving of melodic lines among the cornet or trumpet, clarinet, and trombone, and a steady chomp-chomp beat provided by the rhythm section, which included the piano, bass, and drums. Most bands used no written notations, preferring arrangements agreed on verbally.
(20) Improvisation was an indispensable element. Even bandleaders such as Duke Ellington, who provided his musicians with written arrangements, permitted them plenty of freedom to improvise when playing solos.

- In the late 1920's, the most influential jazz artists in

Questions 24–32

(line) A pioneering study by Donald Appleyard made the astounding
 (5) discovery that a sudden increase in the volume of traffic through an area affects people in the way that a sudden increase in crime does. Appleyard observed this by finding three blocks of houses in San Francisco that looked much alike and had the same kind of middle-class and working-class residents, with approximately the same ethnic mix. The difference was that only 2,000 cars a day ran down Octavia Street (LIGHT street, in Appleyard's terminology) while Gough Street (MEDIUM street) was used by 8,000
 (10) cars daily, and Franklin Street (HEAVY street) had around 16,000 cars a day. Franklin Street often had as many cars in an hour as Octavia Street had in a day.

Heavy traffic brought with it danger, noise, fumes, and soot, directly, and trash secondarily. That is, the cars didn't bring (15) in much trash, but when trash accumulated, residents seldom picked it up. The cars, Appleyard determined, reduced the amount of territory residents felt responsible for. Noise was a constant intrusion into their homes. Many Franklin Street residents covered their doors and windows and spent most of their (20) time in the rear of their houses. Most families with children had already left.

Conditions on Octavia Street were much different. Residents picked up trash. They sat on their front steps and chatted with neighbors. They had three times as many friends and twice
 (25) as many acquaintances as the people on Franklin.

On Gough Street, residents said that the old feeling of community was disappearing as traffic increased. People were becoming more and more preoccupied with their own lives. A number of families had recently moved, and more were considering (30) it. Those who were staying expressed deep regret at the destruction of their community.

- (line) Rachel Carson was born in 1907 in Springsdale, Pennsylvania.
 (5) She studied biology at college, and zoology at Johns Hopkins University, where she received her master's degree in 1933. In 1936, she was hired by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, where she worked most of her life.

- Carson's first book, Under the Sea Wind, was published in 1941. It received excellent reviews, but sales were poor until it was reissued in 1952. In that year she published The Sea Around Us, which provided a fascinating look beneath the ocean's surface, emphasizing human history as well as geology and marine biology. Her imagery and language had a poetic quality. Carson consulted no fewer than 1,000 printed sources. She had voluminous correspondence and frequent discussions with experts in the field. However, she always realized the limitations of her non-technical readers.

- (15) In 1962 Carson published Silent Spring, a book that sparked considerable controversy. It proved how much harm was done by the uncontrolled, reckless use of insecticides. She detailed how they poison the food supply of animals, kill birds and fish, and contaminate human food. At the time, spokesmen for the chemical industry mounted personal attacks against Carson and issued propaganda to indicate that her findings were flawed. Questions 43–50

- (line) What is meant by the term economic resources? In general,
 (5) these are all the natural, man-made, and human resources that go into the production of goods and services. This obviously covers a lot of ground: factories and farms, tools and machines, transportation and communication facilities, all types of natural resources, and labor. Economic resources can be broken down into two general categories: property resources—land and capital— and human resources—labor and entrepreneurial skills.

- (10) What do economists mean by land? Much more than the non-economist. Land refers to all natural resources that are usable in the production process: arable land, forests, mineral and oil deposits, and so on. What about capital? Capital goods are all the man-made aids to producing, storing, transporting, and distributing goods and services. Capital goods differ from (15) consumer goods in that the latter satisfy wants directly, while the former do so indirectly by facilitating the production of consumer goods. It should be noted that capital as defined here does not refer to money. Money, as such, produces nothing.

- (20) The term labor refers to the physical and mental talents of humans used to produce goods or services (with the exception of a certain set of human talents, entrepreneurial skills, which will be considered separately because of their special significance). Thus the services of a factory worker or an office worker, a ballet dancer or an astronaut all fall under the general heading of labor.

43. What is the author's main purpose in writing this passage?
 (A) To explain the concept of labor
 (B) To criticize certain uses of capital
 (C) To contrast capital goods and consumer goods

 (A) the factories and farms discussed in the passage are very large
 (B) economic resources will be discussed in great depth
 (C) the topic of economic resources is a broad one
 (D) land is an important concept in economics
45. When non-economists use the term "land," its definition
 (A) is much more general than when economists use it
 (B) is much more restrictive than when economists use it
 (C) changes from place to place
 (D) includes all types of natural resources

bird's territory may be small or large. Some birds
(5) claim only their nest and the area right around it, while others claim far larger territories that include their feeding areas. Gulls, penguins, and other waterfowl nest in huge colonies, but even in the biggest colonies, each male and his mate have small territories of their own immediately around their nests.

- (10) Male birds defend their territory chiefly against other males of the same species. In some cases, a warning call or threatening pose may be all the defense needed, but in other cases, intruders may refuse to leave peacefully.

Questions 1–11

- (line) To date, Canada has produced only one classic children's tale to rank with Alice's Adventures in Wonderland and the works of Mark Twain; this was Lucy Maud Montgomery's Anne of Green Gables.
- (5) Lucy Maud Montgomery was born in Clinton, Prince Edward Island. Her mother died soon after her birth, and when her father went to Saskatchewan to assume a business position, she moved in with her grandparents in Cavendish, Prince Edward Island. There she went to school, and later qualified to be a teacher.
- (10) Montgomery wrote the Anne books while living in Cavendish and helping her grandmother at the post office. The first of the books, Anne of Green Gables, was published in 1908, and in the next three years she wrote two sequels. Like Montgomery, the heroine of the book is taken in by an elderly couple who live in the fictional town of Avonlea, and Montgomery incorporated many
- (15) events from her life in Cavendish into the Anne books.
- In 1911, Montgomery married Ewan MacDonald, and the couple soon moved to Ontario, where she wrote many other books. However, it was her first efforts that secured her prominence, and the Anne books are still read all around the world. Her novels have
- (20) helped create a warm picture of Prince Edward Island's special character. Several movies, a television series, and a musical play have been based on her tales, and today visitors scour the island for locations described in the book.

- The main purpose of this passage is to

Questions 12–23

- (line) Certain animals have an intuitive awareness of quantities. They know
(5) without analysis the difference between a number of objects and a smaller number. In his book The Natural History of Selbourne (1786), the naturalist Gilbert White tells how he surreptitiously removed one egg a day from a plover's nest, and how the mother laid another egg each day to make up for the missing one. He noted that other species of birds ignore the absence of a single egg but abandon their nests if more than one egg has been removed. It has also been noted by naturalists that a certain (10) type of wasp always provides five—never four, never six—caterpillars for each of their eggs so that their young have something to eat when the eggs hatch. Research has also shown that both mice and pigeons can be taught to distinguish between odd and even numbers of food pieces.
- (15) These and similar accounts have led some people to infer that creatures other than humans can actually count. They also point to dogs that have been taught to respond to numerical questions with the correct number of barks, or to horses that seem to solve arithmetic problems by stomping their hooves the proper number of (20) times.
- Animals respond to quantities only when they are connected to survival as a species—as in the case of the eggs—or survival as individuals—as in the case of food. There is no transfer to other situations or from concrete reality to the abstract notion (25) of numbers. Animals can “count” only when the objects are present and only when the numbers involved are small—no more than seven or eight. In lab experiments, animals trained to “count” one kind of object were unable to count any other type. The objects, not the numbers, are what interest them. Animals’ admittedly (30) remarkable achievements simply do not amount to evidence of counting, nor do they reveal more than innate instincts, refined by the genes of successive generations, or the results of clever, careful conditioning by trainers.

12. What is the main idea of this passage?

- (A) Careful training is required to teach animals to perform tricks involving numbers.
- (B) Animals cannot “count” more than one kind of object.
- (C) Of all animals, dogs and horses can count best.
- (D) Although some animals may be aware of quantities, they cannot actually count.

Questions 24–33

(line) It would be hard to cite a development that has had more
(5) impact on American industry than the Bessemer process of making steel. It made possible the production of low-cost steel and established the foundation of the modern steel industry. In many ways it was responsible for the rapid industrialization of the United States that took place in the formative period of the late 1800’s.

(10) The first Bessemer plant in the United States was built in Wyandotte, Michigan, in 1864, near the end of the Civil War. It was capable of producing only 2 tons of steel ingots at a time. The ingots were rolled into rails—the first steel rails made in the United States. Acceptance of the process was initially slow. By 1870, the annual output of Bessemer steel was a mere 42 thousand tons. Production grew rapidly after about 1875, rising
(15) to 1.2 million tons in 1880, when it exceeded that of wrought iron for the first time.

Go on to the next page

- (20) The rise of the U.S. steel industry in the last quarter of the 19th century was brought about largely by the demand for Bessemer steel rails for the nation's burgeoning rail network. Steel rails were far more durable than those made of iron. Spurred by this demand, the U.S. steel industry became the largest in the world in 1886, when it surpassed that of Great Britain.

- (25) The Bessemer Process was the chief method of making steel until 1907, when it was overtaken by the open-hearth process. By the 1950's, the Bessemer Process accounted for less than 3% of the total U.S. production.

24. With what topic is this passage mainly concerned?
- (A) The history of metal-working
 - (B) A comparison of the U.S. and British steel industries in the nineteenth century
 - (C) The technical details of the Bessemer process
 - (D) The effects of one method of making steel
25. According to the passage, the Bessemer process contributed to all of the following EXCEPT
- (A) the establishment of the modern steel industry in the United States
 - (B) the manufacture of weapons during the Civil War
 - (C) lowered costs for steel
 - (D) industrial development in the United States during an important period
26. What can be inferred from the passage about wrought iron?
- (A) At one time, more of it was produced than Bessemer steel.
 - (B) It is a by-product of the Bessemer process.
 - (C) It was once primarily imported from Great Britain.
 - (D) It later became a more important product than Bessemer steel.
27. The word "burgeoning" in line 19 is closest in meaning to

Questions 34–41

(line) Nearly 515 blocks of San Francisco, including almost all of Nob
(5) Hill, were destroyed by the 1906 earthquake and fires. Many of San Francisco's "painted ladies"—its gaudy, nineteenth century Victorian houses—were lost in the disaster. Today, some 14,000 surviving houses have been preserved, particularly in the Cow Hollow, Mission, Pacific Heights, and Alamo Square districts.

(10) Distinguished by their design characteristics, three styles of San Franciscan Victorians can be found today. The Italianate, which flourished in the 1870's, is characterized by a flat roof, slim pillars flanking the front door, and bays with windows that slant inward. The ornamentation of these narrow row houses was patterned after features of the Roman Classical styles. The Stick style, which peaked in popularity during the 1880s, added ornate woodwork outlines to the doors and windows. Other (15) additions included the French cap, gables, and three-sided bays. Designs changed dramatically when the Queen Anne style became the rage in the 1890's. Turrets, towers, steep gabled roofs, and glass art windows distinguished Queen Anne houses from their predecessors.

- (20) In the period after the earthquake, the Victorians came to be regarded as impossibly old-fashioned, but beginning around 1960, owners began peeling off stucco, tearing off false fronts, reapplying custom woodwork, and commissioning multi-hued paint jobs. Before long, many of these houses had been restored to their former splendor.

Questions 42–50

- (5) Sea otters dwell in the North Pacific. They are the largest of the mustelids, a group which also includes freshwater otters, weasels, and badgers. They are from four to five feet long, and most weigh from 60 to 85 pounds. Large males may weigh 100 pounds or more.

- (10) Unlike most marine mammals, such as seals or dolphins, sea otters lack a layer of blubber, and therefore have to eat up to 30% of their body weight a day in clams, crabs, fish, octopus, squids, and other delicacies to maintain body heat. Their voracious appetites do not create food shortages, though, because they are picky eaters, each animal preferring only a few food types. Thus no single type of food source is exhausted. Sea otters play an important environmental role by protecting forests of seaweed called kelp, which provide shelter and nutrients for many species. Certain sea otters feast on invertebrates like sea urchins and abalones that destroy kelp.

- (20) Sea otters eat and sleep while floating on their backs, often on masses of kelp. They seldom come on shore. Sea otters keep warm by means of their luxuriant double-layered fur, the densest among animals. The soft outer fur forms a protective cover that keeps the fine underfur dry. One square inch of underfur contains up to 1 million hairs. Unfortunately, this essential feature almost led to their extinction, as commercial fur hunters drastically reduced their numbers.

- (25) Under government protection, the sea otter population has recovered. While elated by the otters' return, scientists are concerned about the California sea otter population growth of 5% a year, lagging behind the 18% a year rate among Alaska otters. Sea otters are extremely sensitive to pollution. In 1989 up to 5,000 sea otters perished when the Exxon Valdez spilled oil in Prince William Sound, Alaska.

Explanation of Written Expression Items

16. The plural verb are indicates that a plural subject, thousands, must be used.
17. The preposition in should replace the preposition since. (The preposition since is used only in sentences in which the verb is in the present perfect tense, not the simple past tense.)
18. The noun variety should be used in place of the adjective various.
19. The word alike is only used in the pattern A and B are alike. The correct pattern in this sentence is A, like B, ...
20. The subject of the sentence is use; it is an unnecessary repetition of the subject.
21. A plural pronoun (their) should be used to agree with the plural noun cowboys.
22. The relative pronoun who can only refer to a person, not to a thing. The relative pronoun that or which should be used instead.
23. An adverb (potentially) not an adjective (potential) is needed.
24. The subject of the clause (one species) is singular, so the singular verb is must be used.
25. Almost is the wrong word choice. The best word choice is most (or almost all).
26. Despite is used only before noun phrases. An adverb-clause marker (although) must be used with a clause.
27. A noun (injury), not a verb (injure), is required.
28. The preposition must precede the relative pronoun: in which.
29. After the verb permit, an infinitive (to exist) is used.
30. The correct pattern is between A and B.
31. In order to be parallel with the other words in the series (logic and probability), the name of the field (engineering) must be used.
32. The verb in this sentence should be passive; therefore, the past participle known (not the -ing form knowing) must be used.
33. Before a word beginning with a vowel sound (honor), the article an must be used.
34. The superlative form of a one-syllable adjective (old) is formed with the suffix -est: oldest.
35. The noun belief should be used in place of the verb believe.
36. The plural pronoun those should be used to refer to the plural noun phrase public buildings.
37. The correct pattern is neither... nor.
38. A past participle (held) is needed in place of the -ing form.
39. The correct pattern is so + adjective + that clause (too is used in the pattern too + adjective + infinitive).
40. A plural noun (teeth) is required.

- After a preposition, a gerund form (photographing) is needed.
- An infinitive (to transport) is needed.
- The correct superlative form is highest.
- In a wh- clause that is not a direct question, the correct word order is subject-verb: They are.
- The conjunction but is used before the word rather to show contrast.
- The preposition in is used before months such as September.
- The correct form of the infinitive is to walk.
- The preposition of is used in the phrase instead of a.
- The article an must be used before words that begin with a vowel sound such as enormous.
- The correct word order is almost all.
- The past participle written is required.
- The verb result is used with the preposition in. (The noun result is followed by the preposition of)
- A comparative form (much rarer) must be used.
- An indefinite article is needed before the noun: a picture.
- The preposition for is used after the adjective suitable.
- The correct word order is human psychology.
- A full infinitive (to teach) is required in place of the simple form.
- Enough* must follow adjectives: safe enough.
- After the verb allow, the infinitive to approach is needed.
- The definite article is used before most when it is part of a superlative adjective phrase: The most.
- The correct pattern is whether... or.
- An indefinite article is required: a banana.

Explanation

- The passage discusses the plentiful supply of wood in the colonies and the advantages and disadvantages this involved.
- Strikingly* means "dramatically."
- Lines 5-6 state, "The first colonists did not, as many people imagine, find an entire continent covered by a climax forest."
- Abounded* means "present in large numbers."
- Lines 10-11 state that "by the end of the colonial age, the price of wood had risen slightly in eastern cities."
- Lines 15-16 indicate that, in the colonies, "buildings were made of wood to a degree unknown in Britain." Therefore, many British houses must have been made of materials other than wood.
- According to lines 17-18, wood was the source of industrial compounds, and charcoal is given as an example. Charcoal, according to line 19, is a component of gunpowder.
- In the context of the passage, the word conferred means "provided." (However, in other contexts, conferred may mean "consulted.")
- The phrase follow suit means "do the same."
- Lines 31--33 state that "the former colonies lagged behind Britain...because their supply of wood led them to cling to charcoal iron."
- In the context of the passage, cling to means "continue to use."
- The author begins to discuss the disadvantages brought on by an abundance of wood in the colonies in lines 21-22.
- The passage deals with the entire Peale family; (A) and (C) are too narrow, and (B) is too general.
- The passage indicates that the portrait was "so realistic" that Washington mistook the painted figures for real ones.
- The word settings is closest in meaning to "environments."
- The author defines the term mastodon in line 15 as "a huge, extinct elephant." The other terms are undefined.
- There is no information about when the museum was founded. All of the other questions are answered in the second paragraph: Charles Willson Peale found and prepared the animal exhibits; the museum was located in Philadelphia; its most popular exhibit, a mastodon's skeleton, was found on a farm in New York.
- In the context of the passage, the word unearthed means "dug up," "removed from the ground."
- As used in this context, rage means the "current style or fashion."
- Charles Willson Peale painted over a dozen portraits of Washington (line 4); Rembrandt Peale also painted at least one (lines 24-25).
- Sarah Miriam Peale is the daughter of Charles Willson Peale's brother James Peale (line 28); Titian and Raphaele are identified as Charles's sons in line 5, Rubens in line 25.
- The author praises the art and work of Charles Willson Peale and other members of the family; that, together with the absence of any critical comments, makes admiring the best choice.
- The main theme of this passage is the idea of transforming Mars; choice (A) best summarizes this idea.
- The word stark means "harsh," "severe."

25. The word there refers to Mars.
26. The passage states that "daytime temperatures may reach above freezing," but there is no mention that temperatures ever become dangerously hot. The other characteristics are given in the first paragraph.
27. According to the passage, "The air there is 95% carbon dioxide" (line 5).
28. According to the passage, building up the atmosphere "could create a 'greenhouse effect' that would stop heat from radiating back into space." The author points out in lines 8-10 that it is because heat radiates back into space that Mars is so cold.
29. The word suitable is closest in meaning to "appropriate."
30. According to scientist Christopher McKay, the project could be started "in four or five decades"-forty or fifty years (lines 27-28).
31. Terra-forming refers to the process of "transforming Mars into a more Earth-like planet" (lines 16-17).
32. The phrase more profound means "deeper."
33. The passage indicates that the possibility of transforming Mars comes from an "understanding of how Earth's ecology supports life" (line 31).
34. The word staggering means "astonishing."
35. The first paragraph indicates that age is "another" factor in susceptibility to colds; therefore, it is logical that a previous paragraph must deal with some other factor.
36. Specific facts is closest in meaning to the word "particulars."
37. Lines 3-4 state that the study "revealed particulars that seem to hold true for the general population."
38. Line 4 indicates that "Infants are the most cold-ridden group" and that infant boys have more colds than infant girls (lines 5-6).
39. No matter what age they are, parents of young children show an increase in cold infections; it is reasonable to assume that these parents are infected by their children.
40. The reference is to people in their twenties.
41. This paragraph deals with the influence of economics on incidence of colds.
42. The word cramped means "small and crowded."
43. This is a neutral, objective scientific report.

46. According to the passage (lines 9-10), ATP is a "high energy compound...which drives the biochemical reactions."
47. The word intact means "whole."
48. The phrase comes in handy means "is useful."
49. The fact that roots provide organic nitrogen compounds is useful for "the growth of buds in the early spring when leaves are not yet functioning" (lines 17-18)
50. The passage discusses an experiment involving plant roots and the significance of that experiment.

Explanation

1. The passage generally concerns the advantages of biological agents and the disadvantages of chemical agents.
2. The word marring means "spoiling," "ruining."
3. The word clog is closest in meaning to the word "obstruct."
4. The author defines weeds as "any plants that thrive where they are unwanted" (line 3). No definitions are offered for the other terms.
5. Lines 9-10 say "herbicides... are sometimes necessary."
6. Choice (A) is given in lines 20-22, which says that biological agents "leave crops and other plants untouched," while chemical agents "kill virtually all the plants they come in contact with." Choice (B) is also given; chemical agents "harm workers who apply them" (lines 12-13), while biological agents "are harmless to humans" (line 19). Choice (D) is given in lines 25-28; "biological agents can be administered only once," while chemical agents "must be used several times per growing season."
7. The word hence means "consequently" or "therefore."
8. The word innate means "natural" or "in-born."
9. According to the passage, the living organisms used to kill weeds are "primarily insects and micro-organisms."
10. The reference is to plants.
11. In this context, applications means treatments with biological agents.
12. The problem is the need to control weeds; the possible solutions are the use of chemical or biological agents.
13. The author refers to the fact that the plot is "tightly choreographed"; that Bernstein's score is "brilliant," and that Stephen Sondheim revealed "a remarkable talent." All of these positive factors, and the absence of negative ones, add up to a favorable attitude.
14. Lines 2-3 say the play "is set in the early 1950's."

15. Since the Jets and Sharks were rival gangs, and were based on the Montagues and Capulets, it is reasonable to assume that the latter groups were also rivals.
16. The word feuding means "hostile," "antagonistic."
17. The word ultimately means "eventually."
18. Lines 11-12 state: "Stephen Sondheim...reveals a remarkable talent for writing lyrics."
19. A score is the written form of a piece of music.
20. Lines 15-16 indicate that, after it first opened, the play ran for 734 performances.
21. The summary sentence (beginning "The plot. . .") runs from lines 7 to 10.
22. There were 8,000 people at the 1900 New York Auto Show, according to line 1. By coincidence, this was the same number of cars as there were in the United States in 1900 (lines 5-6).
23. By happenstance means "by chance," "coincidentally."
24. According to the passage, only around 4,000 cars were assembled in the United States in 1900, and only a quarter of those were gasoline powered (lines 8-10). One quarter of 4,000 is 1,000.
25. Lines 11-12 state that "the show's audience favored electric cars."
26. The word fumes means "gases," "vapors."
27. The word launched means "initiated," "began."
28. According to the passage, "The Duryea Motor Works ...offered an additive designed to mask the smell of the naphtha that it burned."
29. Line 19 indicates that the highest-priced cars sold for $1,500 in 1900 dollars.
30. The word cumbersome means "clumsy, difficult to control"
31. Lines 21-23 indicate that the Gasmobile, Franklin, and Orient steered with tillers; the Duryea probably used a steering wheel
32. Lines 23-25 state that "the black tie (i.e., very formal) audience viewed the display ... as a social outing."
33. According to the passage, auto shows were about to become "extravaganzas."
34. The passage deals with an interpretation of an experiment involving children's art.
35. The passage says that the children drew both "front views" (line 6) and "rear views" (line 7).
36. The reference is to the children.
37. The word markedly means "noticeably."
38. There is nothing in the article particularly useful to commercial artists.
39. The word odd means "unusual"
40. In the context of this passage, scale means "proportion."
41. Lines 10-12 indicate that the head size "is a form of planning, and not an indication of a poor sense of scale." There is no information in the passage to support any of the other choices.
42. Choice (A) is not correct; the author is not critical of O'Keeffe's style. Choice (B) is too specific. There is no comparison of abstract art and landscape art, so (C) is not correct. Choice (D) is the best statement of the author's purpose.
43. Line 2 states that O'Keeffe "studied art in Chicago and New York."
44. The expression refers to 1918.
45. The word frequented is closest in meaning to "visited."

Explanation of Written Expression Items

16. In order to be parallel with the other adjectives in the series (harder and more resistant), the comparative form lighter must be used.
17. The correct superlative form is largest.
18. The adjective form destructive is required in place of the noun form.
19. The correct pattern is both... and.
20. The correct form of the infinitive (to play) is needed.
21. The correct word order is preposition + relative pronoun: across which.
22. Both the noun phrase (these craftsmen) and the pronoun refer to the same person, so the reflexive pronoun themselves should be used.
23. The singular form of the verb, was, should be used to agree with the singular subject, influence.
24. The pronoun subject they is used unnecessarily and should be omitted.
25. The relative word where must be used to describe a place. (When is used to describe a time.)
26. With countable nouns such as mammals, the word many is used.
27. In order to agree with a plural noun (sharks), the possessive adjective their should be plural.
28. The correct word order is adjective + enough: dense enough.
29. The adjective form (Commercial) is required.

Explanation

1. The primary purpose of this passage is to detail the stages of the Sun's life in the future.
2. The word fueled is closest in meaning to "powered."
3. As it is used in the passage, the word "condition" is closest in meaning to "state."
4. The Sun has existed in its present state for about 4 billion, 600 million years (lines 34). It is expected to become a red giant in about 5 billion years. Therefore, it is about halfway through its life as a yellow dwarf.
5. Line 8 states that "the core of the Sun will shrink and become hotter."
6. The second paragraph describes the process by which the Sun becomes a red giant star. The last sentence of that paragraph states: "Temperatures on the Earth will become too hot for life to exist."
7. Lines 16-17 indicate that the Sun will be a white dwarf "After it shrinks to about the size of the Earth." Lines 4-5 indicate that the Sun today is thousands of times larger than the Earth. Therefore, the Sun will be thousands of times smaller than it is today.
8. According to the passage, the Sun is now a yellow dwarf star; it will then expand to a red giant star, shrink to a white dwarf star, and finally cool to a black dwarf.
9. The word eject has the same meaning as "throw off."
10. The reference is to the planet Earth.
11. The tone is scientifically objective. Although the passage describes the end of the Earth, that event is so far in the future that the author's tone is dispassionate.
12. Washington was one of the first persons to realize the importance of canals, and he headed the first company formed to build a canal. This indicates that he was a pioneer in canal construction. Choice (C) is incorrect because the canal was never finished.
13. The word possibility is closest in meaning to "feasibility."
14. According to lines 11-12, the canal linked Albany on the Hudson River with Buffalo on Lake Erie.
15. The word relatively is closest in meaning to "comparatively."
16. The word intermittent is closest in meaning to "on-again-off-again."
17. According to the passage, the Governor of New York "persuaded the state to finance and build the canal" (lines 22-23).
18. The cost had been estimated at $5 million (line 19) but actually cost $2 million more (line 24), a total of $7 million.
19. The word fees is closest in meaning to the word "tolls."

20. According to lines 29-31, the canal "allowed New York to supplant Boston, Philadelphia, and other eastern cities as the chief center of both domestic and foreign trade." The other effects are mentioned in the fourth paragraph.
21. Lines 34-36 indicate that the expansion of the Canal would have been warranted "had it not been for the development of the railroads." (This means, "if the railroads had not been developed.") The railroads must have taken so much traffic away from the canal that the expansion was no longer needed.
22. The word warranted most nearly means "justified."
23. The passage begins to discuss the actual construction of the Erie Canal in Line 16.
24. The passage mainly deals with the distress signals of trees. Choices (B) and (C) concern minor details. There is no information about (A).
25. The reference is to "trees" in line 4.
26. The word parched has the same meaning as the word "dehydrated."
27. The word plight means "condition."
28. The trees' signals are in the 50-500 kilohertz range; the unaided human ear can detect no more than 20 kilohertz (lines 9-10).
29. The word fractured is closest in meaning to "broken."
30. The signals are caused when the water columns inside tubes in trees break, "a result of too little water" (line 15).
31. In the context of the passage, pick up means "perceive."
32. Choices (A) and (B) are mentioned in lines 21-22; (C) is mentioned throughout the passage; there is no mention of (D).
33. Lines 18-19 say, "Researchers are now running tests," implying that research is continuing.
34. The passage explains the difference between two concepts, analogy and homology, and gives examples of both.
35. Lines 1-2 state, "The concepts ... are probably easier to exemplify than define."
36. The word rigid is closest in meaning to "inflexible." This means that there are certain principles that cannot be altered.
37. Analogous organs are those that perform the same functions but are not derived from the same embryological structures. The structures given in (D) most likely demonstrate this relationship in that they both provide the same functions-locomotion and support-but are not otherwise related.
38. Homologous organs "are genetically related," according to line 13.
39. In the context of the passage, the term structures refers to different physical parts of animals: wings, limbs, fins, and so on.
40. The word sense is closest in meaning to "meaning."
41. The author begins to discuss homology in the sentence beginning "In contrast ... " in line 9.
42. The purpose of the passage is primarily to describe Charlie Chaplin's movie Modern Times.

44. The word abruptly is closest in meaning to the word "suddenly."

47. The reference is to the phrase "another popular scene" in line 20.
48. Lines 24-26 state: "This serves to illustrate people's utter helplessness in the face of machines that are meant to serve their basic needs."
49. The word utter is closest in meaning to that of "complete."
50. The film does not offer "a radical social message," and so would not be considered "revolutionary" (A). Line 14 states that "Chaplin prefers to entertain rather than lecture"; thus, it is "entertaining" (B). Lines 17-19 mention that people who have seen the film cannot forget certain scenes, and so it is "memorable" (C). According to lines 12-14, the opening scene's "rather bitter note of criticism ... is replaced by a gentler note of satire"; therefore, the author would consider the film "satirical" (D).

Explanation of Written Expression Items

16. The correct pattern is both... and.

18. The noun that names a field (journalism) is needed in place of the noun naming a person (journalist).
19. The correct word order is college campuses.
20. The definite article the should not be used before the name of a field such as architecture.
21. To be parallel with the other words in the series (agriculture, finance, and accounting), a noun that names a field should be used (marketing).

30. The word other should be used in place of another before a plural noun (types).
31. This sentence incorrectly compares people and a sport (running and race walkers). For a logical comparison, the word running must be changed to runners.
32. The adjective wild should replace the adverb wildly because the phrase modifies a noun (Magnolia Gardens). The word lovely is used correctly in this sentence because it is an adjective ending in -ly, not an adverb.
33. The plural noun instruments is needed here.
34. The possessive form his should be used in place of the article the.

35. The past tense form of the verb (won) is needed.

Explanation

1. The passage generally deals with the time humans and mammoths co-existed in the New World and the possible role humans played in the extinction of the mammoths. No specific details are offered about (A) or (B), and (C) is too general.
2. The word implements is closest in meaning to "tools."
3. The phrase refers to "humans."
4. Line 13 mentions "the imperial mammoth of the South," meaning the southern section of North America.
5. Lines 14-16 state that "Here, as in the Old World, there is evidence that humans hunted these elephants," implying that humans had also hunted mammoths in Siberia.
6. The word remains can be defined as those parts of an animal's body that can be found after many years. In this case, they are mainly the bones of the mammoths.
7. The meaning of the word "apparently" is closest to that of seemingly.
8. The author argues that choice (A) is unlikely. Choice (B) is not possible because the extinction of the mammoths came at the end of the Ice Age. There is no information about (D). Only (C) is a possible conclusion.
9. The word cunning means "clever."
10. Choice (A) is true; line 26 states that humans were "not very numerous." Choice (B) is true; line 4 states that humans had bows and arrows at the time that they crossed from Siberia, and that crossing took place before the extinction of the mammoths. Choice (D) is also true; line 25 states that humans were "cunning hunters." Only (C) is not true; lines 25-26 say that humans were "still widely scattered."

21. Line 25 refers to the Wolverines as an example of a small Chicago jazz band.
22. The author provides the most detailed description of early jazz in the third paragraph.
23. The last sentence of the passage indicates that the next era of jazz would be the Swing era, so it is logical that the next paragraph will continue with a discussion of this period.
24. The word astounding is closest in meaning to "startling."
25. All three streets are in San Francisco (lines 4-5); the residents have the same approximate levels of income. (They are all middle class or working class, according to lines 5-6.) They all have approximately the same ethnic mix as well (lines 6-7). The only difference is the amount of traffic.
26. Lines 10-11 say that Franklin Street "had almost 16,000 cars a day."
27. According to lines 13-16, trash is a secondary effect of heavy traffic.
28. The author's main purpose in this paragraph is to discuss the negative impact heavy traffic has on Franklin Street.

30. The word chatted means "talked" (informally).
31. According to the passage, increased traffic reduces the amount of territory for which residents feel responsible (lines 16-17). All the other statements would be consistent with information given about Gough Street residents in the fourth paragraph.
32. The author first presents a detailed discussion of Franklin Street (HEAVY), the Octavia Street (LIGHT), and finally Gough Street (MEDIUM).
33. The passage concentrates on the books written by Rachel Carson and on her career as a writer.
34. Lines 2-3 state that Carson studied zoology at Johns Hopkins University.
35. Carson was born in 1907 (line 1) and published Under the Sea Wind in 1941 (lines 67), so she must have been around 34 years of age at the time of publication.
36. According to lines 7-8, when Under the Sea Wind was first published "it received excellent reviews, but sales were poor until it was reissued in 1952."
37. There is no mention that Rachel Carson took part in a research expedition. The other sources are given in lines 12-13.
38. Carson "realized the limitations of her non-technical readers" (lines 14-15), implying that the book was not highly technical. It did have a poetic quality (line 11), and it was fascinating (interesting), according to line 9, and well-researched (lines 12-14).

Explanation

1. The passage provides an introduction to Lucy Maud Montgomery's life and works, especially her Anne books.
2. The reference is to Anne of Green Gables, which is a classic children's tale written by a Canadian author.
3. According to lines 5-7, Montgomery "moved in with her grandparents" after her mother died and her father moved to Saskatchewan.
4. Montgomery's first book was published in 1908 (line 11), and she wrote the two sequels in the next three years."
5. The word elderly is closest in meaning to "old."
6. In lines 12-14, the author states that "the heroine of the book is taken in by an elderly couple who live in the fictional town of Avonlea."
7. According to lines 14-15, "Montgomery incorporated many events from her life in Cavendish into the Anne books.
8. The word prominence is closest in meaning to "reputation."
9. In the context of the passage, the word character means "nature."
10. There is no mention in the passage that a ballet was ever based on the Anne books. The other choices are mentioned in lines 21-22.
11. In the context of the passage, scour means "search."
12. Choices (A) and (B) are details; choice (C) implies that animals can count, an idea which is contradicted in the third paragraph.
13. The accounts from White's book indicate that certain animals are aware of quantities on an intuitional level.
14. The word surreptitiously is closest in meaning to the word "secretly."
15. As used in this passage, the word abandon means "vacate."
16. The word odd in this context refers to numbers which are not divisible by 2 (1, 3, 5, 7, and so on). (Numbers that are divisible by 2 are called even numbers.)
17. According to the first paragraph, caterpillars are used by wasps to supply food for their young. There is no mention that they are aware of quantities. The other choices are given in the paragraph as examples of creatures that are aware of quantities in some way.
18. The word accounts means "reports" or "stories" in the context of this passage.
19. According to the passage, "animals respond to quantities when they are connected to survival as a species ...or survival as individuals." Choices (A) and (D) are connected to the pigeon's and the lion's survival as individuals (since these incidents involve food), and choice (C) is an incident involving the survival of a - species (since it involves the cat's young). It can be inferred that choice (B) is the result of conditioning by a trainer rather than the result of the monkey's instinctive awareness of quantities.

20. Since these people believe that "creatures other than humans can actually count" (line 16) and the author believes that none of the animal's achievements shows evidence of counting, the author must consider these people mistaken.
 21. The word admittedly is closest in meaning to "undeniably."
 22. The reference is to the remarkable achievements of animals.
 23. The reference comes in the sentence beginning, "In lab experiments" The research mentioned in the first paragraph shows animals' ability to recognize quantities, not their inability to count.

 25. There is no mention that Bessemer steel was used in Civil War weapons; the other effects are cited in the first paragraph.
 26. According to the passage, the production of Bessemer steel exceeded that of wrought iron in 1880 (lines 15-16), implying that wrought iron production was greater than Bessemer steel production before then.
 27. The word burgeoning is closest in meaning to the word "expanding."
 28. According to lines 19-20, "steel rails were far more durable (long-lasting) than those made of iron."
 29. In the context of this passage, the word driven is closest in meaning to that of "spurred."
 30. According to lines 21-22, "the U.S. steel industry became the largest in the world in 1886, when it surpassed that of Great Britain."
 31. Because steel made by the Bessemer Process accounted for only 3 percent of the total U.S. production in the 1950's, steel production must have involved methods other than the Bessemer process.
 32. Because the last paragraph deals with the declining importance of the Bessemer Process and mentions that the open-hearth method supplanted it, it is logical to assume that the next paragraph discusses the open-hearth method.
 33. The author first mentions the expansion of the Bessemer steel method in lines 14 -16, in the sentence beginning "Production grew rapidly"
 34. The author does not discuss San Francisco's current housing problems. Restoration is discussed in the third paragraph; the three styles are explained in the second paragraph; the entire passage provides a brief history of San Francisco's Victorian houses.
 35. The word gaudy is closest in meaning to the word "showy."
 36. The first paragraph indicates that almost all of Nob Hill was destroyed in 1906, and goes on to say that surviving Victorians can be found in Cow Hollow, Pacific Heights, and the Mission district.
 37. Roman Classical is not one of the three styles of Victorian built in San Francisco; it is the style Italianate houses were influenced by, and so must have been an earlier style. Italianate styles were popular in the 1870's, Stick houses in the 1880's, and Queen Anne houses in the 1890's. Queen Anne houses were therefore the last to become fashionable.
 38. In the context of the sentence, bays are features of Victorian houses. (They are a type of window.)
 39. In lines 17-20, the author says that towers were among the features that "distinguished Queen Anne houses from their predecessors." The other choices are given as features of Italianate or Stick styles.
 40. Victorian houses were considered "impossibly old-fashioned" in the period after the earthquake (which occurred in 1906), but interest in them was renewed during the 1960's, when many were restored.
 41. According to lines 23-24, the owners of the houses commissioned "multi-hued paint jobs."
 42. According to the first paragraph, sea otters, along with freshwater otters and other animals, are members of the group known as mustelids.
 43. Lines 7-9 indicate that sea otters have to eat about 30 percent of their body weight a day. Thirty percent of 100 pounds is 30 pounds.
 44. The term picky eaters (meaning creatures with selective appetites) is applied to sea otters because each animal prefers only a few food types (lines 11-12).
 45. In the context of this passage, the word exhausted means "used up."
 46. Lines 15-16 indicate that some sea otters protect kelp forests because they "feast on invertebrates such as sea urchins and abalones that destroy kelp."
 47. The term luxuriant means "abundant."
 48. According to lines 20-21, "the soft outer fur forms a protective cover that keeps the fine under-fur dry."
 49. The word elated is closest in meaning to "overjoyed."

Answer Key

50. According to lines 26-28, scientists are worried because the California otter population rate of growth is only 5 percent a year, “lagging behind the 18%-a-year rate among Alaska otters.”

M1: Hmm... there are 23 names on my class list, so I only brought 23 copies of the syllabus.

M2: What can be inferred from Professor White's remark?

25. F2: We're not far from Mount Pleasant Street. There are some antique stores there that have some wonderful things, and they're fairly cheap.

CD1, TR 6

Questions 31-33: Listen to the following conversation.

M1: Good morning, Diana. What did you want to talk to me about?

F1: Good morning, Professor Lane. I wanted to talk to you about changing my major. You see, I've decided that when I graduate in three years, I'd like to work in an art museum. I think I should change my major to art history.

M1: You know, Diana, I think you should give this decision some more thought. You've done well in your year as a business major. Besides, all organizations need good managers, whether they're private companies or nonprofit foundations like museums.

F1: I suppose that's true, but wouldn't I still have to know a lot about art?

M1: Why not take a few elective courses in art history? And try working a few hours a week as a volunteer at the local art museum. See if you really like working there.

31. What is the probable relationship between these two speakers?

32. When does Diana hope to begin working at a museum?

33. What does the man advise Diana to do?

CD 1, TR 7

Questions 34-37: Listen to a conversation between two students.

M1: Gloria, hello! You're not looking too happy. What's the matter? Have you been studying too much?

F2: Oh, hi. No, that's not it. The problem is that I was planning to go home over spring break, but my travel agent just told me all the airlines are fully booked that week.

M1: Why not go by car?

F2: It's too long a trip to take by myself, and gasoline is so expensive.

M1: Have you checked the ride board? Maybe you can get a rider to go with you.

F2: The ride board-what's that?

M1: It's a bulletin board that has a map of the United States on it. The map is divided into different regions, and each region has a different number. Say you want to go to New England-that would be box number one. There are boxes for each number. You can put a white card or a blue card in one of the boxes.

F2: What's the difference between a blue card and a white one?

M1: Blue means you have a car and need riders to share the driving. White means that you're looking for a ride.

F2: So I should go look at the white cards to see if anyone needs a ride to where I'm going, right?

M1: Yeah, and fill out a blue card too.

F2: So where is this ride board?

M1: It's on the second floor of the Student Union building, right by the campus cinema.

34. Why does Gloria look unhappy?

35. According to the man, what do the numbers on the boxes at the ride board represent?

36. What does Gloria hope to obtain through the ride board?

37. Where is the ride board?

CD1, TR9

Questions 38-42: Listen to a student telling his friends about an experience he had.

M1: I saw something rather unusual late last Sunday night. My roommate Ron and I were driving back here to the university from my parents' house. They live in a small town about seventy miles from here. We'd stopped so that I could drive. Ron was really tired-when all of a sudden, the whole sky was lit up. I thought I was seeing a UFO-a real flying saucer. Ron thought maybe it was an airliner going down, or a satellite coming out of orbit. A fireball shot across the sky. It looked almost like fireworks. Then the light disappeared behind the hills. It wasn't until the next morning, when I was listening to the morning news on the radio, that I found out what had happened. Apparently I'd seen a large meteorite. The light was caused by the heat of friction as the meteor traveled through the atmosphere. Most meteors burn up in the upper atmosphere, according to the announcer, but large ones can hit the ground. This one was unusual in that pieces of it were recovered. They landed in a parking lot about twenty miles from where we were. My mother told me that when she was young, she read a story in a magazine about a meteorite that crashed through the roof of a house and hit a woman sleeping in her bedroom and broke her leg. Anyway, it was an incredible sight, and I'm glad I was lucky enough to see it.

38. What did the man initially believe he had seen?

39. Why had the man stopped the car?

40. How did the man learn what he had actually seen?

41. What happened to the meteor that the man had seen?

42. How did the man feel about what he had seen?

CD 1, TR 10

Questions 43-46: Listen to a talk given by a tour guide.

F2: Ladies and gentlemen, the bus will stop next at the Washington Monument, which honors the first President of the United States. The first stone of the monument was laid in 1848, but because of a variety of problems, work was delayed. So it was not until 1884 that the monument was completed. Imagine that-it took 36 years! And then it was another four years before it opened to the public. Now, if you like, you can go to the top of the Monument. On the way up, you'll have to take the elevator. You can take the elevator down, too, or you can walk-if you don't mind climbing down 898 steps. The monument is made of marble, except for a tiny aluminum tip. Incidentally, before the tip was put on the monument, it was displayed around the country. Some young people jumped over the tip so that later, they could truthfully claim that they'd jumped over the top of the Washington Monument. After visiting the Washington Monument, we'll be walking over to the Lincoln Memorial. Watch your step as you get off the bus, please.

43. Where is this talk probably being given?
44. How long did it take to build the Washington Monument?
45. According to the speaker, what must those people who go to the top of the Washington Monument do?
46. According to the speaker, what did some young people do when the tip of the monument was displayed?

CD 1, TR 11

Questions 47-50: Listen to the following lecture.

M2: Good day, class. Today we're going to continue our discussion of American music with a look at the songs of the frontier period. Nearly everyone who went west-the mountaineers, the miners, the river raftsmen, the railroad workers had songs to accompany their work. And after work, the men and women of the frontier sang and danced to fiddle tunes or country dances. Some of these songs were new versions of old songs from Europe, while some were completely new. Some of the most popular of these songs were later used as theme songs for political campaigns. Now, we're going to listen to a few of these songs performed much as they were almost two centuries ago. As you listen to the recordings, notice the difference between these lively songs and the slower, more genteel music of the Eastern choral societies that we listened to in our last class.

47. In what course is this lecture probably given?
48. What can be inferred about the songs of the frontier?
49. According to the speaker, how do these songs compare with the songs of Eastern choral societies?
50. What will the people who are listening to this lecture probably do next?

F2: Finally-after they fought about it all afternoon.

M2: How did the committee spend the afternoon?

M1: As a matter of fact, he's so disappointed that he wasn't elected president, he's quitting the club.

M2: What does the man say about Stuart?

M2: What does the woman imply?

F1: For one thing, I help him correct tests.

M2: What does Jane help Professor Ramsey do?

M2: What is learned about Ned?

M2: Yes, I broke a pane in the window upstairs.

4. F1: I can't find my coat.

5. F1: Where did you get these statistics?

M1: But I can't handle them all by myself.

M1: I'm sorry, I can't help it-I always pace when I'm on edge.

M2: What does the man tell the woman?

7. F1: Julie wasn't at band practice today.

11. F1: You live near the park?

M1: Just a stone's throwaway.

M2: What does the man mean?

F1: I wouldn't push my luck if I were you, Gary.

M2: What does the woman imply?

3. F2: Well, that was a good program. Want to watch something else?

M1: Not me-I'm ready to turn in.

M2: What will the man do next?

4. F1: Alice, what did you think of that comedian's jokes.

F2: To tell you the truth, a lot of them went over my head.

F1: You kidding? She listens to it for hours on end.

M2: What does the woman say about her roommate and the song?

F2: Want me to lend a hand?

M2: What does the woman offer to do?

M1: Not if we all chip in.

M2: What does the man mean?

M2: No, we certainly haven't.

Exercise 6.2

M1: Me, too. Research papers take a lot more time.
M2: What does the man mean?

M1: You can say that again!

M1: Happy! You call that happy?

3. M1: That author we both like is going to be signing books at Appleton's Bookstore this afternoon.

F1: I'm not busy this afternoon. Why don't we go?

9. M2: Cynthia, if you have a class, I could take your brother to the airport for you.

F1: Could you? That would be great.

10. M1: Should I turn on the television?

F2: Please don't.

11. F2: You could save a lot of time at the grocery by making up a list before you go.

M1: It's worth a try, I guess.

12. M1: Bob, get me a cup of coffee, will you?

M2: Who do you think I am, your waiter?

13. F1: I'm going to go out and get something to eat. Want to come?

M1: I've got a better idea. Let's have a pizza delivered.

14. F2: My arm still hurts.

M2: I'd get it X-rayed if I were you.

15. F2: You know, Paul, if you want your houseplants to grow, you should move them over by the window where they get more light.

M2: Now why didn't I ever think of that?

16. F1: Have another sandwich, James.

M1: Thanks. Don't mind if I do.

Exercise 7.2

CD 2, TR 7

1. F1: Do you mind if I smoke?

M1: As a matter of fact, I do.

M2: What does the man mean?

2. M1: My blue suit hasn't come back from the cleaners yet.

F2: Well, there's always your gray one.

M2: What does the woman say about the gray suit?

3. F1: You know, one of the best things about this cinema is the great popcorn they have here.

M1: It does smell good. Let's go get some.

M2: What does the man suggest they do?

4. M1: We need someone to plan the class trip.

F1: How about Cathy?

M2: What does the woman say about Cathy?

5. F2: Shall I make some more coffee?

M1: Not on my account.

M2: What does the man mean?

F2: Shouldn't you clean your kitchen too?

M2: What does the woman suggest?

CD 2, TR 8

M1: It's across campus from here. Would you like me to show you on this map?

M2: What does the man offer to do?

10. M1: Well, that's it for our chemistry homework. We should work on our math problems next.

F1: What about taking a little break first?

M2: What does the woman suggest they do?

11. F2: Do you think this toaster can be repaired?

M1: If I were in your shoes, I'd just buy another one.

M2: What does the man suggest that the woman do?

12. F2: Would you mind if I read your magazine?

M1: No, go right ahead.

M2: What does the man tell the woman?

13. M1: You know, I think I'm going to get a new computer desk. This one is too small for me to work at.

F2: What about buying a computer instead? Yours is practically an antique!

M2: What does the woman suggest the man do?

14. F1: Christopher, want to come to the library with Tim and me? We're going to study for our biology test tomorrow.

M1: I think I'll pass on that. I spent the whole weekend going over my biology notes, and tonight I'm just going to relax.

M2: What does Christopher tell the woman?

15. F2: Someone should answer these letters.

M1: Don't look at me!

M2: What does the man mean?

16. M1: I'm having some friends over for lunch today. Care to join us?
F1: Can I take a rain check?
M2: What does the woman mean?

8. M1: Cliff is working part time in the cafeteria.
F1: Oh, he finally decided to get a job, then?

15. F2: I stopped at the grocery store on the way home from class.

M1: Yeah? How come?

M2: What does the man ask the woman?

M2: What had Beverly originally assumed?

Exercise 9

CD 2, TR 11

M2: What are they talking about?

2. M1: Have you heard about that big outdoor jazz concert next month?

F2: Heard about it! I already have tickets.

M2: What is the woman going to do?

3. F1: Joe and Nancy and I were hoping to get a ride to the party with you.

M1: With me? But I drive a little two-seater.

M2: What is the problem?

4. F2: Looks like rain. Better look for your umbrella.

M1: Yeah, I think it's definitely going to rain-that's why I'm not going out.

M2: What is the man going to do?

5. M2: You mean it's still closed?

M1: Yes, sir. The repairs won't be done for another two weeks. You'll have to take Highway 17 and cross downriver from here.

M2: What are they talking about?

6. M2: OK, so I'll bring the portable stove and the food.

M1: And I'll bring the tent and we'll each bring a sleeping bag. Hey, this is going to be fun!

M2: What are the speakers probably planning to do?

7. F1: I like your new glasses, Brian.

M1: I like these new frames, too, but my vision is blurry and I've been having headaches. I've got to go back to Dr. Lamb and get some new lenses prescribed.

F2: Sure-what channel?

M2: What are the speakers going to do?

10. F2: Ron, I need that art history book I lent you last month.

M1: Urn, well, I'm going to have to replace it for you. See, Tuesday I was looking at it out in the yard, and forgot to bring it in with me-and you remember that rain we had Tuesday night?

M2: What problem did Ron have with the book?

11. M2: Take a look at this model. It's incredibly fast.

F1: Does it have much memory?

M2: What are the speakers discussing?

12. F2: Shirley, are you going to go right on to business school when you finish your undergraduate studies?

F1: Actually, I hope to get some practical experience with a big corporation first.

M2: What will the woman probably do after she finishes her undergraduate program?

13. M1: I think we need a new deck. I haven't won a single hand.

F1: Come on, it's your deal-I'll cut the cards.

M2: What are these people doing?

14. F2: Dave, Phyllis is going to be upset with you if you don't send her a postcard while we're here.

M1: Yeah, well, I'd send her one if I knew where to buy a stamp.

M2: What is the problem?

15. M1: Let's go to that soup and salad restaurant, okay?

F1: All right, we'll go there, but their soups are always much too salty for me.

M2: What will the woman probably do?

- 12. F2: Nick, how do you like this hot, humid weather?
M1: Well, growing up in New Orleans, I'm pretty much used to it.
M2: What does Nick tell the woman?
- 13. F1: You look nice today, Sally.
M1: Thanks-our club is having our photo taken today for the yearbook.
M2: What does Sally mean?
- 14. M1: You finally bought a microwave oven, I see.
F2: Dh-huh, but I haven't gotten used to it yet.
M2: What does the woman mean?

15. M1: Jan, look behind you-there's a deer.

F2: Oh, isn't it beautiful. Do you think it will let us get a little closer to it?

M2: What does Jan ask the man?

Mini-Test 1: Dialogs

CD 3, TR 1

1. M1: What do you think of Wanda?

F1: When I first met her, I didn't like her very much, but I really warmed up to her after awhile.

M2: What does the woman imply about Wanda?

2. F2: Now, if there are no more questions, let's move on to the next chapter.

M1: Excuse me, professor-could we go over that last point once more?

M2: What does the man want to do?

3. M2: Great weather we're having, huh?

F1: Yeah, but don't get too used to it. The weather report in the newspaper said that there's a big change in store.

M2: What does the woman mean?

4. F2: This is an interesting editorial-want to read it?

M1: I want to read the sports section and look over the classified ads first.

M2: What are these people doing?

5. M1: My sister is looking for a roommate. Do you know anyone who might want to move in with her?

F1: How about Grace?

M2: What do we learn from this conversation?

6. M1: I'm almost out of money again this month.

F2: Why don't you keep track of your expenses and payments? That might help you make ends meet.

M2: What does the woman think the man should do?

7. M1: Where do you think I should put this lamp, in my living room or in my bedroom?

F2: If I were you, I'd put it in the closet.

M2: What can be inferred from the woman's comment?

8. M1: We'd better leave right now.

F2: What's the rush, Mark?

M2: What does the woman want to know?

9. F1: Look over there. Is that Ernie in the red car?

M1: No, but it certainly looks like him.

M2: What does the man mean?

10. M1: It's freezing out there! I'm going to put on my scarf and gloves.

F2: Shouldn't you put on your hat too?

M2: What does the woman mean?

F1: Seen it! Only about a million times!

12. F1: I didn't think the team was well prepared for that game.

M1: To tell you the truth, neither did I.

M2: What does the man mean?

13. M1: Becky, are you going to be using that computer much longer? If so, I can go use one at the library.

F1: I'm almost finished.

M2: What can be inferred from this conversation?

14. F2: I didn't think John had ever been scuba-diving before.

M1: Oh, sure. John's an old hand at scuba-diving.

M2: What does the man say about John?

15. F2: Why are you walking that way, Richard? Did you hurt yourself when you went skiing?

M1: No, no-it's these shoes; they're not broken in yet.

M2: What problem is Richard having?

16. M1: Judy, I just wrote a new song. Want to hear it?

F1: Well, what are you waiting for?

M2: What does the woman mean?

17. M1: I didn't realize you were an art history major.

F2: I'm not. I'm taking a class in art history, but I'm studying to be a commercial artist.

M2: What are these people discussing?

18. M2: We should have a party.

F1: You took the words right out of my mouth.

M2: What does the woman mean?

19. M1: I'm going to drop by Sophie's apartment to give her the good news.

F2: Why bother? She'll be at the meeting this afternoon.

M2: What does the woman mean?

20. F2: Ted sure is outgoing.

F1: Isn't he! It's hard to believe he used to be shy.

M2: What do the speakers imply about Ted?

CD 3, TR 3

21. F1: Did you see that ring Laura bought?

F2: Uh-huh-must have cost her a pretty penny.

M2: What do the speakers mean?

M1: I'm just taking a little break.

M2: What can be inferred from this conversation?

23. F1: Could you help me move this box upstairs?

M1: Sure, I-say, what do you have in here, your rock collection?

M2: What can be inferred from the man's comment?

24. F1: What a great haircut, Sarah!

F2: You think so? I think she took too much off.

M2: What is Sarah's opinion?

25. F1: What room is Professor Clayburn speaking in tonight?

M1: Professor Clayburn is speaking tonight?

M2: What does the man imply by his remark?

26. M2: Can I look at that drawing for a second?

F2: Be my guest.

M2: What does the woman mean?

27. M1: Want me to turn up the heater?

F2: Please don't-I'm burning up back here.

M2: What does the woman mean?

28. M2: I thought I heard barking coming from Joe's room.

29. M1: I stopped by Doctor Norton's office at the Medical Center.

F2: Really? What for?

M2: What does the woman want to know?

30. F1: Did you know Angela had finished all her required courses? She'll be graduating in May.

M1: Oh, so she doesn't have to repeat that chemistry course after all.

M2: What had the man assumed about Angela?

PART B: EXTENDED CONVERSATIONS

Exercise 12

CD 3, TR 4

Questions 1-2: Listen to a conversation between a teacher and a student.

M1: Professor Mueller, I've almost finished preparing my presentation for your class, but I'm not really satisfied with it. Could you give me some advice?

F2: I'll be happy to. What topic did you choose?

M1: It's about methods of predicting earthquakes, but so far, it's just a lot of facts and figures. How can I make it more interesting?

F2: Maybe you could use some computer graphics to help the class make sense of your statistics.

1. What will the main topic of this talk probably be?

2. For what class is the man probably preparing a presentation?

Questions 3-4: Listen to a conversation that takes place on a college campus.

F1: Hi there, Doctor Newman. Do you remember me?

M2: Oh, sure. We met at the reception in the dean's office last week, didn't we?

F1: That's right. I'm Alice Hart. Are you on your way to a class?

M2: Yes, I am, but I'm not in any great hurry. How about you?

F1: Me, too. I've got a German class in a few minutes.

M2: Well, I'm going to a language class myself. You see, I teach signing.

F1: Signing?

M2: Right, signing. Signing is just a short way of saying American Sign Language. It's the language deaf people use to communicate.

3. Who are the people taking part in this conversation?
4. What will the rest of the conversation probably be about?

Questions 5-6: Listen to the following conversation.

F1: I'm in Professor Quinn's psychology class. She told us that she'd put some articles on reserve for her class.

F2: Yes, those would be at the reserve desk.

F1: Do I need a library card to look at those articles?

F2: No, just a student ID card. If you've never checked out any reserve materials, I can tell you what you need to do.

5. What will the main topic of this conversation probably be?
6. Where does this conversation probably take place?

CD 3, TR 5

Questions 7-9: Listen to a conversation that takes place at a hospital.

F1: Good afternoon, Dr. Marshall. I know you must be very busy, so I appreciate your taking some time to talk to me. .

M2: That's all right. What can I do for you?

F1: Well, I'm interested in a career in hospital administration. My academic advisor suggested I speak to you. I was hoping you could give me some information about the field.

M2: I'd be glad to. Is there something particular you wanted to know?

F1: I was wondering what type of educational background a hospital administrator needs. Is a degree in medicine required?

M2: No, not necessarily. Some hospital administrators are medical doctors, but many of us aren't. My own doctoral degree is in public administration.

7. Why does the woman want to talk to Dr. Marshall?
8. What is Dr. Marshall's occupation?
9. What is Dr. Marshall's attitude toward the woman?

Question 10: Listen to the following conversation.

M1: Come on, Dorothy, turn off that television and let's go. The softball game starts in twenty minutes.

F2: Just a second-I want to find out who won the race.

M1: What race-a marathon?

F2: Well, it's kind of a marathon, but for dogs and dog sledders. It's called the Iditarod. It's run every year in Alaska.

10. What will the main topic of this conversation probably be?

CD 3, TR 6

Questions 11-12: Listen to the following conversation.

M1: Well, I had a nice, relaxing vacation. How about you, Tina?

F2: I wouldn't exactly call it relaxing, but it was interesting.

M1: I remember you said you were either going to Europe or you were going to work at your parents' company.

F2: I changed my mind and didn't do either of those. My anthropology professor talked me into volunteering for an archaeological project in New Mexico.

M1: That does sound interesting.

11. Who is Tina?
12. What will the two speakers probably discuss?

Questions 13-14: Listen to the following telephone conversation.

(Ring... ring.... Sound of phone being picked up.)

F1: Good morning. Thanks for calling the Sales Office of Hillman and Johnson Publishers.

M2: Yes, hello. This is Dave Gruening. I'm the manager of Kennedy Bookstore at Southwestern State University. I'm calling to check on the availability of a textbook, Case Studies in International Business, for the spring semester.

F1: Let me just check that on my computer. (Sound of keystrokes.) Um, let's see, is that the text by Sternberg?

M2: That's right. I'll need at least 120 copies sent to the bookstore at the latest by next Wednesday.

F1: I can't really promise they'll be there by next Wednesday-it may be the following week.

M2: But that class starts on Monday of the following week.

13. Who is the woman who answers the phone?
14. When does this conversation take place?

Questions 15-16: Listen to a conversation that takes place in a university office.

M1: Hi. How can I help you?

F2: I'm looking for an application form for the graduate school-can I pick one up here?

M1: No, this is the Financial Aid Office. Graduate Admissions is across campus from here. Do you know where Nicholson Hall is? It's in the office building next to that.

F2: Um, I'm not sure-I'm not very familiar with this campus.

15. Where does the man probably work?
16. What will the rest of the conversation probably deal with?

Exercise 13.1

CD 3, TR 7

Questions 1-2: Listen to Portion 1 of Conversation A.

F1: I just read an article in a magazine that talked about different types of exercise. Guess what kind it recommended?

M1: Let's see-was it jogging?

F1: No, according to the article, jogging can cause leg and foot injuries for some people.

1. From what source did the woman get her information about exercising?
2. According to the woman, what is one of the disadvantages of jogging?

Questions 3-4: Listen to Portion 2 of Conversation A.

M1: Then what kind of exercise did the article suggest?

F1: Cross-country skiing. The article said cross-country skiing exercises almost all of the muscle systems of the body, and that it's good for the heart and lungs.

M1: Cross-country skiing! I would never have guessed that-Tell me, how is cross-country skiing different from downhill skiing?

F1: Well, for one thing, you don't have to go to the mountains to go cross-country skiing. You can go anywhere there's snow.

3. What form of exercise did the article recommend?
4. What can be inferred about cross-country skiing from this conversation?

Questions 5-6: Listen to Portion 3 of Conversation A.

M1: But what if there isn't enough snow to go skiing?

F1: The article said that there are exercise machines that provide almost the same kind of exercise. The only problem is, they're fairly expensive.

M1: I see. So if you have one of these machines, you can get the best kind of exercise and not even get your ears cold!

5. What does the article suggest people do if there isn't enough snow for skiing?

6. What is one disadvantage of a cross-country skiing machine?

CD 3, TR 8

Questions 7-8: Listen to Portion 1 of Conversation B.

F2: You look exhausted this morning, Steve.

M1: I am pretty tired. I stayed up nearly all night getting ready for a midterm exam this morning.

F2: Have you gotten the results of the test yet?

M1: Yes, and unfortunately, my grade could have been much better. No matter how much time I spend studying, I never seem to do well on tests.

7. Why is Steve tired?

8. How does Steve feel about the grade he received on the test?

Questions 9-10: Listen to Portion 2 of Conversation B.

F2: You know, Steve, if I were you, I'd consider taking some of the seminars offered by the Study Skills Center.

M1: The Study Skills Center? Never heard of it.

F2: Well, it's run by a group of graduate students and professors who help undergraduate students improve their study techniques. See, last semester, I had to do a research paper for a sociology course, but I had no idea how to collect research materials until I took one of the seminars at the Center.

9. Who are the Study Skills Center's seminars designed to help?

10. How was the woman helped by the seminar that she took?

Questions 11-13: Listen to Portion 3 of Conversation B.

M1: What kind of seminars does the Center offer that could help me?

F2: They have one on test-taking skills. There's also a seminar that teaches you to manage your time efficiently. You should find that useful, I should think.

M1: You're probably right. Where is the Center?

F2: They hold most of their seminars in the library, but the main office is in Staunton Hall, right across the quadrangle from the Physics Tower.

M1: You know, I think I'll go over there right now.

F2: Why don't you wait until tomorrow? Right now, you should go home and catch up on your sleep.

11. What is one type of seminar that the woman thinks Steve would find useful?

12. Where is the Study Skills Center's main office?

13. What does the woman suggest Steve do next?

CD 3, TR 9

Questions 14-15: Listen to Portion 1 of Conversation C.

F1: Hello, Roger. You're looking thoughtful today. What's on your mind?

M2: Well, Margie, you know the public television station is having an auction to raise money. They need to build a new transmitter tower so that viewers can get a clearer picture. I watch that channel a lot. I'd like to help out, but I don't really have anything to donate to the auction, and I can't afford to buy something new.

F1: Why not donate a service?

M2: What do you mean?

F1: Well, Roger, you're an experienced carpenter, right? Why don't you offer two hours of your carpentry work for free to whoever makes the highest bid?

14. Why is the television station trying to raise money?

15. What does the woman suggest that Roger do?

Questions 16-17: Listen to Portion 2 of Conversation C.

M2: That's a great idea! Thanks. And say, I know you watch some shows on that channel yourself. Why don't you donate a service too?

F1: You know, I'd like to help, but I have final exams coming up, so I'd better not make too many commitments. But I will come to the auction, and I'll bring my parents with me. I know they'd like to get some expert carpentry work done.

16. What excuse does the woman make for not donating a service?

17. What does the woman imply about her parents?

Exercise 13.2

CD 3, TR 10

Questions 1-5: Listen to two students talk about a trip to California.

M1: So, Rebecca, what did you do for spring break?

F2: I went to southern California. I was in Los Angeles and San Diego. Oh, and I stopped in San Juan Capistrano. That's south of Los Angeles and north of San Diego. I happened to be there just about the time the swallows returned.

M1: Oh, I've heard about that-they always return on the same day, don't they?

F1: That's right, on March 19th. And they always flyaway on the same day, October 23rd. In the meantime, they migrate over 7,000 miles to get to their winter homes.

M1: Seven thousand miles-imagine! And always coming back on the same day!

F1: Yes, except for one year, a long time ago-they were delayed for a day by a storm at sea.

M1: So, what's the town of San Juan Capistrano like?

F1: Oh, it's a pleasant little town. Once there was a famous mission church there.

M1: Once? What happened to it?

F1: It was destroyed by an earthquake almost two hundred years ago. But there is an old adobe church that survived. The swallows build their nests in the walls and towers of that church.

M1: You sure were lucky to be there on the one day of the year when the swallows return.

F1: Well, I wasn't there exactly on that day. I got to town a couple of days later-but I did see the parade celebrating the swallows' return.

M1: They have a parade? The people there must really like those swallows. F1: Sure-they bring lots of tourists to town, and besides, the swallows eat insects including mosquitoes!

1. Where is the town of San Juan Capistrano?
2. What can be inferred about the swallows mentioned in the conversation?
3. When do the swallows return to San Juan Capistrano?
4. How far do the swallows migrate? '
5. Which of the following did Rebecca see?

CD 3, TR 11

Questions 6-8: Listen to a conversation that takes place on a college campus.

M1: I'm here for the campus tour.

F2: I'm sorry. We only offer a guided tour during the first week of classes.

M1: Oh, really? That's too bad. I was really hoping to get a good orientation. Last week, I spent nearly an hour trying to find a classroom in the Fine Arts Building.

F2: You know what you can do-you can take the self-guided tour. This pamphlet tells you exactly what to do, where to go, and what to look for, and it has a complete map of the campus.

M1: Sounds easy enough-where do I start?

F2: The first stop is right here, in the Student Center Building. Then you go next door to the Science Building-there's a great planetarium there, by the way and from there you go to the University Recreation Center. After that, just follow the directions in the pamphlet and you can't go wrong.

6. When is the guided tour of the campus given?
7. What did the man have difficulty locating the week before?
8. Where does the self-guided tour start?

CD 3, TR 12

Questions 9-12: Listen to the following conversation.

M2: Hi, Helen. How did your driving test go? Did you get your driver's license yet?

F1: So far, I've just taken the written test. I did well enough on that, but I still have to take the road test.

M2: I remember when I took the road test a few years ago. The first time I took it, I failed.

F1: You failed! But you're such a good driver! What happened?

M2: Well, I took a left-hand turn from the right lane, and the examiner told me just to turn around and go back to the testing center. It was pretty embarrassing.

F1: My big problem is parallel parking. I just can't seem to get a car into those little spaces.

M2: If you like, we can go out in my car before you take the road test and practice parallel parking.

F1: That would be great. I've just got to get my license. I can't believe that I have a car that my parents gave me just sitting in my garage, and I can't even drive it.

9. What did Helen recently pass?
10. What problem did the man have when he took his road test several years before?
11. What does the man offer to do for Helen?
12. Why can't Helen use the car in her garage?

Mini-Test 2: Extended Conversations

CD 4, TR 1

Questions 1-4: Listen to a conversation at a university library.

M1: Hi, Martha. What are you doing here?

F2: Oh, I just came to look up some terms in the Encyclopedia of Art for my art history class. What about you, Stanley?

M1: I've got two papers due at the end of this term, and I've been getting an early start on them by collecting some references and writing down some statistics. I've spent most of the day here.

F2: Really? Well, you ought to be ready for a break then. Want to go get a snack or something?

M1: You know, that sounds great-let me just get my things together and... hey, where are my notes?

F2: What notes?

M1: The notes I spent all day working on. I don't see them.

F2: You mean, you lost your notebook?

M1: No, I don't use a notebook-I take notes on index cards.

F2: Well, just think about where you could have left them. Retrace your steps since you came in the library.

M1: Let's see-when I first arrived, I came here, to the reference room.

F2: Maybe they're somewhere in this room, then.

M1: No, I had them after that. I went to the stacks ...

F2: Stacks? What do you mean, the stacks?

M1: You know, the book stacks. That's what they call the main part of the library, where most of the books are shelved.

F2: Well, that's where you should look.

M1: No, because I took some more notes from journals in the periodicals room up on the third floor. I'll bet that's where they are.

F2: Well, you go look up there, and I'll check with one of the librarians behind the main desk, just in case someone turned them in.

M1: Okay, and thanks for helping me out. Just as soon as I find them, we'll go get a bite to eat.

1. Why did Martha come to the library?

2. What did Stanley lose?

3. According to Stanley, what does the term "stacks" refer to?

4. In what part of the library is this conversation taking place?

CD 4, TR 2

Questions 5-8: Listen to the following conversation.

M1: Guess what-I joined the Spelunking Society last month.

F1: Seriously? Aren't spelunkers people who go down into caves? I thought you were only interested in mountain climbing!

M1: I do like to climb, but you know, the two sports have a lot in common. I'll give you an example: The same technique for climbing down steep slopes is used in both sports. It's called rappelling. Of course, climbers use this technique to come down cliffs, while spelunkers use it to go down holes.

F1: What else does your society do?

M1: For one thing, we help preserve caves. Believe it or not, some people are so careless that they just leave their litter in caves. And some people even write on cave walls. So we pick up trash and clean away the graffiti.

F1: I don't think I'd like spelunking very much. Caves are wet and cold and dark, aren't they?

M1: I suppose they are, but they can also be beautiful. Tell you what. Why don't you come along with me to the meeting tonight? They'll be showing slides that we took in a cave last weekend. You'll see some incredible rock formations and crystals. It might change the way you think about caves.

5. What is the main topic of this conversation?

6. According to the man, what is meant by the term rappelling?

7. What other activity does the Spelunking Society engage in besides exploring caves?

8. What does the man invite the woman to do?

2. What will the talk probably be about?

Question 3-4: Listen to a talk given at an athletic club.

M1: I'd like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for coming out to the Edgewood Athletic Club for our exhibition match. Before the match gets under way, I'd like to give you all a little background on how the sport of handball is played. Even though it's a game with a long tradition, some people aren't as familiar with the rules of this sport as they might be with, say, those of tennis.

3. What is the purpose of this talk?
4. When is this talk being given?

Questions 5-6: Listen to a talk given at a factory.

M1: Good morning. On behalf of our management team and our workers, I'd like to welcome all of you to our plant. You may have wondered, how do soft drinks get in those cans? How are the cans sealed? By the end of the tour, you'll know the answers. Now, please follow me out onto the factory floor.

5. Who is the audience for this talk?
6. What will the main topic for this talk probably be?

CD 4, TR 4

Questions 7-8: Listen to the following talk.

F2: Since all of you have expressed interest in joining the university dance program, I probably don't have to say much about the physical and psychological rewards of being in a dance program such as this one. Instead, I want to concentrate on some of the drawbacks-the demands that will be put on your time and the sacrifices you'll be called on to make if you are chosen for the program.

7. What will the main topic of this talk probably be?
8. What is the speaker's probable occupation?

Questions 9-10: Listen to the following talk.

M2: As president of the State Historical Society, I'd like to call this meeting to order, and welcome all our members and guests. Tonight, I'm going to give you a short presentation on some famous shipwrecks, especially shipwrecks that took place in the waters off New England.

9. Who is the speaker?
10. What will this talk probably concern?

Questions 11-12: Listen to a lecture given in a university classroom.

- 11. In what course is this lecture probably being given?
- 12. What will the rest of this lecture probably deal with?

- 14. What will this talk probably concern?

CD 4, TR 5

Questions 15-16: Listen to this talk given in a university classroom.

F2: I'm Professor Wills. I hope no one had any trouble finding the classroom this morning. In a few minutes, I'll be handing out the course syllabus. As you'll see, we'll be spending the first few days discussing the law of supply and demand.

- 15. What class does Professor Wills probably teach?
- 16. At what point in the semester is this talk being given?

Questions 17-18: Listen to the following talk.

M2: Good morning, everyone. This is Captain Jackson, and I'd like to welcome you aboard the whale-watch cruise on the S.S. Bluefish. In just a few minutes we'll be outside the harbor and we'll steer toward Travis Island. If we spot any whales today, you'll most likely see them off the starboard bow-that's the right-hand, forward side-as we approach the island. In the meantime, I'd like to take this opportunity to tell you a little about how these magnificent sea mammals live.

- 17. Where is this talk probably being given?
- 18. What will the rest of this talk probably be about?

Questions 19-20: Listen to a talk given by a campus police officer.

F1: Hello. I'm Officer Jane Kelly. Thanks to all of you for coming this evening. As you know, there have been a number of accidents recently involving bicyclists and pedestrians on campus. There have also been some incidents involving the theft of bicycles, and I know this is a special concern for all of you. I intend to address both these issues during the course of the meeting.

- 19. Who is the probable audience for this talk?
- 20. What is the speaker's main purpose in giving this talk?

Exercise 16.1

Questions 1-2: Listen to Portion 1 of Talk A.

M1: I'd like to welcome all of you to what is, I think, the most unusual course offered by the biology department—the Ecology of Coral Reefs. This course is unique because of our research methods. We don't just collect data from the library. Instead, we go to a coral reef in the Virgin Islands to do field studies.

1. What does the speaker imply about the course?
2. How will students do research in this class?

Questions 3-4: Listen to Portion 2 of Talk A.

M1: To prepare you for this trip, we'll first do some formal classroom work in biology. We'll also be going to the university pool to practice scuba diving and to learn the basics of underwater photography. And we'll be talking about precautions you must take to avoid damaging the reef. A coral reef is a very fragile environment, as you'll see.

3. Which of the following will be studied in a formal classroom setting?
4. How does the speaker characterize tropical reefs?

Questions 5-6: Listen to Portion 3 of Talk A.

M1: Because of the nature of this course, it does require a certain financial commitment on your part. The department can only provide basic equipment for you. You have to pay for your own air fare to the Virgin Islands as well as for your food and lodging. There are a few limited scholarships available for those who might have financial problems. See me after class if you're interested in applying for one of these. Any questions?

5. What will the department provide the students in this class?
6. What does the speaker suggest for those who might have problems with the costs of this course?

Questions 7-8: Listen to Portion 1 of Talk B.

F1: The largest American land mammals are bears. Maybe because bears can stand up and walk on two legs, we humans have always found them fascinating. Another characteristic bears have in common with humans is their range of appetite. As a matter of fact, they'll eat almost anything: berries, roots, nuts, meat, fish—and of course, they're particularly fond of honey.

7. The speaker suggests that bears are interesting to humans for what reason?
8. What does the speaker imply about the eating habits of bears?

Questions 9-10: Listen to Portion 2 of Talk B.

F1: The largest bear is the giant kodiak of Alaska. When this giant stands up, it may reach a height of ten feet, and it may weigh up to fifteen hundred pounds. Ten feet tall and weighing three quarters of a ton—what a sight they must be! Outside of Alaska, the largest bear in the United States is the grizzly bear. There aren't many of these bears left in North America—probably only a few thousand. Most of those live in Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming.

9. How tall can kodiak bears be when they are standing?
10. Where do most grizzly bears live?

Questions 11-12: Listen to Portion 3 of Talk B.

F1: Now, the most common bear in the United States is the black bear, which you'll see in many parts of the country. These bears are smaller than grizzlies and may seem friendly, but watch out! Like all bears, they are unpredictable and can be dangerous.

11. What is the most common type of bear in the United States?
12. Which of the following can be inferred from the lecture about black bears?

Questions 13-14: Listen to Portion 1 of Talk C.

F2: The skies above Earth are turning into a junkyard, according to space scientists. Ever since the Soviet Union launched Sputnik, the first satellite, way back in 1957, virtually every launch has contributed to the amount of debris in Earth orbit. Luckily, most of this junk burns up after it reenters the Earth's atmosphere, but some will be up there in orbit for years to come.

13. When did orbital debris first become a problem?
14. What happens to most pieces of orbital debris?

Questions 15-16: Listen to Portion 2 of Talk C.

F2: Today, there are about 8,000 bodies in orbit being monitored from Earth. Out of all those, only around 3 to 4 hundred are active and useful. There are also probably half a million pieces of debris too tiny to be monitored.

15. How many orbital bodies are being monitored today?
16. Why is it impossible to monitor most pieces of orbital debris?

Questions 17-18: Listen to Portion 3 of Talk C.

F2: Some orbital debris is as big as a bus, but most is in the form of tiny flecks of paint or pieces of metal. The debris also includes food wrappers, an astronaut's glove, the lens cap from a camera, broken tools, and bags of unwashed uniforms. The largest pieces-mostly empty booster rockets-are not necessarily the most dangerous because they can be detected and spacecraft can maneuver away from them. And the smallest particles generally cause only surface damage. However, a collision with a piece of metal only an eighth of an inch in diameter-say about the size of an aspirin-could puncture the hull of a spacecraft or space station and cause a catastrophic depressurization. That's because these particles are moving so incredibly fast!

17. Which of the following is probably most dangerous to astronauts on a spacecraft?
18. What makes particles in space so dangerous?

Questions 19-21: Listen to Portion 4 of Talk C.

F2: So what can be done about this problem? Well, two engineers recently proposed a novel solution to the problem of orbital junk, a device that consists of an array of water-spraying cones lined with plastic fibers to collect the debris and canisters to store it in. I brought a model of this device along with me so you could see what it looks like. Although this invention is still in its conceptual stage, two possible uses have been proposed. It could be launched as a free-flying satellite that actively seeks out debris or it could be launched into orbit with a spacecraft and serve as its shield.

19. What did the speaker bring with her?
20. What role do the cones play in the device described in this portion of the talk?
21. What can be inferred about the device described in this portion of the talk?

Questions 1-5: Listen to a talk given on a university radio station.

F1: Hello, this is Dana Lockwood with the campus news at noon. Yesterday the Board of Regents voted to raise tuition here at Hambleton University for the third year in a row. As in the previous two years, there will also be increases in the student fees and the room and board charges at the dormitories. This five percent increase makes Hambleton the second most expensive school to attend in the state. Only Babcock University charges more. Penny Chang, co-executive of the Student Council, told us today that there should be some corresponding increase in student services, such as longer hours at the library, more contact time with faculty, and improved lab facilities. However, a spokesperson for the administration said that the additional money has already been earmarked to pay for the higher insurance premiums that the university is being charged and for the construction of a new dormitory.

1. For how many consecutive years has tuition at Hambleton University gone up?
2. Which of the following is not mentioned in the talk as going up?
3. What does the speaker say about Babcock University?
4. According to the speaker, who is Penny Chang?
5. What can be inferred from the remark made by the spokesperson for the administration?

Questions 6-9: Listen to a lecture given by a biologist.

F2: Wouldn't it be wonderful if a person who had lost a hand or a leg in an accident could simply grow another in its place? Humans can't do this, of course, nor can any other mammal. But there are creatures who can do this and more. The champions at regeneration are starfish and some types of worms. If only a small piece of one of these creatures remains alive, it can regenerate an entire new body. Imagine that! Then there are animals such as salamanders or insects that can regenerate entire limbs. When these creatures grow a new limb, here's what happens: a regeneration "bud" forms at the surface of the wound. It is usually cone-shaped and contains the same kind of embryonic cells that were present at the birth of the creature. These develop into specialized cells as they grow, and a new organ is gradually formed.

Unfortunately, the more complex a creature, the less it is able to regenerate. Snakes can replace their skin when they shed it; birds replace lost feathers. Even humans have certain powers of regeneration. When our top layer of skin wears off, day by day, it is continually replaced. Our nails and hair are constantly being replenished. Even our second set of teeth represents a kind of regeneration. And we are able to repair damage such as bone fractures and injuries to the skin and muscles.

Some scientists are studying the process of regeneration in lower animals to try to learn more about it so that, someday, they will be able to apply the lessons they learn to humans. Although it's doubtful that humans will ever be able to do what salamanders or insects do, this research may in the future help doctors heal wounds more quickly.

6. Which of the following is best able to regenerate lost body tissues?
7. Which of the following would not be considered regeneration?
8. According to the speaker, what is in a regeneration bud?
9. According to the speaker, why are scientists studying the process of regeneration?

Questions 10-12: Listen to a lecture about Noah Webster.

M1: Today I'm going to talk a little about Noah Webster and the impact he had on American English. Webster was born in Connecticut in 1758 and graduated from Yale University in 1778. This was during the time of the American Revolution, and Webster joined George Washington's army to fight against the British. The end of the war brought independence, but political independence didn't satisfy Webster. He wanted the former Colonies to be intellectually independent from Britain as well.

In 1783, Webster published a spelling book which would become known to generations of schoolchildren as the "blue-backed book" because of its blue cover. A couple of years later, he published his dictionary. It is for his dictionary that Webster is chiefly remembered today. The Webster's dictionary popular today is a direct descendant of that book published in the 1780's.

In his dictionary, Webster made many changes in the way English was used in the United States. He suggested new ways of pronouncing words and added words used only in the former Colonies to the language. Most of the changes, though, involved spelling. Today, most people in the United States spell words differently from people in Britain because of Webster's original dictionary. Let me just give you a couple of examples—in Britain, words like center end in -e. In the United States, these words end in -er. He also took the letter u from words like color. In the British spelling, that word ends with the letters o-u-r, but in the American spelling, it ends with o-r.

Still, Webster did not go as far in revising spelling as his friend Benjamin Franklin wanted him to. Franklin wanted to drop all silent letters from words. The word wrong would have been spelled r-o-n-g, and the word love would have been spelled l-o-v.

10. According to the speaker, when did Webster graduate from Yale University?
11. What is Noah Webster mainly remembered for today?
12. Which of the following is a spelling that Benjamin Franklin would have approved of?

Questions 1-3: Listen to the following radio talk.

F2: If you're too busy to brush your teeth after every meal, and you sometimes forget to use dental floss, you'll be glad to know that, in the near future, you may be able to have healthier teeth thanks to microphages. What are microphages? They're tiny viruses that attack and destroy bacteria. Soon, they may be used to fight tooth decay if genetic engineers can develop a specialized type of phage to attack only those microbes that are harmful to the teeth.

These microphages could be used in toothpaste or mouthwash. Once in the mouth, they would consume bacteria that breed on the surface of teeth. The advantage of microphages is that they are absolutely harmless to humans. They attack only one specific bacterium and have no known side effects.

1. What is the main topic of this talk?
2. According to the speaker, which of the following can be said about microphages?
3. The use of microphages as described by the speaker depends on a development in which of the following fields?

Questions 4-8: Listen to a talk given at an orientation session.

F1: Hi, everyone. My name is Beth Sinclair, and I'm director of Campus Food Services. I'd like to join the previous speakers in welcoming you to Brooks College, and I want to give you some information on a very basic subject – staying well fed while you're getting your education. .

Now most of you will be purchasing meal tickets soon if you haven't already. You should be aware that there are two plans available. Plan A, which is a little more expensive, allows you to have three meals a day six days a week. With Plan B, you get two meals a day, your choice of breakfast and dinner or lunch and dinner. So, once again, Plan A is three meals a day, except on Sunday, and Plan B is two meals. On Sunday evenings, everyone's on their own, because all the dormitory cafeterias are closed. Food Services does operate some restaurants then, such as the Tiger's Lair over by the stadium or the Bengal Grill at the Student Center, but these restaurants don't take meal tickets. Of course, you can always eat at one of the restaurants near campus.

Now say you're living in Donahue Hall and you have a friend over in Cooper Village. Can you eat with your friend? Sure, because a meal ticket is good at any cafeteria on campus. Just remember to bring your Student ID card as well as your meal ticket. Oh, and what if you have a friend living off campus who wants to eat with you one night? That's fine too. One-time meal tickets are available at a very reasonable price. But remember, you may not sell or give your meal ticket to any other person.

Just one last note about the food in the dorms. Some people have the idea that all dorm food is bland and tastes the same. That may even have been true here at Brooks College until a few years ago. But these days we go out of our way to serve fresh, tasty, healthy food. We offer a great variety of dishes to choose from, including many international dishes, and you can always go back for seconds. So, we're looking forward to seeing you at mealtimes, and bring your appetite.

4. According to the speaker, how are Plan A and Plan B different?
5. Which of the following is closed on Sunday evenings?
6. Which of the following must a student bring to meals in addition to a meal ticket?
7. According to the speaker, which of the following is not permitted?
8. According to the speaker, how have the dormitory cafeterias changed in recent years?

Questions 9-12: Listen to a talk given at a zoo.

M1: Ladies and gentlemen, welcome to the City Zoological Gardens' newest exhibit, World of Darkness. Not too many years ago, zoo visitors were unable to observe the behavior of nocturnal animals because these creatures are active during the night and generally sleep during the day, when the zoo is open to visitors. But in the 1960's, zookeepers at the Bronx Zoo in New York City found a solution to this problem and developed the system that we now utilize in our exhibit. The animals' habitats are lit with white light at night. The animals think the white light is daylight, so of course, they go to sleep. During the day, their habitats are lit with red light. The animals can barely detect this light. But the red light enables visitors to observe these animals going about their normal nocturnal activities. So enjoy your visit to the World of Darkness and enjoy observing these fascinating creatures of the night. And remember, next month is the grand opening of World Down Under, a new exhibit of Australian marsupials. Please join us for that event.

9. Who is the probable audience for this talk?
10. Which of the following does the speaker imply about nocturnal animals exhibited before the 1960's?
11. According to the speaker, why are red lights used to light nocturnal animals' habitats?
12. What will the audience for this talk probably do next?

1. F1: Excuse me-do you know which apartment Sally Hill lives in?

M1: Sally Hill? As far as I know, she doesn't live in this apartment complex at all. M2: What does the man imply about Sally Hill?

2. F2: Roger, may I use your phone? I think mine is out of order.

M1: Feel free.

M2: What does Roger tell the woman?

3. F1: Were you able to solve that math problem?

M1: To tell you the truth, I found it simply impossible.

M2: What does the man say about the math problem?

5. F1: How did you learn so much about trees?

M1: Mostly from my father-he studied forestry in college.

M2: How did the man learn about trees?

6. (Ring... ring.... Sound of phone being picked up.)

M1: Hello.

F2: Hi, Tom, this is Brenda. Since you couldn't come to class today, I just thought I'd call to tell you what Professor Barclay told us. He said we're going to have to write a research paper.

M1: Really? And how long do we have to finish it?

M2: What does Tom ask Brenda?

7. M1: Julie certainly seems to like classical music.

F2: She doesn't like just any classical music.

M2: What does the woman imply about Julie?

8. F1: How did you do on Professor Dixon's history test?

M1: Probably not too well. I skipped a couple of questions, and I didn't have time to go back to them.

M2: What does the man say about the history test?

9. M1: I can't seem to get the lid off this glass jar.

F2: Maybe you could heat it in some warm water.

18. M1: I can't tell if this picture is straight or not.

F2: I'll hold it while you stand back and take a look.

M2: What are these people doing with the picture?

19. F1: I'm going to Stephanie's house. I have an assignment to complete, and I need to use her computer.

M1: Why don't you buy one of your own? Think how much time you could save.

21. F2: Have you seen Shelly recently? The last time I spoke to her, she said she hadn't been feeling too well.

M1: Well, when I saw her this morning, she was the picture of health.

M2: What does the man say about Shelly?

22. F1: Everyone's getting a little impatient. Can't we call this meeting to order?

M1: Once Lou gets here, we can.

M2: What does the man mean?

23. M1: Mary Ann, are you going to buy those sunglasses you looked at?

F2: I wouldn't buy that pair even if I could afford them.

M2: What does Mary Ann say about the sunglasses?

24. F1: You can't expect to become a tennis pro after just a few lessons, Ken.

M1: I shouldn't have had such high hopes, I suppose.

M2: What did Ken probably expect?

25. F2: We only have a few more points to talk over.

M1: Good, because I need to wrap this up soon.

M2: What does the man want to do?

26. F2: Can I help you?

M1: I'd just like a couple of books of matches, please.

M2: What does the man mean?

27. M1: Should I take California Street or Oak Street to get downtown?

F1: What difference does it make? It's the same distance no matter how you go.

F1: Yes, and I could hardly believe my ears!

M1: What does the woman imply about the announcement?

29. M2: Brian, could you handle this suitcase too?

M1: How many hands do you think I have?

F2: What does Brian mean?

30. F1: I'm so glad I can go camping this weekend!

M1: Then you don't have to study for that physics test after all?

M2: What had the man originally thought about the woman?

Questions 31-34: Listen to the following conversation.

F1: Walter, why haven't you been coming to Professor Crosley's anthropology class?

M1: What do you mean? I've been there every morning!

F1: Every morning? But ...oh, I get it-you must be in the professor's morning class in cultural anthropology. I'm in her afternoon class in social anthropology. So tell me, how do you like her class?

M1: Oh, it's very interesting. So far, we've been studying the art, the architecture, and the tools of different cultures. And this Saturday, our class is going down to the local museum. They're having an exhibit of the artifacts of the early inhabitants of this area.

F1: Your class has quite a different focus from mine. We're studying social relations in groups. For example, this week we've been talking about marriage customs and family life in a number of societies-including our own.

M1: So what's your opinion of Professor Crosley?

F1: Well, she asks her students to do a lot of work-we're going to have two tests and two research papers. But she's a fascinating lecturer. I've never taken an anthropology course before, but I'm glad I decided to take her course.

M1: Yeah, same for me. In fact, I never thought of anthropology as an interesting subject, but now I sure do.

31. What do the two speakers have in common?

F1: Hello, this is WBCL Community Television studios. How may I help you?

M1: Hello. Uh, I'm calling because I saw an advertisement in the campus newspaper. It said there was a summer internship available for a student who wants to work on your local news program.

F1: Right. But you do realize that all of our interns are volunteers? It's an unpaid position.

M1: Oh, sure, I understand that. I just want to get some experience working for a television news program. You see, I'm thinking about a career in television news production after I get my degree.

F1: Oh? Are you majoring in telecommunications?

M1: No, in journalism, but I've taken some telecommunications courses.

F1: I see. Well, you'll need to talk to Ms. Wagner. She's in charge of the internship program. But first, you'll need to come here to fill out an application form. Can you drop by the studio later today?

CD 5, TR 12

Questions 39-42: Listen to the following lecture.

M2: How many of you were at the football game Saturday night? Did you notice the blimp circling the stadium? Today's blimps are much smaller descendants of the giant airships-sometimes called zeppelins-that were used in the early twentieth century. Like those zeppelins, blimps are lighter-than-aircraft. But blimps differ from zeppelins in a number of ways. First, as I said, they are quite a bit smaller. The old airships were as long as football fields. And unlike zeppelins, blimps do not contain an internal metal frame. That's why blimps are sometimes called "non-rigid" airships. And blimps are a lot safer than the old zeppelins. That's because they use non-flammable helium in place of hydrogen to provide lift.

As you may know, the age of the airship ended when the famous German airship Hindenburg exploded disastrously at Lakehurst, New Jersey, in 1937. I say that airship travel ended then, but some engineers believe that large, rigid airships will fly again. These airships of the future could be equipped with jet engines and filled with helium. Although they wouldn't be as fast as modern airplanes, they would be much more fuel efficient.

39. What is the main topic of this talk?

40. Which of the following aircraft is classified as "non-rigid"?

41. What important event in the history of airships took place at Lakehurst, New Jersey, in 1937?

42. According to the talk, what advantage would the airships of the future have over jet airplanes?

Questions 43-46: Listen to the following talk.

F2: Twice a year, all the clocks in the United States are changed by one hour. In the spring, clocks are moved ahead an hour. This is called daylight saving time. In the fall, clocks are set back an hour to standard time. People remember how to change their clocks by remembering this saying: Spring forward, fall back. It seems Benjamin Franklin was the first person to propose the idea of daylight saving time, back in the 1790's. At the time, people thought he was joking. They couldn't believe he was serious. Many years later, during World War I, people realized what an innovative idea he'd had. In the spring and summer, the Sun rises earlier. By moving the clock ahead, people can take advantage of the extra daylight and save energy. Energy is an important resource, of course, especially during wartime. The United States operated on daylight saving time during World War I and again during World War II. After that, some parts of the country observed daylight saving time and some didn't. Beginning and ending dates varied from place to place. This confusion ended in 1966, when the Congress passed the Uniform Time Act, standardizing the process and making daylight saving time a federal law. Since then, some lawmakers have proposed that the United States go to year-round daylight saving time.

43. What is the main topic of this talk?
44. According to the speaker, when are clocks in the United States set back?
45. According to the speaker, how would most people probably have characterized Benjamin Franklin's plan for daylight saving time when it was first proposed?
46. According to the speaker, what was the effect of the Uniform Time Act of 1966?

Questions 47-50: Listen to the following radio announcement.

M1: This week, the city will begin a new program of curbside recycling. If you take your recyclable materials out to the street, the city will haul them away in trucks to be recycled. At present, you can recycle newspapers, aluminum cans, and glass containers. The trucks will not pick up plastic bottles. However, if you want to recycle plastic bottles, you can take them to the city recycling center on Pine Street. If you live in the north or west side of town, trucks will pick up your recyclables on Monday. If you live in the east or south part of town, your recyclables will be picked up on Wednesday. If you live in the central section of town, your pick-up day is Friday. For more details, see the map in today's newspaper. And remember, when it comes to newspaper, aluminum, and glass, don't throw it away-recycle it!

47. What is the main topic of this talk?
48. Which of the following must be brought to the city's facility on Pine Street to be recycled?
49. In which part of town are recyclables picked up on Friday?
50. To get more information, what does the speaker suggest?

F1: Maybe we'll do better next week.

F2: What is the problem?

12. M2: Tell me, what do you think of our waiter?

F1: Kind of rude, isn't he?

F2: What is the woman's opinion of the waiter?

13. F1: Tony spent the whole weekend fishing, and he didn't catch one single fish.

M2: I'm not too surprised.

F2: What does the man mean?

14. M1: I need a few more minutes to fill out this form.

F1: Take your time.

F2: What does the woman tell the man?

15. M2: Has Russell ever been to Seattle?

F1: Once before, I believe.

F2: What does the woman say about Russell?

16. F1: Is Lily still planning to study overseas?

M1: No, her parents threw cold water on that plan.

F2: What did Lily's parents do?

17. F2: David, do you think that the music was too loud? .

M2: Well, no-not if you wanted the people across town to hear It!

F2: What does David imply about the music?

18. F1: This was supposed to be a quiet, relaxing weekend.

M1: But it didn't quite turn out that way, did it?

F2: What does the man imply about the weekend?

19. F1: The front door to the lab was unlocked on Saturday morning.

M2: Really? That's strange.

F2: What can be inferred from this conversation?

20. M1: This insurance policy has gotten so expensive, I can hardly afford it.
F1: Yeah, but you can't really afford not to have it, can you?
F2: What does the woman tell the man?

CD 6, TR 4

21. F1: Did Morgan pass the test?
M2: Pass it? With flying colors!
F2: What does the man say about Morgan?

22. M1: Oh, no, it's still out of order!
F1: I guess we'll just have to walk up all those stairs again today.
F2: What are these two people talking about?

23. M1: Did you take your raincoat to the cleaner's, Meg?
F1: No, I had to go to class, so I got my sister to take it.
F2: What happened to the raincoat?

24. M1: This schedule says we have to attend an orientation session before we can register.
M2: That's just for new students.
F2: What can be inferred about these two speakers?

25. F1: So, Doug, are you looking forward to helping your brother move this weekend?
M1: Well, there are a couple of other ways I'd rather spend my weekend!
F2: What does Doug mean?

26. F1: This coin you found is worth a lot. It's quite rare.
M2: Oh, an expert, are you?
F2: What does the man imply about the woman?

27. F2: That sure is a catchy song.
F1: You're telling me. The melody's been running through my head all week.
M2: What can be concluded about the song?

28. F1: You look great in this picture, Larry. Look how you're smiling!
M1: So you did take that picture of me after all!
F2: What had the man originally assumed?

29. F1: Hotel rooms along the beach must be very expensive.
M2: Not now. During the off-season, they're dirt cheap.
F2: What does the man say about the hotel rooms?

30. M1: Who was that woman you were talking to at the reception?
F1: That was Carol Donovan. She was my sister's roommate in college.

Questions 31-34: Listen to the following phone conversation.

(Ring... ring.... Sound of phone being picked up.)

M2: Hello, Campus Daily, advertising department. This is Mark speaking.
F2: Hi. I'm calling to place a couple of ads.
M2: Sure. Under what classification?
F2: Well, I want one in the "Roommate Wanted" section.

M2: All right. And how would you like that to read?

F2: OK, it should read "Female roommate wanted for pleasant, sunny two-bedroom apartment on Elliewood Avenue, three blocks from campus. Share rent and utilities. Available September 1. Call between 5 and 9 P.M. and ask for Cecilia.

M2: Fine. And what about your other ad?

F2: That one I'd like under "Merchandise for Sale," and I'd like it to read "Matching blue and white sofa and easy chair, excellent condition, $350 or best offer. Call between 5 and 9 P.M. and ask for Cecilia." Did you get all that?

M2: Uh-huh. You'll want your phone numbers on these, right?

F2: Oh, sure. Thanks for reminding me-it's 555-6972.

M2: And how long do you want these ads to run?

F2: For a week, I suppose. How much would that be?

M2: It's five dollars a week per line. Each of your ads will take up three lines, so that's $15 per ad.

31. Where does Mark work?

32. Which of the following is Cecilia trying to find?

33. Which of the following does Cecilia initially forget to tell Mark?

34. What is the total amount that the two advertisements will cost for one week?

Questions 35-38: Listen to the following conversation.

M1: I'm sorry I'm late, Cindy.

F1: That's all right, Joe. My house isn't that easy to find. But you know, you wouldn't have gotten lost if you had a "smart" car.

M1: A smart car? What's that.

F1: I just read a magazine article about some new technology that can make a car smart. One device is a computerized map display and a synthesized voice. You just enter the address where you want to go, and the voice tells you how to get there, street by street.

M1: Hey, that's just like my brother. He never gets lost, and he's always telling me the best route. So what else will smart cars be able to do?

F1: Well, the article said that they'll be equipped with radar warning systems that will warn drivers if they're getting too close to other cars with an alarm signal, and they'll even put on the brakes if the drivers don't.

M1: Tell me, Cindy, will these cars be smart enough to fill themselves up with gas?

F1: Not that I know of. Why do you ask?

M1: Well, I'm not late because I got lost-I'm late because I ran out of gas on the way over here.

35. Where did Cindy get her information about "smart" cars?

36. According to Cindy, what is the purpose of the synthesized voice on "smart" cars?

37. What does Joe imply about his brother?

38. Why was Joe delayed on his way to Cindy's house?

Questions 39-42: Listen to a talk given at a ceremony.

M1: Good evening. I'd like to welcome the president of Colton College, the chancellors, the administrators, my fellow faculty members, and the students to the Academic Excellence Awards Night. Our first award, for Faculty Member of the Year, goes to Professor Patricia Callaghan. I'm particularly pleased that this year's winner is from my own department. Professor Callaghan has been at Colton College for a total of eight years now-two as a graduate student and six as a faculty member. She has consistently received top evaluations from the students as well as from her department head. Her papers on historical economics are well respected by all of her colleagues-including myself, if I may say so-and this year she received a government grant to continue her work of generating computer models of the economy. Please join me, ladies and gentlemen, in giving a round of applause to Professor Callaghan.

39. What is the purpose of this talk?
40. Who is the speaker?
41. What subject does Professor Callaghan probably teach?
42. For how many years has Professor Callaghan been a teacher at Colton College?

Questions 43-46: Listen to the following announcement.

M1: Good morning, listeners. This is KUNI campus radio with the local news. Did you have any trouble getting around in traffic downtown this morning? Several streets are blocked off because of the bicycle races that are taking place today and for the next four days. Some races will be taking place downtown, some in Woodland Park on the north side of town, and some on campus. Long-distance road races will be held in the countryside nearby. Our own university is fielding a team to compete for prizes and glory, so come on out and cheer them on. And say, if you found yourself caught in traffic this morning, I suggest that you ride your own bike to class or to work tomorrow.

43. Who is the speaker?
44. What is the main topic of the talk?
45. According to the speaker, where will the long-distance road races be held?
46. What does the speaker suggest that his listeners do the next morning?

CD 6, TR 11

Questions 47-50: Listen to the following lecture about photorealistic art.

F1: Good morning, class. Today we'll continue our study of twentieth-century art movements with a discussion of photorealism, a style popular in the 1960's and 1970's. Painters who worked in this style realistically portrayed their subjects down to the smallest detail, and so their paintings resembled photographs in many respects. These painters usually chose subjects that were interesting only because they were so ordinary: a closed-down gas station, an old man waiting for a bus, a dilapidated billboard. Sculptors who worked in this style, such as Duane Hanson, created life-size sculptures of very ordinary people - construction workers, tourists, sales clerks, homeless people. His sculptures are so lifelike that sometimes visitors to a gallery or museum will try to engage them in a conversation. Now we're going to look at some slides of various works of photorealism. I'd like all of you to take notes while you're viewing the slides, and then tonight, I'd like you to write a short paper describing your reactions to these works.

47. Where was this talk probably given?
48. Which of the following would be the most likely subject of a photorealistic painting?
49. According to the speaker, why are the works of sculptor Duane Hanson so remarkable?
50. What will the audience for this talk do next?

1. M1: Did Joan get someone to fix the broken window?
F1: No, she did it herself.
M2: What does the woman say about Joan?

2. M1: You're from Mayport? There's a big golf tournament held there every year, isn't there?
F2: You're right. That golf tournament really put our little town on the map.
M2: What does the woman say about the town of Mayport?

3. F2: This painting isn't an original-it's a copy.
M1: How do you know that?
M2: What does the man ask the woman?

4. F1: Do you know where the nearest pharmacy is?
M1: There's one in the supermarket on Lexington Street, right next to that big used car lot.

5. F2: Mandy, did you get a chance to read that magazine I gave you?
F1: Cover to cover!

9. M1: That couldn't have been Professor Leguin that you saw yesterday-he's been at a conference in San Francisco all week.
F2: Well, it sure looked like him.
M2: What can be inferred about the woman?

10. F1: There must be something wrong with that microphone the speaker is using. I can hardly understand a word he's saying.
M1: Yeah, I can only catch a word or two myself.
M2: Why are these people probably having trouble understanding the speaker?

F1: John Casey? I can't say that it does.

M2: What does the man ask the woman about John Casey?

M1: Well, it's a requirement to take at least one science course, and geology seemed like the easiest one.

M2: Why is the man taking the geology course?

24. F2: Have you ever seen a bear?

M1: Only at the zoo.

M2: What does the man mean?

25. F1: Connie asked you a lot of questions, didn't she?

27. M1: My brother Charles is studying in Europe.

F1: Really? Since when?

M2: What does the woman want to know about the man's brother?

Questions 31-33: Listen to the following conversation.

F1: Don, I hear you bought a new car.

M1: I did just buy a car, but it's not exactly a new one-it was made back in the 1950's. Here, take a look at this photo.

F1: Wow, you're right-this car hasn't been new for a long time! Couldn't you afford a newer car?

M1: Believe it or not, this car cost almost as much as a new one.

F1: Really? How could that be?

M1: Well, a lot of cars from the '40's, '50's, and '60's have become collectors' items and are worth a lot of money.

F1: But this one doesn't seem to be in very good shape.

M1: The engine is still in good condition. I plan to fix up the interior and to paint the car myself. Then it will be worth even more money.

F1: So then you'll re-sell it?

M1: No, I don't plan to re-sell it-but I might enter it in some classic auto shows. Maybe I'll win a prize.

31. Why did Don buy an older car?

32. When was Don's car made?

33. What does Don plan to do with the car he bought?

Questions 34-37: Listen to the following conversation.

F1: You'll be in Room 207. Here's your key, and I hope you enjoy your stay with us, Ms. Cook.

F2: Thanks. Oh, by the way, I'd like to get some information from you. You see, the conference I'm attending will be over early Wednesday, and I don't fly out until Thursday. Do you have any recommendations for sight-seeing?

F1: There's a great planetarium at our natural history museum. You might enjoy that.

F2: I don't know-I don't think I want to do that. The city I come from has a good planetarium.

F1: There are also some good art galleries downtown.

F1: I'm more interested in doing something outdoors.

F1: Oh, well, there's a beautiful waterfall called Crystal Falls not far from here.

F2: That sounds like something I'd enjoy seeing. How do I get there?

F1: Do you have a car, or will you be taking a bus?

F2: I rented a car at the airport.

F1: Then just take Waterson Street west out of town and go about five miles. You'll see a sign that says Crystal Falls. It's a short walk from there.

F2: That sounds great. Thanks!

34. Where is this conversation taking place?

35. What does Ms. Cook imply that her main purpose was in coming to this town?

36. Why does Ms. Cook not want to go to the planetarium?
37. How will Ms. Cook probably get to the waterfall?

Questions 38-41: Listen to a part of a talk about a type of dance.

F1: Good afternoon. In today's class, we're going to continue our discussion of dance around the world with a look at the hula, a dance of the Hawaiian Islands, and we'll see a video of a traditional hula dance. Today, when we hear the word "hula," most of us think of women in grass skirts swaying to ukulele music while tourists take pictures. The traditional version, though, is quite different from the dance as it is performed today. The traditional hula was danced by both men and women who had been trained at special schools. It was accompanied by rhythmic chanting. The chants and the dances were originally performed. To honor the gods, promote fertility, or praise great Hawaiian leaders. The traditional hula was banned by missionaries from New England around 1820, and the hula dance itself survived only in a radically different form. The performance you'll see on the screen this afternoon, though, is as much like the original dance as possible. Even the costumes the dancers are wearing are authentic. Now let's turn down the lights and watch.

38. Who is the audience for this lecture?
39. What can be inferred about the dance that the audience will see?
40. What effect did New England missionaries have on the traditional hula dance in around 1820?
41. What will the audience for this talk do next?

Questions 42-45: Listen to the following talk.

M1: Imagine you are driving down the highway one spring day and it begins to rain. You hear the sound of the rain on the car roof. Suddenly it sounds as if small stones are pounding on the car, and you see balls of ice bouncing on the road. You're in a hailstorm, and you'd better get your car under cover! Hailstones can damage vehicles as well as gardens and farmers' crops.

If you pick up a hailstone and cut it in half, you'll see it has layers, just like an onion. A hailstone begins its existence as a snowflake, high in the atmosphere. The snowflake comes in contact with what is called "supercooled water"-water that exists at temperatures below freezing, but is still in liquid form. This water forms a coating of ice around the snowflake, and it becomes a hailstone. As the hailstone falls, the layers of ice build up. Air currents may lift the hailstone back into the supercooled water many times, and more layers of ice form until the air currents can no longer hold it up. Then it falls to Earth.

Hailstorms occur most often in the spring. Some hailstones are as big as baseballs, and may weigh over a pound.

42. What is the main purpose of this lecture?
43. Why does the speaker compare a hailstone to an onion?
44. According to the speaker, how does a hailstone begin its existence?
45. According to the speaker, when are hailstorms most common?

Questions 46-50: Listen to part of a lecture about child development.

F2: Now, in the last few minutes of class, I'd like to address a slightly different issue: the question of how children learn to talk. Learning to speak their own language is one of children's greatest accomplishments, yet it is a somewhat mysterious process. Children first begin to make language-like noises when they are between two and four months old. These noises generally begin with the letters g and k because these sounds-"goo" and "koo"-are the easiest sounds for infant mouths to make. Between four months and eight months, infants begin to babble meaningless syllables. Most common are those beginning with p, b, d, m, or n sounds, followed by a vowel sound. Parents sometimes misinterpret these as actual words, such as mama or dada. Between six months and a year, babies say their first true words. Vocabulary grows slowly at first, usually only a few words a month, but once a child has learned about fifty words generally at around 18 months-the pace picks up rapidly.

At first, children say single words; then they begin forming two-word combinations: "all gone," "more milk," "see doggie." Children's two word combinations are so similar the world over that they read like translations of one another. Between the age of two and three, children can form complete sentences and have mastered the basics of grammar. Can you believe it? A two and- a-half-year-old toddler is a grammatical genius, and all without studying a single rule! Typically, four-year-olds know some 15,000 words and can form very sophisticated sentences. Even their mistakes are very logical: "I saw two mans" or "We goed to grandma's house."

So, how does this all happen? Well, there are several conflicting theories about language acquisition, but unfortunately, there just isn't time to discuss them today, so we'll take them up in Wednesday's class. In the meantime, please read Chapter Eight in your textbook. See you Wednesday.

- 46. What is the main topic of this talk?
- 47. Which of the following sounds would a two-month-old baby be most likely to produce?
- 48. At what age do most children begin to master the basics of grammar?
- 49. What does the speaker say about the grammatical mistakes that four-year-olds make?
- 50. Why does the speaker not discuss the theories about how children acquire language?
